Air Derby Racers Fly to Death

Tragedy Occurred at Castle Rock, Utah—Lieutenant Kirby Instantly Killed and Lieutenant Miller Died Before Doctors Reached Him.

RECORDS ARE BROKEN BY "FLYING PARSON"

Lieutenant Maynard Has Covered 742 Miles of the Return Trip — Captain Smith Starts for West, But Plane Is Burned at Buffalo.

Salt Lake City, Utah, October 15. Lieutenant French Kirby, pilot, and Lieutenant Stanley C. Miller, observer, of airplane No. 44, in their transcontinental air derby, were killed at Castle Rock, Utah, late today, when their plane, traveling westward, fell a distance of approximately 200 feet.

Lieutenant Kirby was killed instantly, according to the manager of a ranch at Castle Rock, where the accident happened. Lieutenant Miller died about 6:40 o'clock tonight.

Seen to Float Downward.

According to the manager of the ranch, the machine was flying high when the engine was heard to stop and Kirby was seen to float downward. Suddenly, when about 200 feet in the air, the machine banked sharply and dived straight for the ground. Lieutenant Kirby was dead when ranch hands reached the machine. Lieutenant Miller was alive and medical assistance was sent for but he died before physicians could arrive.

The manager of the ranch, over the long distance telephone tonight said that there was no wind at the time of the accident and he could not state what went wrong with the plane.

Washington, October 15.—Lieutenant French Kirby, aviator in transcontinental airplane race, killed in the fall of his plane at Castle Rock, Utah, late today, lived at Alexandria, Va. Air service records available tonight did not give the home address of Lieutenant Stanley C. Miller, killed in the same accident.

"FLYING PARSON" MAKING RECORD ON RETURN FLIGHT

Salt Lake City, Utah, October 15.—Lieutenant Belvin W. Maynard, flying eastward on the second lap of the transcontinental air derby, arrived at Buena Vista, near here, at 10:44 a. m., mountain time, this morning.

Cheyenne, Wyo., October 15.—Lieutenant Maynard, leader in the transcontinental air derby, arrived here at 4:25 p. m. after flying from Salt Lake City, Utah, in four minutes less than four hours, breaking all records. He left at 4:55 and planned to reach Sidney, Neb., before nightfall.

Lieutenant Maynard made the trip from Rawlins, Wyo., to Cheyenne, a distance of 136 miles, in 56 minutes. He reported encountering several snowstorms. He left this city for Sidney with a high wind at his back and said he expected to make the distance of 93 miles in record time.

Maynard at Sidney.

Sidney, Neb., October 15.—Lieutenant B. W. Maynard, blazing the way to the eastern terminal in the air flight, as he did in his trip from Mineola, N. Y., to San Francisco, arrived here tonight at 5:45, mountain time, making the ninety-three miles from Cheyenne, Wyo., in 33 minutes.

Maynard will remain here overnight. He said he had encountered fine weather during the latter part of the day. He plans to leave here for North Platte at sunrise tomorrow. If he is able to maintain as good speed tomorrow as he did on his westward flight, he will be in Chicago by night. He left Battle Mountain, Nev., at 7:33 this morning, Pacific coast time. The distance from Battle Mountain to Sidney is about 740 miles.

"The flying parson" is in excellent health and spirits.

A number of westbound fliers who arrived here last night were held up this morning by a heavy fall of snow. Toward noon the weather cleared, the sun came out and the flight to the San Francisco goal was resumed. The departure during the day were: No. 5, Lieutenant Brown, left at 11:38 a. m., mountain time; No. 44, Lieutenant Boyle, left at 11:45 a. m., mountain time; No. 43, Lieutenant Rodgers, left at 12:05 p. m., mountain time.

Law Provides Penalty For Food Profiteers, Says Attorney General

LAWYERS TO ASK POSTPONEMENT OF BRADSTREET CASE

COUNTY ROAD BONDS ARE DECLARED SAFE

Held in the Fulton county tower for safe keeping at the request of Sheriff Jenkins, of Campbell county, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence F. Bradstreet are this morning awaiting the preliminary trial that was to have been given them and the negro chauffeur, Ellison, this afternoon in Fairburn, but which in all probability will be postponed in accordance with the request made by the prosecution that the hearing await the completion of the audit of the bank's books that is now going on in Fairburn, and the rendering of the report that W. O. Martin, special examiner, will deliver to the state treasurer concerning the status of the bank's affairs.

State Bank Examiner W. J. Speer was authority yesterday for the statement that the proceeds of the sale of the bonds of Campbell county by the Fairburn bank had been accounted for and that no losses to the county were anticipated on that score.

Moved to Tower.

The announcement that the postponement of the preliminary hearing would be demanded by the prosecution was made by H. S. Troutman, of Troutman and Troutman, who is associated with Reuben R. Arnold in the sensational case.

The original intention to move the prisoners to the Campbell county jail was first delayed when Sheriff Jenkins, of Campbell county, was unable to make the transfer on account of having to appear in the federal court as a witness, and later the sheriff decided to ask Sheriff Lowry to hold the prisoners in the Fulton county jail, because of the inadequacy of accommodations in the Campbell county prison for women. Accordingly, the Bradstreets were removed from the police station to the tower late Wednesday afternoon, but the negro, Ellison, was left at the city jail.

Failed to Deposit Check.

Other developments Wednesday were the reported seizure of much additional valuable furniture, said to belong to Mrs. Bradstreet, which was found at the home of her father, A. P. Queen, at Panthersville; the report that an attachment had been taken against the Hudson automobile that William B. Green is said to have purchased for his personal use from J. T. Redwine, of Fairburn. Green is reported to have purchased the car, giving his personal check for $2,000. Mr. Redwine is said to have asked Green to deposit the check to his credit, and mail a duplicate deposit slip. The deposit slip failing to appear, it is declared, Redwine investigated and found that the check had not been deposited to his credit. Mr. Redwine is a director in the Fairburn Banking company.

To Seclude Woman.

One of Mrs. Bradstreet's attorneys declared Wednesday that after Mrs. Bradstreet had been remanded to the tower she would not be allowed to talk to any parties to whom her lawyers do not grant the permission, her attorneys and her immediate family being the only persons to whom this right will be extended.

Before orders were given for the seclusion of Mrs. Bradstreet she spent some time with a representative of The Constitution. Although she would not discuss her case, Mrs. Bradstreet was in an extremely optimistic mood, and expressed her belief that no crime could be fastened upon her She was dressed in the black satin dress that she wore on the night of her incarceration and complained bitterly over the fact that

EVIDENCE PRESENTED TO U. S. ATTORNEY

In Several Cases, Evidence of Guilt Has Already Been Placed in the District Attorney's Hands—Action Expected Now.

All doubt that food profiteers in Fulton county can and will be prosecuted by the federal government was expelled yesterday when John A. Manget, Fulton county food administrator, received instructions from Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer to turn over all evidence in his possession to the local United States district attorney.

Present laws, Mr. Palmer wired, provide a penalty of $5,000 fine, or two years in the penitentiary, or both.

Mr. Manget wired United States Senator William J. Harris several days ago requesting knowledge as to whether or not a penalty is provided under the existing law against profiteers. His telegram, sent Monday, reads as follows:

Manget's Telegram.

"Kindly wire me penalty for profiteering under new bill passed by congress and whether or not bill is now in force. Georgia appreciates your efforts."

The reply from Attorney General Palmer follows:

"Your wire to Senator Harris. Replying, present evidence of profiteering to United States Attorney Alexander there. Penalty for profiteering $5,000 fine, or two years in penitentiary, or both.

"Signed:

"A. MITCHELL PALMER."

"This is the last warning," Mr. Manget stated last night, "that will be given to food profiteers in Atlanta. This applies to all kinds, dairymen as well as grocers. We shall not stop until the public is given a square deal and unpatriotic dealers forced out of business, with some among their number possibly behind jail bars."

Evidence Presented.

Evidence has been presented to the district attorney of several grocerymen as well as dairymen who have been found guilty of charging above the prices fixed by the Fulton county fair price committee. No prosecutions have been instituted by his office, a statement from there containing the explanation that there was no penalty provided under the law even if convictions were obtained.

It is believed that the wire from the attorney general will place an entirely different aspect on the case of profiteers in Fulton county. While the great majority of grocers and dealers have responded to the efforts of the fair price committee to maintain standard prices, there have been a number of exceptions to the rule, several of them making flagrant violations of the committee's rulings.

Was Last Resort.

No recourse to the law has been applied by the district attorney, and a few days ago a conference was held, at which Mr. Manget considered the possibility of disbanding the fair price committee.

As a last resort, Senator Harris was appealed to and it is now considered probable that possibly without any convictions profiteering will stop and the equitable prices allowed by the committee will prevail over the entire city.

DUTCH CASTLE SOUGHT BY EX-CROWN PRINCE

Amsterdam, October 15.—The former German crown prince is endeavoring to purchase the castle of Echteld, in the province of Gelderland, according to The Handelsblad. This is situated near Tiel and about 20 midles from Amerongen and Doorn. the purchase of an estate near his father's was discussed at the time of Frederick William's visit to Amerongen. Because of the delay in repairing and rearrangement at Doorn, it is believed that the removal of the former emperor will be postponed until early in 1920.

Although the restrictions of the Dutch government on the free movement of the exiles r still nominally effective, William Hohenzollern is now permitted to motor through Doorn and Amerongen territory.

MORE BIG CROWDS PASS TURNSTILES AT GREAT FAIR

GOVERNMENT DISPLAY PROVES INSTRUCTIVE

Midway, Liberal Arts, Agriculture, Auto Show, Machinery and Other Attractions Continue to Interest Vast Throngs.

Why the Lights Failed.

When the midway was doing a rushing business; just after the grandstand had released its enormous crowd to throng the sideshows and riding devices after the night performance of the auto polo, and when the excitement at the Southeastern fair was at its height last night, all three transformers which furnish light and power for the circus devices blew out, and the 50,000 enjoying the show left in darkness after two hours of waiting for the "jazz" to start up again.

Emergency men from the power company rushed to the fair grounds, but found that all three transformers would have to be replaced, and while the officials started the fireworks display an hour earlier than usual in an effort to hold the crowd until the lights came on, it was unsuccessful, and scrambling through the dark, everybody crowded onto the street cars and waiting autos.

New transformers will be ready early Thursday, and the lighting apparatus will be all right for tonight.

The enormous figures of Tuesday's attendance, running over 70,000 were completely smashed yesterday, R. H. Striplin, secretary, said, though the complete audit of the figures had not been completed at midnight owing to the lack of light.

Crowds closely approximating those on school day Tuesday entered the gates at the Lakewood fair grounds yesterday, which made it a second banner day in attendance records. Mayor Key's declaration of an official holiday, while augmenting the attendance by practically all of the city employees, had little effect on the day as a whole, for the great majority of business houses and manufactories had already announced to their employees that the shops would close at noon.

The crowd in the midway early in the afternoon was the most intensely packed of any day yet. While possibly there were no more than on Tuesday, the children did not take up so much room, leaving more space for each other. But yesterday it was a job to go from the college of liberal arts to the top of the hill overlooking the grandstand.

Awards for Swine.

In the awards for swine, which were completed by the judges Tuesday afternoon, Berryton Orion Cherry King, owned by John M. Berry, of Rome, won first prize among the Duroc-Jerseys. Mr. Berry, who is president of the Berryton mills, Berryton, Ga., is an enthusiastic planter aside from his manufacturing interests, and only recently gave 100 registered hogs to the Boys' Pig club of Floyd county.

The grand champion sow was Pat's Pride, 16th, owned by Mahan & Neff, Osburn, Ohio This sow now holds the championship in Tennessee, Ohio, Kentucky and many other fairs.

The judging of the cattle was completed late Wednesday afternoon, but the winners will not be announced until Thursday, Professor William G. Munsford, who holds the chair of animal husbandry at the Ohio State university, and is judging the live stock, stated.

Crowds at Exhibits.

The exhibits drew the largest crowds they have experienced during the week yesterday, the attendance being largely Atlantans who were deeply interested in special exhibits. A continual stream of people flowed from the college of liberal arts to the agricultural building and from there through the farm tractor displays into the automobile show rooms. Here the crowds passed from one display to another, viewing the new designs in well-known cars, many of which are being introduced at the fair.

The government display, which, with the State College of Agriculture, occupies the basement of the agricultural building, provides one of the most interesting studes to farmers who have "done things backward" (according to instructions on some of the models) and to

With Back to Wall Organized Labor Battles for Life

Labor Leaders Who Have Made Unionism Effective See the Whole Structure Threatening to Crash.

CONSERVATIVE LEADERS LOSING THEIR POWER

Breakdown of Gompers Complicates the Situation—Not Much Is Expected From Industrial Conference.

By Robert T. Small.

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1919.)

Washington, October 15.—At what is admitted to be the most critical industrial crisis in the history of the United States, organized labor finds itself fighting with its back to the wall.

Organized labor is beset both within and without its ranks. The workers of the country are getting out of hand. They feel they are in the heyday of a golden opportunity and refuse to listen to the wise counsel of experienced leaders. They are striking without sanction, and are sure they can not lose. Thus they are seriously weakening the position of their duly elected leaders.

On the other hand, the officers of the various labor unions are confronted by a growing disposition on the part of the larger employers of labor to treat only with their own employees, eliminating from consideration and from collective bargaining the labor leaders who heretofore have represented the workingmen.

Plight of Labor Leaders.

The plight of the labor leaders—the men who have brought labor unions to a high point of effectiveness in this country—can well be imagined. They see the whole structure of national and international unionism crashing about their heads and are desirous of saving it. If 3:00 p. m.—Afternoon session, if necessary.

Georgia delegates of the American Legion, numbering nearly 200, representing the numerous posts of the legion already established in this state, assembled in Atlanta Wednesday for their first state convention. They spent a busy day, meeting in a business session at the Rathskeller of the Ansley hotel during the morning and devoting the afternoon and night to amusement. The convention will be contiued today, the business session to be held this morning at the Ansley, the convention to be called to order at 9:45 o'clock.

It was a great sight to see these young men, the future leaders of this country, clear-eyed, stalwart and energetic, gathered together in their first state convention of the legion yesterday. Many of them heroes of hateau Thierry, Soissons, the Marne and the Argonne, the lack of war talk was surprising. The little reminiscences one occasionally heard were not of the battlefield, but of the bright spots spent in the cafe of some small French town or that never to be forgotten leave to Paris or Nice.

Shout Approval.

When Mayor Key, in his speech of welcome to the delegates yesterday morning, declared that any man or group of men who opposed a fair trial for all, were just as much bolsheviks 'as any long-haired, red-eyed radical, who ever threw a bomb,' 'the tremendous shout of approval, voiced by practically every delegate present, would have inspired any group of patriotic citizens into an unbounding belief in this country's younger generation of men.

Mayor Key was introduced following a speech filled with patriotic utterances by Judge Marcus W. Beck, of the state supreme court. In this address Judge Beck declared that whatever might be the claim of the German general staff about prolonging the war, the signing of the armistice was a direct result of the presence of 2,000,000 Americans on the battlefields of France, and 2,000,000 men more in the training camps of the United States to take their places. Judge Beck predicted that the leaders in the national life of America would come from the ranks of the American Legion, men who had courted death, that the ideals of the nation might be upheld. He paid tribute to the

SPINNERS URGED TO BUY DIRECT FROM GROWERS

Proposal Made by Special Committee of Spinners and Growers to the World Cotton Conference at New Orleans.

SPINNERS AND GROWERS PROPOSE TO GET PROFITS

That Are Now Being Made by Middle Men Who Have No Direct Interest in the Cotton Industry.

New Orleans, October 15.—British cotton spinners were urged today by growers to send representatives to the fields of the south, buy cotton from the farmer direct, bale the staple as they see fit, eliminating all middlemen and reducing the cost of the raw material to the spinner, at the same time increasing the price paid to the producer. This proposal, along the lines of the system used by British tobacco manufacturing interests in Kentucky, was made at a meeting late today of a special committee of world cotton conference delegates composed of ten foreign spinners, ten American spinners and twenty American cotton growers.

It was the first time in fifty years, it was stated, that American cotton producers and British spinners had met in formal conference.

Assured Success of Conference.

The meeting, which brought both ends of the cotton industry together, assured the success of the conference, leaders stated tonight. The farmer who raises twenty bales of cotton, for the first time in this generation talked over his problems with the British spinner, who buys a thousand times his yearly output. The British spinner also told of his problems, delayed machinery shipments, strikes, a fluctuating market and labor scarcity. All appeared to be friendliness after the meeting, although two days ago the chairman at the general session was forced to invoke rules of parliamentary procedure to prevent verbal clashes on the floor between representatives of the growers and spinners.

Speakers agreed that no arbitrary price could be fixed for any given period for cotton, owing mainly to the tremendous fuctuations in the amounts of cotton picked in relation to the amount planted in different years. Conditions of weather and of insect depredations made it impossible, it was stated, to set an advance price on the staple, as the growing costs cannot be estimated until the crop has been gathered and ginned.

It was agreed by speakers, however, that profits were being made by middlemen who had no direct interest in the growing, spinning or manufacturing branches of the industry, the consumer having higher prices to pay for the finished article than would be necessary under strict regulation of the industry.

Views of Georgians.

G. F. Shackleford, who stated he had 14,000 acres of cotton under cultivation in Georgia, declared he believed it was time for spinners and growers to get together and share in the profits of cotton as well as the losses. "Waste on the farm, at the gin, in storing and in

Atlantic City, N. J., October 15.—Postmaster General Burleson today gave the National Hardware association and the American Hardware Manufacturers' association, in joint session here, the first public account of his administration which he has made since he entered the cabinet.

Mr. Burleson said that the postal administration was "remarkable in development, wonderful in organization and that its standard of efficiency borders on the miraculous."

Stands on Record.

Policies which have made him the object of perhaps the most bitter attacks directed against any of President Wilson's advisers, were explained and the difficulties of his administraton under war conditions were described, the business men forming the audience interrupting frequently with applause or laughter, as the postmaster general, with mock solemnity, told them how he loved his critics. Often Mr. Burleson was in a fighting mood, especially when discussing efforts to force a reversal in his policies.

"Record has been made of what I stand for," he declared, smashing his fist into his open palm, "and it's not going to be changed."

REAL TEST IS COMING ON BRITAIN'S SIX VOTES

Claimed That Johnson Amendment, Giving the United States as Many Votes as Britain, Will Be Adopted—Vote Likely on Shantung Today.

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1919.)

Washington, October 15.—The Shantung provision in the peace treaty found no friends in the senate today. Neither did Japan. The award of the German possessions in China to Japan was described as various kinds of crime, of which "theft" and "rape" were mentioned most frequently. Japan was denounced as the Prussia of the Far East and as a robber empire. Despite the violence of the opposition, the Lodge amendment proposing that the United States shall not be a party to "this dishonorable act," will be deefated tomorrow.

This situation prevails tonight solely because the "middle ground" republicans expressed opposition to any textual amendment requiring resubmission of the treaty to the

DETECTIVES SEEK MISSING EMPLOYEE AND $7,200 CASH

City detectives and Pinkerton men under W. T. Gloer, local manager, are seeking the whereabouts of John Henry Adams, a trusted employee of the Keely company on Whitehall street, who disappeared Tuesday with $7,200 with which he was entrusted by the company to deposit in a local bank.

Adams had been in the employ of the company for more than fifteen years and it had been their custom during this time to entrust him with large sums of money for deposit. He is described by officials of the department store as being of stocky build, about 5 feet 8½ inches tall, and carries a plainly discernible scar made by his throat having been cut from ear to ear.

The missing money is said to have consisted of $3,400 in cash and $3,800 in checks.

shipping can and must be eliminated," he said. "Much money that is now being needlessly spent in handling and rehandling can be saved. There is now an actual loss of $11.50 per bale between gin and loom, and there is not an industry in the world where such wastefulness would be permitted.

"We must trade directly with the spinners, eliminate the middleman. Organized unions of cotton farmers, ginners, warehouse men and bankers are needed to keep in constant touch with organizations of spinners so as to learn how much cotton is needed to supply the world's demands and also to advise the spinners exactly as to crop conditions so that preparations may be made in advance for the spinners to have the cotton they need and the growers to know intelligently how much they will have to add to or draw on their reserves to supply that demand. Organization of a proposed $100,000,000 corporation for the handling of cotton direct to European spinners will enable us to cut out the excess cost of handling by eliminating middlemen and will also enable us to stabilize prices to a great extent by eliminating much of the gambling which has been such a demoralizing factor in the past."

J. A. Davis, banker, cotton buyer and planter, of Waycross, Ga., said:

"The spinners should send representatives to the growers to buy cotton direct just as do the big foreign tobacco manufacturers. Half the reason for the high cost of everything these days is because of the partial control which gambling speculators have secured on necessities of life. Eliminate the middle man and deal with the man who raises the product."

Closer Affiliation Urged.

Closer affiliation of grower and spinner was offered as a solution to the problem of the cotton planter and the spinner by Governor Bickett, of North Carolina, in private life a cotton planter. The planter, he said, is operating on a narrow margin of profit, even at very high prices.

William Polk, Louisiana planter, declared the spinner interests were capable of fixing the price of the manufactured cotton article.

"If no basis of assured prices can be arrived at whereby the American cotton grower can get more money for his raw cotton, then the government should set a price for the spinner to pay or else put a tariff on foreign cotton which would assure the grower a sufficient price by American spinners," Mr. Polk said. His expressions, however, met with objection from many of the growers, who voiced a conviction that complete harmony with the spinners was the only spirit which would make for better conditions and higher prices.

J. S. Wannamaker, of St. Mattews, S. C., president of the American Cotton association, said there never was a time when it was more necessary for a thorough harmony and understanding between grower and spinner than the present. Co-operation between grower and spinner will do much toward equalizing supply and demand, give the spinner information on which to proceed instead of guess work, and advise the grower fully of what the spinners need so that he can supply the demands."

David Graham, commissioner of agriculture of North Carolina, said that while labor had grown and picked the cotton crop in that state the past few years it had been recognized for some time that negro labor was no longer to be depended upon owing to its decadence in strength and energy since the war between the states.

Better Baling Urged.

Giorgio Mylius, of Milan, one of Italy's largest cotton spinners, and representative of the Italian government, declared it was imperative that American cotton be better baled and conditioned for export.

"Cotton is now selling to the spinner at approximately $1 per pound in Italy," he said, "and some manufacturers are seriously considering the advisability of trying out some of the German paper substitutes. These substitutes have reached a high state of perfection, especially in appearance, but the wearing qualities are open to question. The big premiums being made in cotton should go to the grower instead of the speculator."

There were no addresses by British spinners, although there were many informal conferences between them and the growers before and after the meeting. Hearty applause from the British side of the room, however, followed the statements of the speakers that middle men should be eliminated and that growers and spinners should agree on prices.

Dwight B. Heard, of Phoenix, Ariz., grower of American-Egyptian cotton in that state presided over the meeting. John A. Todd, professor of economics at Oxford, was secretary.

COTTON NATIONS URGED TO UNITE.

New Orleans, October 13.—Advocacy of a league of cotton nations by W. Irving Bullard, of the Merchants National bank, of Boston; recommendation of a statistical system to furnish information on the cotton industry of the world by O. P. Austin, statistician of the National City bank, New York, and a request by Harvie Jordan, of Monticello, Ga., that cotton growers be furnished with statistics on foreign cotton consumption, featured the general session here today of the world cotton conference.

Sir A. Herbert Dixon, chairman of the British delegation, sheduled for the opening address of the session, was unable to speak because of illness.

America's Task.

Mr. Bullard pointed out that America's task was primarily the raising of cotton, England's the spinning and weaving, but the world supply of cotton, machinery, yarns and fabrics is a world factor.

"The need cries aloud," he said, "over a war-shaken world for a spirit of co-operation and mutual service in cotton."

Mr. Austin declared that an international organization with branches throughout the world should be established so that cotton reports of the world may be supplied with accuracy and promptness. More frequent reports upon cotton manufacturing industries should be supplied by the various governments, he stated.

Outside of the consumption figures of American mills no information of that sort is available to cotton growers, Mr. Jordan stated. He declared figures of consumption of cotton mills should be furnished with accuracy to growers and asserted such statistics would be of untold value to those who produce the staple. He asked that the amount of cotton held in foreign ports, warehouses, spinners' establishments and all other places be included.

World Crop Reports.

Giorgio Hylius and Guido Risardi, of the International Institute of Agriculture, Rome, Italy, explained the system used to report on world crop productions and stated efforts were being made to properly record cotton consumption figures throughout the world.

Samuel L. Rogers, director of the census, and L. M. Estabrook, chief of the bureau of crop estimates, explained in detail the work of the government in compiling cotton and other crop reports. Both speakers stressed the importance to modern growers and manufacturers of accurate government statistics.

Despite the fact that the United States is the world's greatest producer of raw cotton, this country is almost a negligible trader in cotton yarns, Mr. Thomas Walker Page, chairman of the United States tariff commission, told the delegates.

The great exporters of cotton yarns, Great Britain, British India and Japan, have supplied nearly the entire world, according to Dr. Page.

The speaker stated that the only hardship the world had suffered because of Germany being out of the yarn exporting market was the fact that her "turkey-red," "blue-black," and "iron quality" had not yet been duplicated to the entire satisfaction of manufacturers.

POLISH LABORERS FOR COTTON FIELDS.

New Orleans, October 15.—Importation of Polish laborers for use in the cotton fields of the United States to relieve the labor shortage during the picking season, was proposed at a meeting today of the committee on growing cotton, seed selection, methods of cultivation and picking of the world cotton conference.

The proposal was made at an executive session of the committee by Dr. Jose Joaquin da Silva Amado, who stated he spoke for an unofficial representative of Polish labor interests.

E. A. Calvin, of Houston, Texas, chairman of the committee, which was composed of 14 American delegates and nine from foreign countries, stated the proposal in regard to Polish laborers was received by the committee, but no action was taken.

It was stated that before the world war it was the custom for Germany to bring large numbers of Polish laborers into the empire to harvest crops and cut wood. The Poles could be induced to come to the United States for six months on promise of high wages as cotton pickers and the prospects of ocean voyages, it was stated. The immigration laws would be complied with by making it a limited "visit" of six months.

Submission of the plan followed statements of serious shortage of negro labor in the south, particularly during the cotton picking season.

AIR DERBY RACERS FLY TO THEIR DEATH

tain time; No. 11, German Fokker, piloted by Lieutenant-Colonel Hartney, left at 12:36 but after proceeding forty miles was compelled to turn back on account of a defect in his motor; No. 42, Lieutenant J. B. Wright, left at 12.28. Lieutenant Wright was lost for one night near Sterling, Col., and his plane sustained slight damage but was working well when he left today. No. 16, Lieutenant H. H. George, left at 2:12. No. 45, Lieutenant Haynes, left at 2:15.

742 MILES COVERED BY PARSON AIRMAN.

Chicago, October 15.—Lieutenant W. B. Maynard, the "flying parson," continued his rush through the western skies today on the return trip from San Francisco to New York, and between sunrise and sunset had covered 742 miles of the second lap of the army's aerial derby over the transcontinental course, spending the night at Sidney, Neb. While he was hurrying towards the eastern goal two fliers met death in a 200-foot fall at Castle Rock, Utah. They were Lieutenant French Kirby, pilot, and Lieutenant Stanley C. Miller, observer. Their deaths make a total of seven fatalities since the start of the race on October 8.

Major Carl Spatz and Captain Lowell H. Smith started from Mineola, N. Y., today at 2:28:18 and 2:31:56 o'clock, respectively, on the return journey to San Francisco. Captain Smith reached Buffalo at 6:33:20 p. m., but his machine was destroyed by fire after he landed.

Lieutenant Maynard, who left San Francisco Tuesday at 1:22 p. m. covered 356 miles on the first day of his return flight and 742 miles today, landing at Sidney, Neb., at 5:45 p. m, mountain time. He has 1,503 miles ahead of him. He expects to reach Chicago Thursday night and hopes to be in New York before sundown Friday.

Lieutenant Colonel J. N. Reynolds and Lieutenant H. W. Sheridan landed at San Francisco at 10:55 and 10:56 o'clock a. m., respectively, and Major J. C. P. Barthoff landed at New York at 5:28 p. m. Six fliers have now landed at New York and nine at San Francisco. Twenty-four aviators are still out on the first lap.

AVIATORS LAND MINUTE APART.

San Francisco, October 15.—Lieutenant H. W. Sheridan, of Norfolk, Va., entry No. 40, and Lieutenant-Colonel J. N. Reynolds, of Washington, D. C., entry No. 14, landed here today one minute apart. Lieutenant-Colonel Reynolds arrived at 10:55 o'clock and Lieutenant Sheridan 10:56, it was officially announced.

FORCED TO LAND BECAUSE OF FOG.

Omaha, Neb., October 15.—Lieutenants J. G. Williams and J. L. Hitt, piloting plane No. 25 in the transcontinental air derby, were forced to make a landing near Pacific Junction, Iowa, today by the fog, and damaged their plane to such an extent they will be unable to continue in the race, according to a telephone message received here. Neither of the men was injured.

SPATZ AND SMITH START FOR WEST.

Mienola, N. Y., October 15.—Major J. C. P. Bartholf, sixth of the San Francisco starters to reach the Atlantic coast, landed at Roosevelt field this afternoon at 5:28:03 o'clock, after being held at Binghamton for more than 24 hours by inclement weather.

Major Carl Spatz and Captain Lowell H. Smith, put off in the afternoon at 2:28 and 2:31 o'clock, respectively, on the return journey to the Presidio of San Francisco. Captain Smith is reported to have reached Buffalo tonight at 6:33:20 o'clock.

Major Bartholf, who is a former Harvard man, was given permission to fly to Boston on Saturday to see the Harvard Brown football game. He will return to Mineola on Sunday.

Lieutenants Kiel and Worthington both expect to get away tomorrow on the return trip, it was said. A new motor is being installed in Lieutenant Worthington's machine, but he expects to hurry things along and get away tomorrow.

SMITH'S PLANE BURNS AT BUFFALO.

Buffalo, N. Y., October 15.—The airplane in which Captain L. H. Smith arrived here from New York this evening was destroyed by fire at the local landing field tonight. Captain Smith was the leader in the return flight of western aviators in the cross-continent air race.

TO ASK POSTPONEMENT OF BRADSTREET CASE

she had not been allowed to have an exchange of clothing. In fact, Mrs. Bradstreet's mother sent the young woman some necessary articles of clothing, because her own were in the custody of the receiver for the bank.

Mrs. Bradstreet was questioned closely as to her past record of school days and early married life, but declined to discuss any of these questions.

Green Still Silent.

William B. Green, who has tenaciously maintained his silence with reference to the charges that have been made against him, visits the office of his attorney, George Westmoreland, frequently. He is still under bond, and is seen in Atlanta every day, but has never consented to make a statement. His attorney also refuses to make a statement with reference to the case, saying that the time has not come for the defense to be heard from, and promising that later a statement will probably be made.

The total bond under which Mrs. Bradstreet has been placed amounts to $7,900, taking into consideration the $5,000 bond on the embezzlement charge, $2,500 bond as a material witness, and $400 bond in the bail trover proceedings placed against her by Nat Kaiser for her handsome platinum and diamond wedding ring.

When Colonel George M. Napier, solicitor of the Stone Mountain circuit, who will prosecute the case for the state in the embezzlement charge against the Bradstreets, Ellison, the chauffeur, and Vice President Green, has been notified of the date of the hearing, the bank will ask for continuance.

Bills in Debris.

The bank's attorneys said Wednesday, "We will not be ready for trial until the books of the bank are audited, and we are sure that the case will not come to trial before this is done."

In confirmation of a Constitution statement of a day or so ago, it has been announced through the bank's attorneys that bills made out to Green to the amount of almost $2,000 have been found in the debris of the burned bank building. One bill was from Nat Kaiser Jewelry company for the balance due on a diamond brooch, which amounts to $675; another was for $1,238 from Maier & Berkele for "account rendered." There was also a letter from the Cliff Hatcher Insurance agency concerning payment of a premium of $28.47 due on the house on St. Charles avenue for "Mrs. Clarence Bradstreet." There were also bills for $17 from a florist and a bill for $31 for a dress.

That the various properties of Mrs. Bradstreet will be sold at auction if the courts finally take it from her is the probability that was mentioned Wednesday. Judge Ben H. Hill and Fred E. Harrison, attorneys for Mrs. Bradstreet, have announced that they will make a hard fight to retain the property, but the legal ramifications that the case involves make the matter entirely problematical at present.

The property that has been seized and turned over to J. H. Longino, of Fairburn, receiver, has been variously stored in safety deposit vaults and in warehouses.

County Bonds Safe.

State Bank Examiner W. J. Speer was authority yesterday for the statement that the proceeds of the sale of the bonds of Campbell county by the Fairburn bank had been accounted for and that no losses to the county were anticipated on that score.

He said, however, that he could not make public any details in reference to the disposition of these bonds in advance of the report of Auditor W. O. Martin. He added that, while the destruction by fire of a number of the bank's books made the task of the auditor much more difficult, satisfactory progress was being made, and he believed that it would be possible to set up a record that would show, with a reasonable degree of accuracy, the institution's financial condition.

The bonds to which reference has been made were authorized by the people of Campbell county at an election held some months ago, to be issued for the purpose of road-building within the county. The Constitution has already printed the fact that the proceeds of the sale of these bonds, aggregating $227,000, were deposited in the two banks at Fairburn, the Fairburn bank getting $127,000 and the Bank of Campbell County $100,000.

Missing Liberty Bonds.

It is not the county bonds the disposition of which is giving the state bank examiner anxiety, but rather that of $32,500 of Liberty bonds, which, according to the statement of W. B. Green, he had unintentionally left out of the safe on the night of the fire. These bonds do not appear to ave yet been found and, if they were left out of the safe, as Green reported, there is a grave probability that they were burned in the fire, in the opinion of the bank examiner.

At any rate, just what has become of them still remains to be shown. Their loss will add that much to the liabilities of the bank and may raise the shortage to be met considerably above the original estomate of the state bank examiner, that it would not exceed $35,000.

MRS. BRADSTREET CALLED "VAMPIRE" BY EX-HUSBAND

Information received from two former husbands of Mrs. Agnes Catherine-Queen-Tate-Shoemaker-Bradstreet, who is being held at the tower in connection with the embezzlement of funds of the Fairburn bank, throws additional light on the career of the "woman in the case." William B. Shoemaker, of Freeport, Ill., states in an interview given out there, "She is an adventuress, and a vampire, the only reason she married me was that she thought she could draw my army allotment and get my insurance if I were killed." Shoemaker met Mrs. Bradstreet while he was in training at Camp Gordon. She was then known as Queen. They were married on March 21, 1918.

Shoemaker states that during the short interval between their marriage and the time he left for France that he was compelled to reprimand her several times for going with other men. While he was overseas and until he was discharged she drew his allotment as his wife.

Shoemaker is a handsome young man of twenty-three and well groomed. He states that after he arrived at Camp Grant, Ill., where he was discharged, she came to Freeport to await his arrival. She appeared to have plenty of money, having been seen flourishing hundred dollar bills several times. She remained in Freeport with him several days. Upon her departure, according to Shoemaker, she said she had to go to Atlanta to settle the estate of an aunt who had died and left her $30,000.

Soon after she had returned to Atlanta he received a letter from her, informing him of the fact that she was already married to another man when she married him, and that she could not return. Shoemaker sent an attorney to Atlanta to investigate the case. "The investigation was under way," he says, "when the bank burning and subsequent events occurred."

Her First Husband.

The other former husband is J. B. Tate, who, from all information, was her first husband, filed a petition in Bibb county court, for divorce against Agnes Queen Tate. Tate charged cruel, inhuman treatment to Mrs. Tate, saying she would not cook for him, and he frequently had to reprimand her for association with other men. On the day they separated, said the petition, she "blessed him out good." The petition was filed August 9, and Feagin and Hancock were attorneys for Tate. The final decree was granted April 24, 1919. The petition set forth that they were married April 23, 1917, separating August 1, 1917.

TO ELECT OFFICERS OF LOCAL ZIONISTS

General election of officers for the local Zionist district will be held in Atlanta on October 19, at the Jewish Educational Alliance on Capitol avenue, in pursuance of instructions received from the national headquarters of the Zionist Organization of America.

The election call has been sent out to the 315 districts in the United States. The status of Palestine will soon be officially determined, and soon afterward it is planned to inaugurate the large Zionist movement for the laying of the cornerstone of the Jwish national home.

POSTOFFICE CASHIER RESIGNS POSITION

Baker W. Farrar, for fifteen years cashier of the Atlanta postoffice, leaves the city today to accept the position of cashier of the Bank of Summerville. His departure is spoken of with regret by postoffice officials, who expressed appreciation Wednesday of his many years' faithful service.

Mr. Farrar will be succeeded as postoffice cashier by M. G. Johnson, at present auditor of the postoffice, according to announcement by Postmaster Bolling Jones. Frank Shumate, now assistant cashier, becomes auditor, while Henry Taylor, financial clerk, becomes assistant cashier.

FALL OF PETROGRAD SAID TO BE AT HAND

Hensingfors, October 15.—M. Margulies, minister of commerce of the North Russian government, has arrived here to negotiate with the Finnish government in connection with what is believed to be the imminent fall of Petrograd. The minister desires to obtain export transportation facilities for Finnish merchandise needed for Petrograd, the population of which, according to the minister, has requested the temporary suspension of Finland's export duties.

RAILROAD DIRECTOR EXPLAINS EMBARGO

Exceptions to Embargo on Freight Through New Orleans Are Pointed Out.

Declaring there has been some misunderstanding as to the nature of the freight embargo against the port of New Orleans ordered yesterday by the regional director, the following statement was made with reference to the matter:

"Because of the accumulation of freight at New Orleans, due to labor troubles involving disputes between steamship agents and stevedores and longshoremen, an embargo was placed yesterday against all export freight for movement via the port of New Orleans, except freight for and via Havana routed over the M. L. & T. Railroad and Steamship company.

"Conditions at New Orleans would permit the reception of an indefinite quantity of export freight, but in view of the impracticability of unloading on arrival, it was considered that in justice to other commercial interests of the country, large numbers of badly needed cars should not be tied up indefinitely at this port. The embargo will remain in effect until the situation clears up."

STRIKE LEADER FOSTER SCORED BY POMERENE

Youngstown, Ohio, October 15.—In a letter to the Mahoning united labor congress, received today, Senator Atlee Pomerene says he backs Congressman John G. Cooper of this district, in everything Cooper has said against William Z. Foster, head of the steel strike. Refraining from a discussion of the steel strike, Senator Pomerene in part says:

"Do not mistake the American spirit. Americans are patient and long-suffering. If our government needs changing, the majority will change it, not the minority, and when it is changed it will be by real Americans and not by soviets or bolshevists of the Foster type. To place Foster at the head of any movement is an insult to every law-abiding laboring man and to America herself.

"Americans—and I am one of them—sympathize with labor in their reasonable demands, but they never will approve a movement which is led by the Fosters and their kind. Their activities bode no good to anyone."

Strike May Be Averted.

Richmond, Va., October 5.—Indications that street car traffic in Richmond, Norfolk, Portsmouth and Petersburg will not be tied up by a strike, came tonight, when, following a conference, it was announced that the union leaders had offered to submit to a slight reduction of their demands of 60 cents per hour.

U. S. REGULAR TROOPS LEAVING FOR SILESIA

CAMP DIX, N. J., October 15.—The first contingent of regular troops to leave Camp Dix since the armistice was signed will entrain tomorrow on the first leg of their overseas trip to Silesia, where they are expected to do police duty, it was announced here tonight.

Orders for the 50th infantry, the post garrison, to get under way, were received today. Colonel Francis J. McConnell will have charge of the contingent, which will consist of approximately 2,200 men.

None of the one-year enlistment will go overseas as was originally planned, it was stated, as the parents of many of these men have made such a protest to Washington officials that at the last moment orders were received barring them. Only three-year enlistment men will leave with the contingent.

GERMAN VAT DYES FOR U. S. CONSUMERS

Washington, October 15.—American consumers of dyestuffs, other than vat dyes who cannot secure supplies of that material in the United States or who consider prices, quantity and delivery on offers of the domestic product unsuitable, may now apply to the war trade board section of the state department for permission to import shipments from Germany, it was announced tonight. Consumers may apply for amounts sufficient to supply them from November 15 to May 15.

ORDER TO STRIKE GOES TO MINERS

All Bituminous Workers in Country to Cease Production of Coal on Friday, October 31.

Indianapolis, Ind., October 15.—After approving and sending on its way to the 4,000 local unions in the country the official order calling on all union bituminous coal miners in the United States to cease coal production at midnight, October 31, John L. Lewis, acting president of the United Mine Workers of America, left here late today for Washington to attend a conference, called by Secretary of Labor Wilson, with Thomas T. Brewster, president of the coal operators' association. Mr. Lewis will arrive in Washington late tomorrow.

Mr. Lewis declared that the only thing that could prevent a strike of the miners on November 1 would be the reaching of an agreement between the miners and operators' representatives before that date. Even if that should result from the Washington conference, he said, the agreement would not be binding until it had been acted upon by miners at a reconvened convention. The signing of an agreement by the representatives of the operators and miners before November, it was said, however, would mean the countermanding of the strike ordered today, at least until the convention acted upon the contract.

The miners' head would make no predictions as to the result of the conference in Washington. In the meantime, he said, preparations for the strike would be continued.

The strike order warns the mine workers that there must be no suspension or stoppage of coal production before the time fixed in the order and declares that orderly procedure must be followed throughout.

"The United Mine Workers of America are now embarking upon the greatest enterprise ever undertaken in the history of the trade union movement," reads the order in conclusion. "And each member of our organization must cooperate and assist, in bringing success to our efforts. You will be guided only by the policies of your union and the official orders emanating from its officers."

The official strike call permits local unions to assign "a sufficient number of men to remain at work to insure the proper care and protection of all mining properties, in conformity with the provisions of district agreements." It also urges that fullest co-operation be given "the operator to prevent injury to property," and asserts that "under no circumstances should this rule be violated or set aside by local unions."

SECRETARY WILSON IN MEDIATOR ROLE.

Washington, October 15.—Secretary of Labor Wilson announced tonight that he had assumed jurisdiction, under the law, as a mediator in the controversy between the coal miners and operators of the central competitive fields, which has resulted in a call by the United Mine Workers of America for a strike on November 1.

Secretary Wilson said that both John L. Lewis, acting president of the United Mine Workers, and Thomas F. Brewster, president of the Coal Operators' association, had accepted his invitation to confer with him and that the conference would be held here Friday.

FRANCE WANTS POOL ON WAR EXPENSES

Paris, October 15.—The senate yesterday adopted the resolution which has already been passed by the chamber of deputies, asking the government to suggest to the allies further measures for the disarmament of Germany and another resolution suggesting that France be given a prior claim in the distribution of reparations payments made by Germany.

The chamber of deputies unanimously adopted a resolution, which, after expressing confidence in the spirit of equity and justice of the allied and associated powers, ask the French government to negotiate with them for the establishment of a common pool between the allies to indemnify the participants in the great war.

TAFT IS PRESIDING FOR THE UNITARIANS

Baltimore, October 15.—The moral tone, the sacrificial spirit of all the people which was distinctly elevated during the war has suffered a reaction, declared former President Taft in his address as president of the Unitarian general conference here today, "and we are back again in the old region of the "doldrums' where progress to better things seems as slow as it was before the war."

"We should not be discouraged, however," Mr. Taft said. "It is frailty of human nature. It is to be found in its inability to maintain for long periods its adherence to the highest ideals. Real progress in the world is through a course of action and reaction. This reaction will be succeeded again by an onward and upward movement, and we shall find the world better because of its sacrifices and lessons they taught."

ORDER TO BE ENFORCED, SAYS SECRETARY BAKER

Cleveland, Ohio, October 15.—Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, addressing the delegates to the convention of the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs tonight, said the administration in Washington is determined federal laws shall be enforced and federal agencies left unobstructed and that federal troops will still respond instantly to the call of any governor to suppress riots and disorder in any state.

After referring to the disturbed conditions in various countries of the world, Secretary Baker said:

"In our own country since the armistice there has been growing agitation and unrest, manifesting itself sometimes in race riots and mob disorder, but for the most part evidenced by widespread industrial controversies. Our newspapers are daily filled with accounts of violent agitation by so-called bolshevists and radicals, counseling violence and urging action in behalf of what they call social revolution.

"The American people will not exchange the solid foundations of their social order for any of these fantastic programs. The relations of labor and capital are now being seriously considered in Washington by a group of representatives of the various interests and of the public, assembled by the president, and we can look with confidence to a spirit of justice and mature deliberation upon these grave problems from that body.

"In the meantime, the timid may take heart. Some time ago I telegraphed to the governor of every state in the union that in the event of any civil disorder which he found himself unable to control by reason of the demobilization of the national guard, the governor should communicate directly with the commanding general of the department in which his state lies; and I correspondingly telegraphed to every department commander to respond instantly with the aid of the federal troops to any call from a governor who found himself unable, with the means at his disposal, to suppress disorder and to enforce the local laws.

"The administration in Washington is determined that every federal agency shall be maintained in the full performance of its functions. We have an army of tried soldiers, of true Americans. They have seen too much disorder in the world to undervalue law and order in their own country. They will see to it that federal laws are enforced and federal agencies left unobstructed, and they will respond instantly to the call of any governor to suppress riots and disorder in any part of the country. They are not partisans in any dispute, except one, and that is the dispute between those who want order and those who try to create disorder in America. As between those two contestants, they are on the side of order."

Export Corporation.

Mobile, Ala., October 15.—Formation of an exporting corporation to promote foreign trade of the south from the port of Mobile is under consideration of business men of Mobile and other cities of the south, according to Garrard Harris, representative of the department of commerce, today.

Wilson Accused Of Encouraging Labor Despotism

Indiana Governor Tells Grain Dealers Radicals Have Profited by Utopian Promises of Washington—Autocratic Proletariat Must Be Fought.

St. Louis, October 15.—While discussing the Adamson law, the steel strike and the printers' strike, Governor James P. Goodrich, of Indiana, in speaking before the Grain Dealers' National association at a banbanquet here, said that it is apparent now that the pendulum has again swung too far in the direction of control of industry by the government and that the influence of radicals in this country has been materially widened by the encouragement that has come in numerous ways from the administration at Washington.

"Just as we fought the domination of the slave oligarchy in the middle of the nineteenth century and the capitalictis class in the latter part of the nineteenth century, so must we fight the domination of this other class in the early part of the twentieth century," said Governor Goodrich.

"There is no more dangerous force operating among us today than the class-minded man, whether he is a laborer, a capitalist or farmer, the one who demands a privilege for his class at the expense of the American people.

Promises of Utopia.

"Led by unreasonable promises of Utopia, millions of honest Americans are being drawn into a debauch of industrial revolution. Reason languishes in a resort to violence. License supplants liberty, and justice is forgot in a mad chase for the rainbow's end.

"The time has come when every citizen of this nation should not halt in his daily doings, and searching his soul, ask himself the question: 'Am I an American?' Upon the answer depends the future of the republic. Americanism cannot live under the shackles of class control.

"I concede the right of the worker to organize, bargain collectively and in every legitimate and patriotic way to advance the interest of his class, just as I concede to every worker the right not to belong to an organization if he so elects. But it is clearly apparent for the time being that the organized workers in many lines of industry in America have fallen under the control of radicals like Foster and Fitzpatrick, while Gompers and some others of the conservative type are no longer able to control its policies.

Despotism of Labor.

"So it is that within a brief span of years we have swung from intolerant domination by southern slave-owners to the tyranny of capitalism and finally to the despotism of labor. We have escaped the arrogance of sectional greed and the invisible government of an organized plutocracy only to find ourselves threatened with the yoke of a misguided autocratic and radical proletariat.

"The cloud first appeared ominous in the passage of the Adamson law. I have no doubt that the responsibility for this piece of class legislation attaches directly to the president of the United States.

EDUCATION URGED TO SOLVE PROBLEM

Senator Walsh Says Education and Americanization Are Necessary to Solve Labor Problems With Foreigners.

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1919.)

Washington, October 15.—Shortening of the hours in the steel industry, compulsory education and deportation at the end of five years of foreigners who have not signified their intention of becoming American citizens, were suggested by Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, as means to further the Americanization of the workers in the steel industry.

Senator Walsh, a member of the senate committee on labor that has been investigating the steel strike, said that the condition of the foreign element in this country is largely due to the neglect of the American people.

"The steel strike investigation has once more brought forcibly to public attention the importance of the Americanization problem," said Senator Walsh. "The great percentages of employees in the steel industry and in many other industries throughout the country are so called foreigners, which term has come to mean, those persons who do not speak English in their homes or social life. In one community the evidence showed that there were 20,000 foreigners out of a total population of 23,000. Many of these people are to all intents and purposes foreigners with all the customs and habits of their native land still in practice, and they are merely occupying a small section of the United States for the purpose of earning a livelihood.

"I do not give much weight to the assertion that these foreigners are un-American, or are on the whole believers in bolshevism, socialism or other isms that are un-American. It is very apparent that we have for a long time neglected our duty toward them. Nothing has been done to Americanize them or to teach them what America stands for.

Teach By Example.

"The best way to teach Americanism is by example, but where they are grouped in large numbers it is impossible for them to come in contact with American life. The first step is to teache them the American language. This cannot be done without first regulating the hours of employment so they will have some time each day for the purpose of receiving instruction. Complaint comes from steel workers that after hard work for ten or twelve hours daily, they are not physically or mentally capable of studying or receiving instruction. Certainly this is a strong defense which they make to us when we find fault with the little progress they have made in learning our language.

"The next important step is the enactment of compulsory education laws. This could be done by the United States government making it in the future a condition of entrance to immigrants, that all subjects be subject to deportation at the end of five years if they have not signified intention to become naturalized or have not grasped the fundamentals of the English language. Such a law would compel employers, in order to hold their working men of foreign birth, to take an active and intelligent interest in teaching their employees the English language. They would either personally have to provide them time and means of instruction or bring pressure on local, state, town and city authorities to furnish educational facilities for educating these people after working hours. Details of such a plan could be worked out later.

Compulsory Education Urged.

"The important thing now is to have the American people appreciate that we have all over this country, communities with all the customs, habits, sentiments, languages and political views of the old world. We can not reach them effectively until we have a common means of conversation. We must teach them the English language, and in my opinion this can only be done by compulsory education laws. For more than 20 years we have completely neglected the problem of Americanizing the foreigner. They are not so much to blame as we are. They are sympathetic with American institutions, but too often unfortunately, they see only the hardship side of American life. They seem to have the feeling that the official life of their communities is too often prejudiced against and hostile to them. During the steel strike investigation we have been repeatedly reminded, regardless of whether it is the fact or not, that these foreign employees and their families believe that their rights are being disregarded and that the police, local company officials, and the courts will not treat them fairly. Such beliefs tend to make the individuals entertaining them altogether receptive of socialistic and anarchistic views.

"It is time for Americat o do something. Let us not lose another day in trying to make amends for the complete neglect of these people durinc the last deade. To neglect this duty means, in my opinion, very troublesome times, and very serious industrial troubles as well as the rapid growth of forms of socialism. On all sides during the investigation of the steel strike we have been continually reminded that the conservative element among the working men in the United States today is the English-speaking man, and this, regardless of whether he is American by birth or whether he has learned the English language since his arrival."

WITH BACK TO WALL LABOR BATTLES FOR LIFE

they lose control of the men, however, and likewise lose the recognition of the large employers, the high estate of the union leader will suffer a severe collapse.

The labor situation was further complicated today by the breakdown of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Gompers is suffering from nervous exhaustion—the same malady which attacked President Wilson, and there are parallels in the two cases which are quite striking. Both President Wilson and Mr. Gompers have been going at top speed for the past few years. Both have been trying to hold together the affairs of a distracted world. Both have been subjected to the same severe mental and nervous strains, and both have succumbed.

President Wilson and Mr. Gompers were expected to be the central figures and the guiding influences in the industrial conference now meeting in this city. With both influences gone, there is a feeling that the recommendations of the conference, whatever they may be, will have but little or no effect upon the industrial situation.

Desperate Fight By Gompers.

Mr. Gompers has been fighting desperately to hold organized labor to a conservative policy. His task has not been an easy one. The radical elements in labor have grown apace during the last eighteen months. A particularly bitter fight has been made upon Mr. Gompers himself, and the workers of the great northwest, especially those with bolshevic or I. W. W. tendencies, openly have admitted that the first objective of their radical campaign has been the unseating of Mr. Gompers, and the members of his governing party in the A. F. of L. The labor leaders of the northwest have felt that Mr. Gompers and his conservative program have stood in their way of "direct action" and they will hail his indisposition with glee.

The strength of the so-called Gompers machine in the American Federation of Labor—the conservative element—has depended almost wholly upon Mr. Gompers himself. With his direction lacking, it remains to be seen what will be the guiding policy of the federation.

Western labor has shown a strong disposition to run amuck. It has not dared to take that action, however, in view of the controlling conservatism of the Gompers group in the federation of labor. Mr. Gompers has been a sort of rock of Gibraltar of conservatism in labor councils, and the radical elements of the labor party have been anxious to get rid of him. Impaired health may have fostered their purpose at last and if it should so prove, the showdown between employing capital and working labor may be a matter of the next few months rather than the next few years.

Gompers' Group Menaced.

The position of the conservative Gompers labor group has been seriously menaced by the attitude of the employers in the national industrial council. The employers have insisted upon standing by Judge Elbert H. Gary, of the United Steel corporation, in his attitude that the steel corporation should treat only with men who are on its own pay roll. The general adoption of this policy would eliminate the regularly elected labor leader from participation in all collective bargaining, unless the leaders should happen to be in the employ of the particular concern affected.

It is difficult to tell at this time which of the dilemmas the labor leaders regard as the more serious—the unauthorized striking of union workers, or the threat of employers to eliminate the labor leaders from all future collective bargaining. In any event organized labor has come to a crisis and in this crisis it has lost at least temporarily the services of its conservative leader, Mr. Gompers.

Industrial unrest in the country has been held more or less in leash by organized labor. If labor should become disorganized, through the overthrow of the conservative group and the elevation into power of the radicals, no one can venture a prediction as to what the future relation of employer and employee will be.

TRYING TO AGREE ON THE QUESTION OF BARGAINING.

Washington, October 15.—Despite repeated declarations by employers' delegates that they never would approve intervention in the steel strike, and insistent demands from the same group that the labor arbitration proposal be disposed of definitely, the national industrial conference, voting as an assembly, today deferred action on the labor plan pending an effort by the central committee of 15 to agree on the question of collective bargaining.

The motion to defer, made by Barnard M. Baruch, chairman of the public delegation, was defeated under the group voting plan, the employers' group voting against it, and the public and labor group supporting postponement. Consent of all three groups is required under the conference rules to validate action. On a point of order, however, Secretary Lane, presiding officer, ruled that the motion involved a question of procedure and not of policy, and therefore should be settled by a simple majority vote of individual delegates.

Barrett Favored Delay.

Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation board, and Ward M. Burgess, of Omaha, Neb., were the only members of the public group opposing postponement, and C. S. Barrett and T. C. Atkeson, farmers' representatives, alone of the employers' group favored the motion. The labor group was solid for postponement.

The central committee was directed to have a report ready when the conference reconvenes at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, but it struck a snag late today in attempting to define "collective bargaining" and made but little headway during its three-hour session.

The right of employees to organize was generally recognized, it was said, but no agreement could be reached on the question of dealing with non-employees of a company acting as spokesman for the workers. The committee will meet again tomorrow morning, but it appeared practically certain tonight that no agreement would be reached and that the labor and public delegates in the committee would ask for more time. Such action would mean a further delay in obtaining a vote on the steel strike arbitration resolution.

What Labor Delegates Say.

Labor delegates said today that they would be willing to drop the steel strike resolution in case they can obtain a clean-cut acceptance of the principle of "collective bargaining" with the right of employees to select representatives "just as the companies hire counsel." Failure of the conference to arbitrate the strike or to accept their view of collective bargaining would mean disruption of the conference some labor representatives went so far as to say.

On the "right" of the hall, employers objected to consideration "under pressure." Herbert F. Perkins, of Chicago, said "we cannot be forced or hurried into arriving at any decision in such an important matter as collective bargaining," while J. W. O'Leary, of Chicago, declared that "clear thinking" on the issue was impossible with "other disturbing influences."

After the meeting employers' delegates said that the labor steel strike arbitration resolution was never intended for other purposes than to force recognition of the unions and their spokesmen, inasmuch as agreement to arbitration of the strike by a committee containing union officials and company officers would have amounted to absolute acceptance of the things for which labor is fighting.

Disposed to Compromise.

Charles Edward Russell, of New York, spokesman for the central committee, told press representatives after the committee meeting that both capital and labor were disposed to make concessions, and that nothing had transpired to shake his conviction that the conference would accomplish "great and constructive results." He admitted, however, that serious differences of opinion exist which must be harmonized.

The conference did not meet until nearly noon and remained in session about an hour. Owing to the illness of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor and leader of the labor group, the labor delegates were allowed some time to select an acting head. Frank Morrison, secretary of the federation, was chosen.

Immediately after his election Mr. Morrison went into conference with Mr. Baruch, Galvin McNab, of San Francisco, and other members of the public group regarding Mr. Baruch's motion to defer. A tentative agreement reached at that time was approved by the labor and public groups in group meetings. Meantime Harry A. Wheeler, chairman of the employees, had taken a poll of his fellow conferees and decided to call for a "showdown."

Debate Was Acrimonious.

Debate on Mr. Baruch's action was at times acrimonious. L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson railway, representative of the employers, charged the conference with "maneuvering on what is a political rather than an economic question." Thomas L. Chadbourne, of New York, public representative, denied "that one single [illegible] been done for political [illegible] said that only "a very [illegible]titude would construe [illegible] letter into a denial [illegible] of this conference to [illegible]ike situations."

[illegible]on by L. E. Sheppard, of [illegible]y Conductors' Brotherhood, [illegible]manding tripartite control of industries "based upon a grant of privilege or a monopoly" and embodying essential features of the Plumb plan of control of the railroads by the public, capital and employees, was another important development of the day.

Mr. Sheppard's resolution would provide that in private industries one-third of the directorate should be elected representatives of employees.

The industrial conference, by a rising vote at the morning session adopted a resolution by Harry Wheeler, chairman of the capital group, expressing the conference's hope for a speedy recovery of the labor leader.

WILSON WATCHES CONFERENCE WORK.

Washington, October 15.—President Wilson will not sanction adjournment of the national industrial conference here until it has exhausted every possible means of finding a solution of the present industrial situation, white house officials said today.

Despite his illness, the president was understood to have been informed of the tense situation in conference resulting from the controversy over labor's proposal for arbitration of the steel strike. He was said to feel that this should not endanger the ultimate success of the conference.

AS MIRACLE MAN BURLESON POSES

leson listed the express companies, which, he said, were angered by his development of the parcel post; the railroads, opposed to changing the basis of mail pay from weight to space; owners of pneumatic tube systems, which he declared had been nothing short of "graft;" newspapers and magazines, which had been forced to pay higher second-class rates, and the American Federation of Labor, offended by his stand against public employees affiliating with an organization using the strike to enforce demands. He declared he had been confronted with powerful opposition exerted through congress by these interests.

Mr. Burleson particularly defended his enforcement of the espionage act, which he said earned him the epithets of the disloyal because he excluded seditious newspapers from the mail.

Turning to current political questions, the postmaster general declared the welfare of the country waited on ratification of the peace treaty by congress and the passage of important legislation urged by President Wilson many months ago.

"Now they are talking about a recess in November," he said, "with many things left undone. If the party in power undertakes any such step, the attention of the American people will be brought to the facts."

He Classes His Critics.

Critics of his policies were divided by Postmaster General Burleson into two classes, those who were honest and those who were actuated by ulterior motives. The former he admitted frankly included the bulk of the people, because they have not understood the difficulties under which the postal service has worked. The latter were said to be those interests affected by economies made for the benefit of the people, the express companies which suffered in the development of the parcel post, the railroads which objected to space payment for carrying the mails, the owners of pneumatic tube systems which were abolished and the newspapers and magazines which fought an increase in the second class postal rates.

In his first public account of stewardship after nearly seven years in office, Mr. Burleson said the average tenure of postmaster general had been only two years. He declared this was easily explained by the fact that the employees in the service come in daily contact with the majority of families in the nation, which gave a fertile opportunity for criticism.

Slight Disarrangement.

"When the entire world was readjusting itself to war," he asked, "when our splendid railroad system broke down completely, is it any wonder that there was some slight risarrangement of the postal service? Yet there were people who complained they did not receive their mail with regularity and dependability. I do not blame them for complaining. It is human, but it was unjust."

"As the only government department with a nation-wide organization, the postal service was called upon by all other departments to aid them in war work," Mr. Burleson continued, "and this in spite of the fact that tens of thousands of trained postal employees had been called to the colors or been put in cantonments to give soldiers efficient mail service.

"In one month also there were 97,000 missed train connections."

For the treasury, Mr. Burleson said his department distributed tens of thousands of tons of Liberty Loan propaganda, sold 82 per cent of all savings stamps, sold and distributed new tax stamps, which included the auditing o 50,000 accounts. The postal service also distributed millions of questionnaires and acted as a recruiting service for the war department, aided in making the food conservation measure effective and played a leading part in administering the espionage act and registering alien enemies.

Exclusion of Seditious Matter.

"Exclusion of seditious matter from the mails was a very unwelcome task," Mr. Burleson said feelingly. "I was denounced as suppressing free speech, an autocrat and Prussian, but I moved on in the even tenor of my way, performing my duty with moderation, exercising no arbitrary power whatever, but enforcing the law as written. It is a great satisfaction that in every case where my action was contested the courts have upheld me."

Declaring he was not going to be harsh, the postmaster general turned to individual policies for which he had been attacked. In reducing parcel post rates and increasing the weight limit of parcels, he said he turned a deficit into a surplus, but encountered opposition from the express companies which came within one vote in the sanate of repealing the law. He declared he met a similar situation in changing the basis of payment for railroad mail from weight to space. Fifteen railroad presidents called on him to ask an annual instead of a quadrennial weighing.

"I never indulge in weasel words," Mr. Burleson said, "so I told them I was going to change to the fairer basis of paying by space occupied. They laughed and told me to forget it, but I put it over although they were powerful enough to strangle my department's appropriation and we operated under a continuing resolution for the first time in history."

Pneumatic tubes were said by Mr. Burleson to have been inefficient incubus retained in the service by graft until the present administration abolished them.

Second Class Mail Rates.

Much time was devoted by Mr. Burleson to the fight on seconr class mail rates, which he laughingly said had made him "the idol of the newspapers and the hero of the magazines." He declared it had cost the government $160,000 above the postage to carry one edition of a well-known weekly which averaged $1,600,000 in advertisements.

"That deficit was paid by you," he told the business men, who were his auditors, "until my fight forced a change, and now I'm before the interstate commeree commission trying to raise still further the rates congress fixed, which I know are too low.

Explaining his opposition to affiliation of government employees with the American Federation of Labor, Mr. Burleson said he believed it was a public danger for any federal, state or municipal worker to be allied to an organization that used the strike.

"I don't want the postal service to be a revenue producer," he concluded, "but we have achieved a surplus despite ourselves because of cutting out this graft I have told you about."

LLOYD-GEORGE'S WIFE URGING PROHIBITION

London, October 15.—Mrs. David Lloyd-George, wife of the British premier, is taking a prominent hand in the prohibition campaign, addressing a meeting of two thousand women at Glasgow yesterday.

Dispatches received here quote Mrs. Lloyd-George as saying that the success of the capaign defdepended upon women.

"It is the duty of women to help te victims of alcoholism at home as it was to help the victims of Prussianism in Belgium five years ago," Mrs. Lloyd George is reported to have said. "Scotland is on the eve of a great campaign and next year the eyes of temperance reformers throughout the world will be focussed on Scotland. If Scotland is won, the victory will be a great stimulus to the world to do likewise."

CLEMENCEAU COINS EPIGRAMS IN SPEECH

(The Constitution—London Times—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1919.)

Paris, October 14.—Premier Clemenceau's recent speech on the peace treaty, contained two epigrams. One was:

"If France gives up large families you may put into your treaties the finest article you like, you will do in vain whatever you like. France will be lost because there won't be any more Frenchmen."

The second was:

"The future of the German empire is not in water, as it use to be, but under the water."

Washington, October 15.—The prohibition enforcement bill was signed today by Vice-President Marshall and Speaker Gillett for immediate transmission to President Wilson. The president will have 10 days to sign it. Should he fail to act within that time, it automatically would become a law without his signature.

Announcement has been made at the white house that the bill would be returned to Attorney General Palmer for an opinion as to its constitutionality before any executive

Captivating Mitzi Appears In "Head Over Heels" Tonight

Boyd Marshall and the ensemble of fascinating femininity with Mitzi in "Head Over Heels," Atlanta theater tonight and for balance of week, with Saturday matinee.

In the new play with music, "Head Over Heels," in which Henry W. Savage will present gay little Mitzi to the Atlanta theater tonight and for the balance of the week, with matinee Saturday, she is praised as the sauciest of characters in the tights and spangles of a little foreign acrobat. In pursuit of a lost love she comes to America with the troupe of "brothers and sisters" who all had different "papas and mammas." And when she finds the affection was not real and her dreams fade away the momentarily crushed little "topmount girl" builds a new pyramid of love, up which she climbs.

In the story are mingled laughter and the tears of the variety performer's life and a delicate contrast of the world of smart society.

"Head Over Heels" is announced to come with the supporting cast of metropolitan players that has received much praise. Among the principals are Joe Keno, who played the leading comedy role in "Have a Heart" last season. With Rose Green, he formerly was a vaudeville headliner billed as "Keno and Green," and in addition to playing their roles, they will present their whirlwind dance specialties. Paul Kerr, well remembered as the jovial and inebriated Italian singer of "Twin Beds" and in other comedies; Ruth Oswald, the lyric soprano; Rebekah Cauble, Boyd Marshall, the grand opera baritone; Dorothy Lamar, Joseph Daniels, Harry Child, a troupe of five acrobats and an ensemble of girls much praised as unusual in beauty and intelligence.

The music of "Head Over Heels" is by the favorite Jerome Kern, and a half dozen of the number have become widely known since the first success of the work early last season, "The Big Show," "Funny Little Something," "Head Over Heels" and the "March Militaire" being the best known. The book and lyrics of the quaint story are by Edgar Allan Woolf. The standard Henry W. Savage quality is also evidenced in the names of George Marion and Julian Mitchell as the geniuses who made the production ready for the stage and the best among the Joseph Urban scenic art settings is shown in the sunken garden scene of the last act. A crowded house is certain to greet Mr. Savage's popular little star.

"So Long Letty."

(Coming to the Atlanta Theater.)

Oliver Morosco, the theatrical producer, has employed a novel idea in the stage settings for "So Long Letty," the musical comedy which comes again to the Atlanta theater next Monday night for an engagement of three nights and Wednesday matinee. On the Pacific coast, just outside San Francisco, is a little colony called Carville. The homes, in the shape of attractive little bungalows, are converted horse cars which have outlived their usefulness and which cost practically nothing to their new owners. The exterior of two of these carbungalows form the setting for the first act of "So Long Letty," and the interior of one of them is used for the second. The play deals with California and is of California even to the extent of bringing a chorus here from the Golden West. Seats go on sale Friday morning.

NOT SICK AND NOT WELL

In the Peculiar Situation Described, ZIRON Iron Tonic Is Found Helpful.

It often happens that the organs of your body do not function properly, for some reason or other. There is nothing really wrong, and you are not sick. But certainly you are not well, either.

If you are in such a condition, read what Mr. Wm. M. Bass, Rt. 1, Crossville, Ala., did, and try Ziron Iron Tonic, as he did. Mr. Bass says:

"I am nearly always pretty well and strong and do not need much medicine excepting for headaches. But, recently, when I had not been feeling very well for a while, I knew I needed some sort of medicine to make me all right.

"I took Ziron and it made me strong and well again."

Ziron puts iron into the blood, and, by doing this, may prevent a serious attack of illness, which you are liable to "catch" at any time if your system is weakened or your condition below par.

Ziron has well proven its value as a tonic. Try it when you feel the least bit out of sorts, not quite as good as usual, tired and weary.

Your druggist sells Ziron on a money-back guarantee.—(adv.)

STOMACH ON A STRIKE

"Pape's Diapepsin" puts Sour, Gassy, Acid Stomachs in order at once!

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sick, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented and turned sour; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food—just eat a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin to help neutralize acidity and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless antacid is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs so little at drug stores.—(adv.)

CHURCH TO FIGHT OVER THE LEAGUE

Southern Delegations Will Try to Force Episcopal Convention to Take Strong Stand for League of Nations.

Detroit, Mich. October 15.—Determined that the triennial general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church shall take a more definite stand on the league of nations issue, southern delegations are marshaling their forces against the resolution adopted by the house of bishops that the United States enter into "a covenant of nations."

Dr. G. Gordon Smeade, of Jackson, Miss., characterizing the resolution, which was fathered by Bishop Chauncey B. Brewster, of Connecticut, as "spineless, colorless and meaningless," declared today that he will wage a fight to prevent its adoption in the house of deputies. With him are aligned the southern delegation, almost solid, he stated. Dr. Smeade has before the house of deputies a resolution indorsing the league of nations covenant in its present form.

Ostensibly to prevent delay in legislative action of the house of deputies because of the heavy program yet untouched, a proposal that there be no debate on the league of nations was made and approved today, 307 to 118. Presentation of further resolutions, however, will be permitted.

Dr. Smeade declared this action, "established a dangerous precedent in muzzling freedom of speech," and said the league isse is above politics, "the greatest issue before the world today, the greatest document that ever emanated from the mind of man."

$100,000,000 for Missions.

The board of missions today asked the convention to authorize a campaign among the church membership for pledges to finance the church work extension program, to cost an undetermined amount that probably will reach $100,000,000. Consideration of the details of the program is expected to occupy the attention of the convention several days.

The program interprets the work of the church in this country in relation to five major groups of people, the Indians, negroes, isolated mountaineers of the Appalachians, peoples of the rural districts and foreign-born and their children. For negro work it is proposed to spend in three years $2,174,826. The convention was told one-half the rural population of fifteen million people are without religious affiliations, and intensive work among them is planned.

It is proposed to spend $1,500,000 in Americanization work in cooperation with the federal department of the interior This includes special projects for reaching each of the alien nationalities in this country. Community centers, experimental stations, classes in "patriotic education," and development of social service are planned among them.

For educational work it is proposed to expend more than $3,300,000 on new buildings, college equipment, theological schools, scholarships and work among students. It is proposed to spend another $600,000 to meet the present social unrest.

Latin-American Work.

Two million dollars will be spent in extending Latin-American church work, including a campaign against "existing evils." More than half a million dollars will be spent in Brazil and the same amount in Cuba. In Porto Rico, it is proposed to spend $370,000; in Hawaii and San Domingo, $190,000; in Mexico, $250,000, and in the Virgin islands, $35,000.

Nine and a half millions will be expended in other foreign fields, including Alaska, China, Japan, the Philippines and Liberia. Nearly $4,500,000 will go to China and $4,150,000 to Japan. Hundreds of schools, hospitals and mission buildings are projected in those lands.

Saloon substitutes for men, housing and social centers for girls and women and vacation homes will call for the expenditure of $1,200,000 in this country. Extension of social, religious and educational work for women is on the program. In the United States alone 1,930 new projects are planned at a cost of more than $20,000,000, in addition to which a large amount will be used in increasing preachers' salaries, according to the plan.

"Ministry of Healing."

The house of deputies today authorized the appointment of a commission to consider fuller recognition by the church of "the ministry of healing and the need of its revival," in connection with the visit here of James Moore Hickson, church of England exponent of apostolic healing of disease by "laying on of hands."

"Church member" is to be defined, if a proposal to consider as members "all persons baptized" in the church, made in the house of deputies today, is adopted. It is stated this would increase the record membership of the church perhaps from 25 to 50 per cent.

It is generally believed by convention members that the cause of women's enfranchisement in church legislative activities will receive favorable action this year. The house of bishops today deferred, until the house of deputies shall act, consideration of the proposal to admit women as delegates in the latter house. Women now sit in many diocesan meetings.

The house of bishops adopted a resolution to close the convention on October 24.

Suffragan bishops elected by dioceses will hereafter be given a vote as well as a seat in the house of bishops. Provision was made by the house of bishops for shorter Old Testament lessons and action of the house of deputies providing that three tables of scriptural lessons be placed on trial with the next convention was concurred in. hTese are steps toward a settled lectionary.

CONFIDENCE VOTE FOR CLEMENCEAU

Premier's Ministry Sustained in Deputies by 324 to 132—Brand Led the Opposition Forces.

Paris, October 15.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Clemenceau ministry was sustained in the chamber of deputies this afternoon by a vote of 324 to 132. The premier thus victoriously emerged from the bitterest and best organized assault which the ministry had ever faced. The chamber adopted the cabinet's policy on the chronological order of the elections, placing the legislative elections first, on November 11, and the senatorial and municipal elections in that order.

For the first time Aristide Briand, the former premier, came out openly in leading the opposition forces, but M. Clemenceau's majority was the largest he had ever received when the question of confidence was presented.

Preparations had been going on for months for this test of strength, the opposition awaiting the ratification of the peace treaty to make a definite onslaught on the ministry.

Premier Clemenceau had a bitter oratorical duel with M. Briand. The result of the vote makes it positive that M. Clemenceau's platform will go before the people, his opponents' avowed intention of forcing a postponement of the mandate of the chamber having failed. In his speech M. Clemenceau never was in better form.

The debate was preceded by a turbulent scene caused by the attempt of Deputy Paul Meunier to talk on a resolution postponing discussion of the date of elections, the deputy declaring the question ought not to be discussed with the present cabinet. He attacked Premier Clemenceau savagely, bringing in the name of the premier's brother, Albert Clemenceau, who M. Meunier declared, was attorney for the Austrian banker, Rosenberg, who fled from Paris at the outbreak of the war.

The greater part of the chamber hooted the speaker, even the galleries joining in, which is most unusual. Only after 30 minutes' pandemonium could the chamber proceed with the debate.

FILLED STOMACH WITH LOT OF JUNK TO KILL HIMSELF

Boston, October 15.—Discovery of a "human junk heap" was announced by officers of the house of correction at Deer Island today. Charles W. Bussell, of Montreal, serving a sentence of one year for forgery, complained of indigestion.

A surgical operation resulted in the recovery of two pounds of miscellaneous articles from his stomach. The collection, Dr. C. L. Rockwell said, included parts of a dog chain two feet long, a safety razor blade nearly whole, a suspender buckle and 179 fragments or pieces of glass, hay wire, staples, nails and screws. Relieved of these substances, Bussell has almost entirely recovered, it is said.

The prisoner had been accumulating the collection with suicidal intent, according to Dr. Rockwell, since last December. He had previously made a similar cumulative attempt to end his life, but it was frustrated by an operation performed in New York, he said.

Bussell told the surgeons that he was a former clergyman, having held several pastorates in Canada, and had been convicted of worthless check operations in Michigan, New York and New Jersey.

FAMOUS READING JAIL IS SOON TO BE CLOSED

(The Constitution—London Times—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1919.)

London, October 14.—Reading jail is to be closed in about a month. At present there are only five prisoners, and no criminal has been housed there since the war began. They have been sent to Oxford instead.

The presnt building is about 70 years old. It was here that Oscar Wilde wrote the "Ballad of Reading Gaol," and part of "De Profundis."

FOOTWEAR PRICES DUE FOR TUMBLE AFTER CHRISTMAS

New York, October 15.—Footwear prices are due for a tumble * * * in fact they have dropped 20 per cent since the middle of August, and are going to take still another drop after Christmas. J. Frank McElwain, president of the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' association, said in an address before the middle states shoe wholesalers' association here today.

Mr. McElwain said the consumer should notice these declines beginning next April, as the shoe now being manufactured will not be marketed until that time. He said a falling off in the demand from Europe partly was responsible for the reduction.

Legal Inquiry Barred Regarding the Killing Of Five Men in a Riot

Charlotte, N. C., October 15.—No legal inquiry can be made into the deaths of five men shot and killed in the car barn riot here several weeks ago, either by a coroner's jury or the state, it was determined today at a conference attended by State Attorney General Manning, District Solicitor Wilson, County Attorney Canseler and counsel representing families of the men killed. Attorney's representing the families concurred in the opinion of the officials, but it was intimated by them individual police officers who repulsed the mob and who are accused by the disaffected element with having been responsible for the shooting, would be prosecuted on warrants drafted by friends of the dead men or their relatives.

COLORED EDUCATOR DIED ON MONDAY

News was received in Atlanta Wednesday of the death of Rev Horace Bumstead, at his home in Intervale, N. H., on Monday, October 14.

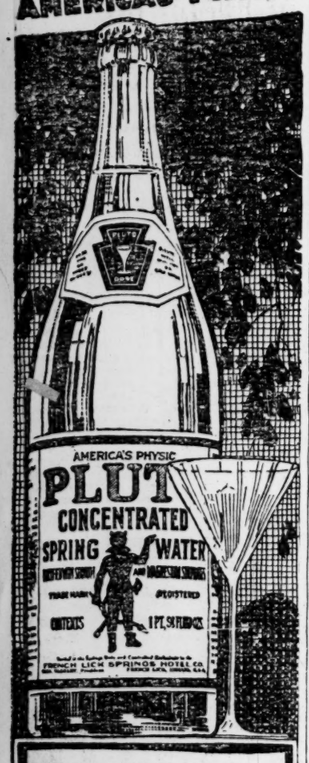

Rev. Bumstead was connected with the Atlanta university for 30 years, first as professor. After the death of the founder of the university, Edmund A. Ware, father of the present president, Edward T Ware, Rev. Bumstead was president of the university. In his death the colored people have lost one of their staunchest friends. He is survived by his wife, two sons and a daughter.

Waycross Farming.

Waycross, October 15.—(Special.)—There is every indication that there will be greater agricultural activity in the Waycross territory next year than ever before. Several farms have recently changed hands and in every case the purchaser is a man who knows how to make money out of the ground. Other farmers who have been operating small farms are preparing to clear new land, many of them making purchases of stump-pullers and arranging for blowing ditches with dynamite.

There will be a large acreage of tobacco planted next year and the acreage in cucumbers and other vegetabl crops will be more than double what it was this year. The canning factory will open next week for canning sweet potatoes and it will also be in the market next spring for a variety of vegetables which will be put into cans.

Your Physician Prescribes It

Sprays and Local Application Will Not Cure Catarrh.

Don't deceive yourself, if by the persistent use of sprays, douches, salves and other local applications, you have stopped the discharge from your nose and throat. The trouble will return in a more aggravated form.

It is said that the glands of the nose and throat act as an "emergency plug for the human sewage system"; that when the kidneys, skin and lungs are unable to properly dispose of some of the impurities that collect in those organs, such impurities are thrown out through the glands of the nose and throat.

Head colds, due to exposure, must not be confused with that chronic, aggravated condition of the nose and throat traceable to impure blood.

The best way to relieve this condition of chronic catarrh is by cleansing the blood of all the impurities that have collected in the system. There is no better treatment than Prescription C-2223, the great blood purifier. This reliable alterative prescription treatment corrects the impure state of the blood, gives the tissues an opportunity to exercise their normal function and results in the relief of the catarrhal condition so dangerous to good health.

To secure the best results in taking Prescription C-2223, the liver should be made active and the bowels regular. 2223 Liver Pills are recommended especially for this purpose. These pills do not sicken or gripe. One pill is a dose and only three need be taken a week to keep the liver and bowels in a healthy condition.

Prescription C-2223 can be supplied you by any good druggist in large bottles for $1.50; the Pills for 25c; or the 2223 Laboratory, Memphis, Tenn., will mail both postpaid on receipt of $1.75. Samples of the Liver Pills and leaflet regarding Prescription C-2223 will be sent you without charge on receipt of this clipping with name and address.

Suits at $49.50---Fashionable and Fine!

Over One Hundred of Them and Forty Are Brand-New and Specially Priced

WE'LL deal with the forty new ones first. They represent an odd lot a manufacturer had—a few of this style—a few of that. He grouped them all together in one lot and sold them at a price 'way below what he had been getting for them—and we were the lucky ones!

—The more you examine these suits, the more enthusiastic you become over them, for they're quality inside and out. Linings are of Pussy Willow or satin. Plain or figured. Materials are of soft, fine woolen fabrics—silvertones, plain tricotines and tricotines flecked with silver. Some of the styles are in the new rippling effect with body fitting snug as snug as can be and bursting suddenly into flaring ripples at the hips. Others are in wanted belted modes. The colors are navy, plum, oxford gray, brown, red, horizon blue and French blue.

—The other sixty suits are of tricotine, fine French serge, checked velour and chiffon broadcloth. Many of them have collars and trimming of Hudson seal. They're fashioned in belted, semi-blouse and semi-tailored styles. Lined with fine silk linings—plain or figured.

—For the woman who wants faultless style and high quality, too, at a moderate price, these are the suits!

Hand Made Blouses

With Stitches as Tiny as Our Own Great Grandmothers Used to Make

—Yes, Ma'am, we mean it! Just examine them yourselves if you don't believe it. The stitches are so beautifully fine you can hardly see them. Even the laces are hand made and they're whipped on so finely that they look as though they grew there.

—French blouses? No, guess again! They're made by clever needle women of our own nationality, though they're exquisite enough to have come across the water.

—Fashioned of the finest of fine batiste. Sometimes the fronts show drawn work, sometimes they're trimmed with hand made filet or touches of hand embroidery. Some have pleated jabot frills or fine little hand run tucks.

—They're dainty as only hand made blouses can be, and women who appreciate fine needlework will adore them.

—Priced all the way from $6.50 to $25.

SITUATION AT RIGA APPARENTLY IN DOUBT

Savage Fighting Is Reported to Be in Progress and It Is Said British Warships Are Taking Part.

London, October 15.—It is generally recognized that the fall of Orel and Tula would mean that Moscow was doomed. There is still uncertainty about the position at Riga. According to the report of a German officer at Mitau, Colonel Avaloff Bermondt, commanding the Russo-German forces, is not aiming at the capture of Riga, but desires only to secure the Dvina front against Moscow.

It seems that the Lettish commander has refused a second offer of an armistice by Colonel Avaloff Bermondt and that 6,000 Esthonian reinforcements have arrived and fighting around Riga continues vigorously. Another report credits the Poles with having started an offensive against the Germans and captured Kovno.

The Westminster Gazette, commenting editorially today on the mystifying situation arising out of the German activities at Riga, points out that numerous disturbing rumors are current, especially one to the effect that the German general, Kraus, lately commanding part of the Ukrainian anti-bolshevig army, had joined Denekine "in consideration of Denekine's undertaking to wrest eastern Galicia and the province of Chelm from Poland and incorporate them in Russia."

The paper also points to the attempt to assassinate Herr Haase, leader of the independent socialists, on the eve of a speech which, report has it, would have revealed the complicity of the German government in a Russian plot with Kolchak and Denekine. It calls attention to the fact that Ukrainia has declared war on Denekine and to the evident suspicions of all the Russian border states regarding the entente's intentions toward their independent status.

The Gazette admits that the whole thing is incoherent and urges that the situation demands full explanation from the government, a contention which is also voiced by other newspapers.

OREL IS CAPTURED BY GEN. DENEKINE; MOSCOW IN PERIL

London, October 15.—General Denekine's anti-bolshevik army has captured the important city of Orel, together with thousands of prisoners and enormous quantities of material, it is announced in advices received here today.

"Orel was entered after many days of fierce fighting in which several red divisions were defeated. The townspeople welcomed the troops, falling on their knees and calling out, 'Christ is risen.' East of Orel our troops debouched on the line Preobrazhenskoe-Turemeff."

The communique further reports a series of successes at various points along the front, in which some 6,000 prisoners and a number of guns were captured and in one instance an entire division was broken up. North of Pavolsk, on the Don, 225 miles southeast of Orel, the enemy was flung across the River Oseredo, and 1,500 prisoners and eight machine guns taken. At Ust Medviedditzkaya, on the lower Don, 100 miles northwest of Tzaritzyn, the bolsheviki were driven back in confusion along distance and finally the enemy infantry was dispersed.

Cossack troops in the upper Don region forced a crossing of the left bank of the river on a wide front and captured 1,100 prisoners and a battery. The staff of one of the Cossack troops in the Krivutchy region dispersed a division of enemy troops and captured 3,000 prisoners, five guns and a number of machine guns.

While Orel is 283 miles south of Moscow, possession of the city will give General Denekine a secure hold on vast stretches of territory in old Russia, as the place is one of the most important railway centers south of the present Russian capital.

NORTHWEST ARMY NEAR PETROGRAD.

Stockholm, October 15.—The northwestern Russian army is reported here to have pushed some 35 miles beyond Yamburg, which it captured recently, and to be within 20 miles of Gatchina which is only 30 miles southwest of Petrograd. The taking of 1,500 prisoners and nine guns from the bolsheviki is announced. Confidence is expressed among the officers Petrograd will fall before the attack.

In fighting, the Red army is making use of mines to a great extent, blowing up the roads everywhere while retreating.

At Yamburg both officers and men taken prisoner are declared to have been pleased at their capture and the morale of the forces as a whole is described as poor.

Bolshevik literature, the advices state, was allowed to circulate among the anti-bolshevik forces, which is commented upon as significant of the confidence of the officers, in their men.

An armored train named "Lenine" and several armored automobiles, as well as eighty railway cars, were among the material captured at Yamburg.

CRISIS IS FACED BY BOLSHEVIKI.

London, October 15.—With General Denekine's cossack army advancing from the south and the northwestern Russian forces almost within striking distance of Petrograd, the soviet government of Russia appears to be facing a crisis. Bolshevik headquarters at Petrograd were closed last Thursday, according to a dispatch to the Daily Mail from Reval.

The northwestern Russian army has apparently crashed through the bolsheviki over a wide front. Pskov has been captured and it is believed that the forces under General Rudenitch also have taken the important town of Luga, about 85 miles southwest of Petrograd. The capture of Yamburg, 75 miles from Petrograd, was reported on Monday, and latest dispatches indicate the line of advance to be nearly 125 miles in length.

On the south the Denekine troops appear to have approached quite near the town of Tula, which is considered the key to Moscow from that side. A dispatch received here says that if Tula falls to the Cossacks the bolshevik commissaries will flee into Turkestan, taking advantage of a gap between the Denekine and Kolchak forces in the Volga valley.

BITTER FIGHTING RAGING AT RIGA; MANY ARE KILLED

Copenhagen, October 15.—Savage fighting is still going on in the city of Riga between Lettish and Lithuanian troops and the German-Russian army which entered the western part of the city last week. Reports reaching here state shells have fired a portion of the town and that great damage has been done to the quays and harbor. Many civilians have been killed during battle.

Dispatches received here state that all the prisoners taken by the Letts have been Bavarians.

British warships have become involved in the fighting, having been fired upon by the German-Russian forces, and an unconfirmed report declares a British force has been landed in or near the city.

Blockade measures are seemingly being rigidly enforced in the Baltic, six German merchant ships having been captured by one British destroyer.

POLES STRIKE AT GERMANS.

Stockholm, October 15.—The Poles have begun an offensive against the German-Russian forces in the Baltic region, according to a message received here from Riga. They are reported to have captured Kovno, 60 miles northwest of Vilna, near the Courland border.

GERMANS JOIN RUSSIAN ARMY.

Berlin, October 15.—According to The Zeitung Am Mittag, about one-third of the German army in the Baltic states is obeying the evacuation order. It is assumed in political circles that these troops will complete the evacuation by the end of the week.

Of the other 25,000 men, says the newspaper, two-thirds have been transferred to the Russian service.

DISTRIBUTES BUTTONS TO BOOST PRODUCTION

"I am producing more," is the legend borne by the buttons being distributed in Atlanta to employers of labor, as a part of a nationwide plan that was originated by J. F. Trazzare, secretary of the Atlanta Employers' association.

Mr. Trazzare says that the purpose in the movement, which he introduced at the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World at New Orleans, is to keep the necessity of increased production in all lines before the eyes of the workers.

Mr. Trazzare is directing the distribution of the buttons in Atlanta, and the movement has been indorsed by many local civic organizations.

"Whether it be capital or labor, autocracy cannot be permitted to exist and Americans will never submit to any such dictation. We must be prepared to face the new menace that has arisen in the midst of our commercial and industrial prosperity. Our factories are swamped with orders, but this proposed labor autocracy threatens us.

"Labor must be given to understand that it cannot stand at our door and say who shall and who shall not enter."

CIGARETTES For Your Health

Cigarettes are now being made without either tobacco or cubebs They contain fragrant and soothing medicinal herbs which smoke perfectly. This medicated vapor is inhaled; then exhaled through lips or nose, with real contentment.

Not only does the smoker have more pleasure but there is a valuable remedial benefit. First, let it be known that these cigarettes are an aid in warding off influenza and colds. Second, they are purposed to give relief in throat irritations, hoarseness, catarrh of the head or throat and in stopping those roarings, buzzings, or other head noises and in reducing deafness of which colds and catarrh are the cause. Do not confuse these with the cubeb or other similar cigarettes. No nicotine—nothing habit-forming. No nervousness. Cost no more than other kinds of cigarettes and at same time you have a health-benefiting delightful smoke.

At the drug store ask for Dr Blosser's Cigarettes. Or you may buy it in pipe mixture or for burning on a holder (which women often prefer); but the main thing is to get a box now and enjoy a delightful surprise. If you desire a trial package send 10 cents (silver or stamps) to the Blosser Co., SA-11, Atlanta, Ga

AMUSEMENTS

Change of Bill.

(At Loew's Grand.)

An entire change of program is in effect at Loew's Grand today and for the balance of the week. Among the acts that are included in the all star bill are Rhoda and Crampton, who have an artistic operatic song cycle, "Aspiration," which is in two scenes and an offering that has won success wherever it has been presented. Morris and Sherwood, in their impressions of the southern negro is a number full of songs and comedy. Harry Holden and Lucy Herron in "The Billposter" bring a very clever comedy skit. The show is opened by Juggling DeLisle and closed by Dyer, Rogers and Bell in a variety of vaudeville doings.

Heading the screen attractions is William Russell, who appears as the star of the romantic drama, "Sacred Silence." Loew's Weekly and new screen comedies will also be shown on the silver sheet.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Lyric.)

Have you ever attended a Monday morning rehearsal of a vaudeville show when the various acts gather to make sure that everything will be right for the afternoon performance? If not, you will have your chance when Lew Madden and his company show you all these things in the new bill at the Lyric today. There are four other good acts.

"Common Property."

(At Tudor Theater.)

Eighteen years of happy married life and then the soul chilling news that he must register his beautiful wife and his daughter as common property to Russian anarchists.

That is the situation that confronted Pavel Pavlovitch, a Russian who had found an American wife, a comfortable fortune and was enjoying peace and happiness in his native land.

"Common Property" is the title of a new Universal photodrama which is being shown at the Tudor theater with Robert Anderson in the leading role. The production was directed by Paul Powell. Neil Craig and Johnnie Cook are seen in the supporting cast.

Viola Dana.

(At the Rialto.)

Suppose you had been married or thought you had been. Then you went to a swell inn and to your rooms, and the future seemed rosy enough for the most modern of honeymoons. And then you received telegraph and telephone messages telling you that your marriage for some reason or other was not legal. What would you do? This is the situation which faces the young lovers in "Please Get Married," which is now being played at the Rialto theater by Viola Dana, aided by excellent support. It is a comedy, rich and racy, and one that is a scream from start to finish. You will enjoy it throughout and leave the theater feeling much better than when you entered.

Marguerite Clarke.

(At the Forsys.)

What is the difference between a "bachelor girl" and an "old maid?" Perhaps you will say the former is a polite term for the latter, but it doesn't work out that way in "Widow by Proxy," the new Paramount-Artcraft photoplay starring Marguerite Clark, now at the Forsyth theater. Although Gloria Grey, the role played by Miss Clark in the picture, is an unmarried woman of Marriageable age, you wouldn't think of calling such a dainty little woman an "old maid!" When she masquerades as Dolores Pennington, the supposed widow of a soldier, and pulls the wool over the sharp eyes of a pair of typical Massachusetts spinsters, you know she is far and away out of their class.

June Caprice.

(At the Strand.)

Given a story with the heart touch, with a sub-plot of high finance; play it with actors of intelligence, under the stage direction of a master hand, and there one finds the germ of box office success. All these attributes apparently are included in "The Love Cheat," at the Strand today. Albert Capellani makes the production, which is released through the house of Pathe. The cast includes the stars, Creighton Hale and June Caprice, fresh from their success in "Oh, Boy!" another Capellani-Pathe hit; Alfred Hickman, the original Little Billie in "Trilby;" Edward Davis and Charles Coleman. The story is an adaptation by Peggy McCall of a French play, which had great vogue in Paris under the title "Le Danseur Inconnu."

Dustin Farnum in Thrilling Role at Criterion Theater

"A Man's Fight," which comes to the Criterion today, has been pronounced one of the strongest starring vehicles provided for Dustin Farnum to date, a testimony to which Mr. Farnum himself has subscribed. It presents this big screen and stage star in a novel and notable role in which he lays aside for the nonce his ofttime garb of cowboy and is seen in business suit and evening dress.

Foremost of present-day actors, Dustin Farnum brings his virile personality with a new and keener zest to the novelty of a role which his versatility and long training on the stage enable him to make stand out with a prominence beyond any characterization he has attempted in the past.

From the moment of the physical fight when the hero detects his sister's suitor cheating at cards in the club, that other fight—a fight for good name, honor, leadership, distinction, and best of all, for a woman's love, begins. Through the swiftly-moving scenes in the luxury of a New York mansion, through the solitary confinement of Sing Sing penitentiary and thence out to the breezy vastness of the west, the action sweeps along with never-halting grip of interest.

The picture is a masterly production, taking high rank in the special class, and is in five reels of stirring eevnt, including spectacular scenes of political mass meetings, terrific tornado, feats of horsemanship and the beautiful and hitherto unscreened setting of the San Juan Capistrano mission, which last adds dignity and artistic value to the production.

Women Advised To Use Vote Wisely By Mrs. Pankhurst

How women may make the best useof suffrage now that it is an accomplished fact, make the vote most helpful to their sex and to civilization, was the topic developed convincingly by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst at the luncheon given here under the auspices of the central committee of women citizens at the Piedmont hotel Wednesday.

With an earnestness enhanced by the charm of her manner, Mrs. Pankhurst told very explicitly of some of the definite things which women can do to make their votes a constructive force in society. She warned against a loss of faith in the ballot.

"Now that women have gained the vote for which many of us were willing to die, if necessary, some want to say that voting is no good, but I want to insist that the old democratic methods of the majority ruling by the vote ought to be adhered to until women rave had a chance to see what they can do through this means of expression."

Must End Class War.

One thing that women learned in the fight for suffrage, she said, was the necessity of doing away with class war, to break down class dissions of women is to put an end to class war, to break down class dis? tinctions. Motherhood isn't a matter of class, neither are the many problems which concern women as a whole, and for the solution of which women must work together."

She spoke of the law in England which makes girls marriageable at 12, and makes it possible for a child to have only one legal parent. "Those are some of the things we women expect to change. We intend to see that the father shares with the mother responsibility for the child."

Women can understand best the problem of housing which now confronts all big industrial settlements, Mrs. Pankhurst declared, and women are those who do the principal work of healing and alleviating suffering, and should turn their attention to public health in all its aspects. With the vote their efforts along those lines can be more effective, she stated.

Want Equal Opportunity

"We want protective legislation for the young and old," Mrs. Pankhurst explained, speaking as an economist as well as a woman, "those who are weak and dependent, but for women we want equal opportunity."

She told then of her eldest daughter's having been graduated in a law class; of having excelled all the with whom she tied for first honmen studying with her, except oners, yet she was unable to practice her profession in England because of the discrimination against women.

Mrs. Pankhurst was gracefully introduced by Mrs. Eleonore Raoul, chairman of the central committee, and the occasion assembled a most distinguished group of Atlanta women prominent in society and suffrage work.

ELABORATE ADORNMENT WORN IN GORDON FILM

Apropos of the elaborate gowns and costly wardrobe which it is announced Kitty Gordon displays in her latest screen superfeature, "Playthings of Passion," the following items culled from an authentic list is of interest to feminine readers: Miss Gordon wears in one scene an ermine cloak valued at $15,000 and accompanying the ermine in this scene is a fan of ostrich plumes priced at $5,000. In the same picture this popular actress' neck is adorned by a rope of pearls said to have cost Miss Gordon $100,000.

Many of Miss Gordon's gowns are of her own designing. On one in particular in her present screen play Miss Gordon sets great store. It is of an exquisite shade of turquoise. The foundation is of satin, the bodice of heavy silk fringe caught over the shoulders with a tiny band of rhinestones. In front it is caught at the waist with a girdle of soft shaded velvet flowers. The skirt is formed of rows of deep fringe and clings to the figure.

A hat with bird of paradise feathers costing $1,000; earrings valued at $20,000; a pin with fifteen diamonds of over two karats in weight and thirty smaller stones; a diamond lavalliere with garnet center; a gold mesh bag priced at $2,500, and a sable coat bought for $25,000 are among the astonishing adornments revealed by Miss Gordon in "Playthings of Passion."

DENEKINE REPORTED REDOUBLING EFFORTS

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1919.)

London, October 15.—(Special cable).—General Denekine, according to information received tonight, spurred by the imminence of winter, is redoubling his efforts in the direction of Moscow.

Since its offensive began in May, his volunteer army has covered two-thirds of the distance to the ancient capital of Russia, the strong hold of bolshevism, with the capture of Orel. General Denekine is now only 200 miles from his objective. Bolshevists realibe their danger and a wireless message admits the abandonment of Orel and states they are making preparations for the defense of Moscow.

SOUTH'S GROCERS ATTACK PACKERS

Alleged That Packers, by Pull on Railroads, Are Driving Grocers Out of Business — Edgar Watkins Appears for the Grocers.

Memphis, October 15.—Testimony alleging discrimination in behalf of the big packers by the railroads, and citizens of specific instances in which it was asserted the wholesale grocers of the south were placed at a disadvantage in competitive selling marked today's oppositions of the hearing before W. P. Bartel, examiner of the interstate commerce commission, of the case of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' association against 2,400 common carriers and Director General Hines of the railroad administration.

Use by the packers of the peddler refgrigerator cars for transportation of groceries with meats and special advantages alleged to be enjoyed by the packers in the routing and movement of these cars formed the basis of the grocers' objections.

R. M. Hobbie, wholesale grocer, and M. M. Caskie, general manager of the transportation bureau of the chamber of commerce, both of Montgomery, with Morgan Richards, secretary of the chamber of commerce of Selma, Ala., were the witnesses heard at the afternoon session, the entire morning being taken up with the testimony of Dr. Lewis H. Haney, of Jacksonville, Fla., director of the bureau of research and publicity of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' association.

Hearing to Be Long.

The hearing is expected to continue several days and to be devoted chiefly to the taking of testimony of the complainants, a hearing at Chicago being set for October 22 to take evidence of the railroads and the packers. The complaint of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' association is similar to one filed by the National Wholesale Grocers' association, with headquarters at Chicago, and the hearing here is being attended by Ralph Merriam, one of the attorneys of that organization, who is expected to aid the complainants at the hearing there.

Besides asking for a ruling by the interstate commerce commission to put the grocers and the packers on the same basis in regard to transportation facilities, the grocers' organization is asking damages of $500,00 0of the railroads for alleged loss of business resulting from the privileges said to be accorded the packers.

Edgar Watkins, of Atlanta, Ga., former interstate commerce commission examiner, is representing the grocers' association as its attorney, while the packers and several of the larger railroads have eight legal representatives. A number of traffic and transportation experts from various parts of the country also are attending.

It was alleged by witnesses today that foodstuffs and other articles handled by the grocers are carried in the privately-owned refrigerator, or peddler cars, with meats and other perishables and distributed along the route to customers of the packers. One rate from point of origin to final destination with addition only of $5 stopover charges and expedited movement as a result of the perishable contents of the cars are thus obtained by the packers, the witnesses asserted. In effect, it was said, the packers get car lot rats on less than carload shipments and because of this can sell at lower prices and give more regular delivery service to the retailers along the routes.

Much of the complainants' testimony was entered on the records over the protests of the opposing attorneys.

Peddler Cars Given Advantage.

Mr. Hobbie, in his testimony, asserted the peddler cars are being given service by the railroads virtually equal to that of passenger traffic. He cited specific instances to bear out his allegations that the packers are given advantages of speedy and regular service not enjoyed by the grocers. Part of Mr. Hobbie's testimony was stricken from the records because he refused to divulge the source of his information.

The packers' peddler car moves "regardless of local freight train service," Mr. Hobbie asserted, citing an alleged instance where a through freight train on the Seaboard Air Line railway stopped while part of the contents of a packers' car was removed so it could "proceed to Americus, Ga., without delay."

Mr. Hobbie declared the grocers want to meet the packers on a fair competitive basis. He declared that at present the packers are able to give retailers within a radius of 50 or 60 miles of Montgomery better service from St. Louis than his firm could provide.

Statements made by Mr. Hobbie were supplemented by Mr. Caskie, who presented several exhibits and listed many articles he said are being sold by the packers and delivered in their peddler cars which belong under the head of groceries. The packers' privilege of sending what he termed two less than car load shipments in one car at carload rates with the payment of stopover charges, Mr. Caskie declared, is not enjoyed by any other wholesalers where fresh meats are handled. Mr. Caskie and Mr. Hobbie testified that the wholesale grocers' profit on cheese has been eliminated because of the packers' alleged advantages. No complaint was made by either regarding operation of the branch plants of the packing concerns at Montgomery.

Mr. Richards was the last witness of the day, citing conditions at Selma, where he said the packers have made great inroads into the business of the wholesale grocers.

Packers Getting Monopolies.

Dr. Haney in his testimony this morning said the packers have a virtual monopoly on cheese and other articles and are gradually getting other monopolies as a result of the service given them by the railroads. He presented many exhibits, prepared, he said, on information furnished him by the 1,700 members of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' association. The source of much of Dr. Haney's information brought up many arguments on the part of the attorneys and his testimony frequently was interrupted.

Dr. Haney said that the five big packers have gained 25 per cent of the grocery business in large areas of the country since the war and asserted that there is an apparent effort to "starve out" the wholesale grocer.

Inroads made by the packers on the business of the grocers, Dr. Haney declared, is due to what he termed discriminatory advantages, chiefly through the operations of their privately-owned peddler refrigerator cars, and charged that groceries are being shipped in cars with meat and other perishable products to expedite movement in transit to the detriment of the grocers who must depend on the ordinary movement of freight for the transportation of their goods. Several exhibits were presented in support of the claim that packers are able to make deliveries in the south from northern points in from two to three days, while the grocery jobber must wait between ten and thirty days for his shipments. Dr. Haney charged that preference is given by the railroads in handling shipments made by the packers.

Edgar Watkins for Grocers.

The complaint alleges that by shipping groceries in refrigerator cars with perishable goods, which are handled on faster trains and with greater dispatch than ordinary freight, the packers gain an unfair advantage over members of the association who must depend on slower movement of their freight shipments.

Edgar Watkins, of Atlanta, appeared as attorney for the grocers. J. E. Crosland, of Atlanta, a member of the southern freight classification committee, apnears for the carriers. John Burchmore, Ross Rynder and A. H. Hanker, all of Chicago, represented the packers, and C. J. Rixey of Washington, attended the hearing as attorney for the railroad.

GERMANY'S HELP ASKED BY ALLIES

For Coercion of Soviet Russia—London Admits That Germany Was Asked to Assist.

London, October 15.—In connection with the report from Germany that England had invited Germany to co-operate in the coercion of soviet Russia, the correspondent of the Associated Press learns that a communication of this nature was made to Germany by the peace conference.

The supreme council last Thursday sent a note to Germany and neutral powers inviting them to co-operate in a blockade to soviet Russia, but it was decided not to publish the note until replies had been received, says Reuter's Paris correspondent.

BLOCKADE OPPOSED BY UNITED STATES.

Paris, October 15.—(By the Associated Press.)—The United States did not join with the entente powers in asking Germany to co-operate in a blockade of soviet Russia and the American delegation does not mean American participation in the blockade against Russia in the Baltic, as that country is unwilling to approve the principle of a peaceful blockade and none of the allied and associated powers are actually at war with the soviet government.

When members of the American delegation were asked today if ships from Sweden or other neutral countries could proceed to Russia they replied the ships would probably be turned back by British or French warships Asked if a ship could sail from a United States port for Petrograd they replied the war trade board would not grant clearance papers to such a vessel.

Berlin, October 15.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Kreuz Zeitung learns from "well informed quarters" the government will in all probability agree to join in the blockade of soviet Russia proposed by the entente powers. It is said the government will lay down certain conditions incident to its participation and "will primarily consider Germany's foreign political interests when reaching a decision as to its final attitude."

Special dispatches received from Koenigsburg report commercial and industrial circles there are uneasy because of the fear that a blockade of the Baltic would prove disastrous to east Prussia. That section has been chiefly dependent upon marine time traffic for all supplies since the collapse of railroad service. Only limited quantities of necessaries such as foodstuffs, coal and petroleum can be taken overland at present.

The blockade, it is said, also would prove inimical to commercial relations with border states where, dispatches declare, "England is aspiring to assume a dominating influence."

NEUTRAL NATIONS TO ANSWER ALLIES.

Stockholm, October 15.—The Scandinavian nations are preparing a joint note in reply to the note of the entente regarding the declaration of a blockade against soviet Russia. The Swedish newspapers say that the new blockade declaration is of no practical importance to Scandinavia, as there has been no trading with the soviet sections of Russia since the bolshevik revolution. The only exception, it is said, was in the case of some small vessels with Swedish hardware which sailed for Russia, Sweden receiving in exchange for this merchandise a few cargoes of hemp and flax.

LABOR AUTOCRACY DEATH TO U. S., SAYS CUMMINGS

An autocracy of labor, or an autocracy of any sort means nothing short of a blow at the heart of America, said O. Sam Cummings, of Chicago, international secretary of the Kiwanis clubs, in the address he delivered at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis club Tuesday afternoon at the Kimball house.

Mr. Cummings also discussed the growth of the Kiwanis clubs in the United States, saying that there are now 21,000 Kiwanians, and congratulated the Atlanta club on the success it has made.

In his well chosen remarks on the tendencies of the times, Mr. Cummings said "The people of America have just made tremendous sacrifices of lives and money to crush military autocracy, and now we are called upon to crush autocracy in our own country."

Doctor Said the Kidneys; Nu Vim Fixed Him Up

Badly Run-Down People Need This Iron Tonic.

Jesse E. Harmon of 1823 Sharswood St., Philadelphia, is one of the thousands who cannot say too much for Nu Vim, the great iron tonic that is restoring health to worn out people all over the country. He says, "I was so badly run down that my stomach wouldn't digest my food and gas distressed me greatly after eating. I seemed to have a bad cold, that settled in the lower part of my back, causing much pain. The doctor said it was kidney trouble, but all the medicine he gave me had no effect. A friend suggested that he knew of a number of cases of kidney trouble that Nu Vim had helped and urged me to try it. I got a bottle and now I am sure I am cured. My daughter was all run down, and I induced her to try this wonderful iron tonic with remarkably beneficial results." Now right across the state from Philadelphia lives William J. Wright, a Pittsburg contractor. Mr. Wright, too, suffered much from kidney troubles, and his liver distressed him. Somebody urged him to try Nu Vim, and he writes: "I want to say Nu Vim has been a great comfort to me. After suffering greatly from kidney and liver roubles, I used only four bottles, and found Nu Vim the best medicine on the market, for it fixed me up fine." So many people tell the same kind of a story that you folks who are run down, suffering from stomach and liver troubles, and whose kidneys are not able to throw off the impurities in the blood, are not doing justice to yourself until you use Nu Vim. This wonderful iron tinic, purely vegetable, drives out the poison in your blood and brings the color to your cheeks and the vim of youth to your step. Don't neglect so great an opportunity to enjoy all the benefits of splendid health. Take a bottle home with you today. On sale at Jacobs' eight Drug Stores.—(adv.)

FI. FAS. TO BE ISSUED AGAINST DELINQUENTS

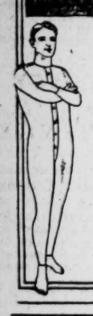

Secretary of State S. Guyt McLendon announced yesterday that he would, immediately after November 1, issue fi fas against all corporations doing business in this state, which had not filed a statement in his office as required by law, accompanied by a registration fee of $1 in the case of new corporations, of 50 cents for renewals.

The law applies to all corporations, domestic and foreign alike, and they have until November 1 in which to file a statement which must show the name, place of incorporation, principal place of business in this state and capital stock. The penalty for non compliance with the law is $50 for each delinquent corporation.

Up to date only about 3,000 of the 6,500 corporations doing business in Georgia have filed the required statement, the secretary of state's office announced yesterday.

ATLANTA ZIONISTS WILL MEET SUNDAY

Atlanta Zionists are to hold a mass meeting in the hall of the Jewish Educational alliance on Sunday, October 19, at 3:30 p. m. At the recent convention of the American Zionists in Chicago, where more than 1,000 Zionist representatives were present, the Atlanta district was represented by three delegates, J. H. Goldstein, L. Breman and Miss Rose Sugarman. These delegates will render their report of the convention at this mass meeting. There will also be a short address by Mrs. Jacobs, from New York, one of the leaders of the Natioanl Hadassah, the women's branch of the Zionist organization. Louis Shapiro, a young Atlantan, who recently returned from Palestine, where he served with the British army in the Jewish legion, will relate some of his interesting experiences. A splendid musical program has been arranged. Private Samuel B. Rosenstein, from Camp Gordon, will render several solos.

All Atlanta Zionists are requested to attend the meeting and also vote in the Zionist election to be held on the same date. The polling places will be in the Jewish Educational alliance, 90 Capitol avenue, and in the Jewish Progressive club on South Pryor street.

"Sow a Character and Reap a Destiny"

No truer words were ever written.

The destiny of any nation or section is wrapped in the character of its citizenship and especially in that of its womanhood.

On the quality of their character depends the training of each new generation.

It is a great college—great in the quality of work it does—but not nearly great enough in size or resources to meet the needs of this section.

Two hundred young momen had to be turned away this fall on account of inadequate facilities.

Its big need is endowment. The present campaign is to raise $500,000 for this.

Your contribution will never be spent. Its income will be a permanent help toward character building—toward giving the opportunity of a higher Christian education to the young womanhood of the South.

SAVINGS STAMPS MADE BY COUNTERFEITERS

Governor Wellborn Issues Warning to All Banks in This District.

Counterfeiters have found a new field of activity. According to reports from the treasury department counterfeits have been discovered in this year's issue of war savings stamps. Departments of the government are at work trying to apprehend the persons responsible for the distribution of the fake reproductions of the little securities.

M. B. Wellborn, governor of the Federal Reserve bank of Atlanta, has notified all banks in the district of the discovery. Silas W. Davis, government director of the war loan organization, the agency having charge of the sale of thrift and war savings stamps in this district, has warned his agents to be on the lookout for the counterfeit stamps. The Georgia Bankers' association also has taken the matter up, requesting members to guard against taking stamps that are not genuine.

Banks and stamp agents and postmasters are requested to hold any parties presenting the counterfeit stamps and to communicate at once with the chief of the United States secret service at Washington. The counterfeits are being attached to genuine certificates. They are a photographic reproduction in good color blue ink, but the fine lines behind the portrait in the genuine appear in solid color in the counterfeit. The perforations of the genuine stamps appear photographed on those which are not genuine.

"Counterfeiters seem to know a good thing when they see it," said Director Davis, "or they would not take the chance of a term in the federal penitentiary by putting out reproductions of war savings stamps. People who are willing to buy war savings stamps at less than their actual value may get 'stung' when they enter into a deal of this kind, because genuine war savings stamps, bought through banks, postoffices and authorized agents of the treasury department, are always worth their full face value, plus accrued interest."

THREE GEORGIANS FOR WEST POINT

Governor Dorsey was in receipt yesterday of a communication from Arjutant General Peter C. Harris, in Washington, informing him that there would be, at least, 48 vacancies at the United States military academy at West Point on June 16, 1920, for men in the national guard of the various states, territories and District of Columbia. These vacancies are to be distributed among the states in proportion to the enisted force of their national guard organizations which have been accepted by the war department.

Mr. Harris says that three candidates have been allotted to Georgia to be filled by appointment of the governor from a list of those who qualitfy at examinations to be held December 1 and 15 of this year. Applicants must be between the ages of 19 and 22 and have served in the national guard at least one year.

Applicants named by the governor will report for the regular examination at West Point to be held in February, 1920.

U. S. JUDGE ASKS FUND FOR TRAINING SCHOOL

An appeal for funds for the maintenance of the National Training School for Colored People, located at Durham, N. C., has been made by J. C. Pritchard, United States circuit judge, of Richmond, Va.

In asking aid for this school, Judge Pritchard states that the school is doing a great work in the molding of proper sentiment which should exist between the white and colored races of the south. It is sending out well trained colored men and women to the various communities of the southern states, teaching lessons of industry, thrift and loyalty. The school is handicapped for funds with which to carry on the work.

"To those who desire to do good and help our country in the making of substantial citizens of the colored people, I suggest the sending of contributions to Dr. James E. Shepard, National Training school, Durham, N. C.," stated Judge Pritchard.

Abrams Resigns.

Brunswick, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—J. B. Abrams, member of council from the second ward and one of the most popular aldermen of the city, has tendered his resignation, requesting that it be accepted at once, but council has deferred action, in the hope of persuading Mr. Abrams to change his mind and serve out his term. A committee from council has been appointed to confer with Mr. Abrams, who has stated that his action in resigning is due solely to the fact that he has not sufficient time to devote to the office. Inasmuch as he has only until January 1 to serve his colleagues will endeavor to have him withdraw the resignation and serve out his term.

Baptist Meet.

Americus, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—Americus Baptists will go en masse next Sunday to attend services at Rehobeth church, three miles west of here on the Dawson highway. The feature of the occasion will be the sermon by W. T. Lane, city attorney here, who will make his debut as a preacher on that date. Lieutenant and Mrs. W. D. Tiedeman and Gordon Howell, soloist, accompanied by the entire choir of Central Baptist church, will assist in the conduct of the services.

MONTREAL PORT HEADS WILL VISIT SAVANNAH

Savannah, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—The harbor commission of Montreal, Canada, will visit the port of Savannah next month, the date to be announced later, to investigate the manner in which the port business is operated here. They will visit Savannah on their homeward trip from Galveston, where they will attend the annual meeting of the American Association of Port Authorities.

Building Changes Hands.

Gainesville, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—J. O. Adams last Friday closed a trade for the Hogue building, on the north side of the square, belonging to Mrs. Annie Comer Quarles, of Seattle, Wash. Consideration was $16,000. The building fronts 30 feet on the square and runs back 90 feet, with a vacant lot in the rear. Mr. Adams will occupy the upstairs as law offices when the lease of the present occupant, E. E. Kimbrough, expires.

DR. RIDLEY TO STAY IF CHURCH IS BUILT

Dr. Caleb A. Ridley, pastor of the Central Baptist church, returned to this city after having paid a visit to St. Louis, where he has been asked to permanently fill the pulpit of one of the prominent churches. Dr. Ridley stated, when asked whether he would accept the call, "I have already told my congregation that, if a new building could be erected for the Central Baptist church here, I will remain at my present work."

HER LIFE THREATENED, CLAIMS MRS. TEAGUE

Claiming that her husband repeatedly threatened to kill her, Mrs. Georgia Catherine Teague on Wednesday filed suit for divorce against James A. Teague. The suit, which was filed by Attorney H. W. McLarty, sets out that the plaintiff often sat up all night through fear that her husband would kill her while she slept, and that on one occasion he knocked her down and then threatened to kill her while she lay helpless on the floor.

Dollars and Sense

A dollar doesn't go as far today as it did in the days when George Washington threw a silver one across a well-known river.

About the only way to meet the dollar depreciation is to invest where the article bought has less depreciation than the dollar itself.

The splendid record and the big factory behind the GMC truck have made the trade-in value of the GMC uniformly high. Its depreciation is less than any truck on the market. When you get a GMC you are combining DOLLARS and SENSE. You are investing and not spending. WILSON BETTER, SAYS GRAYSON

Physician Reports President Had Good Night's Rest and That He Shows Improvement.

Washington, October 15.—Absence of any new complication in President Wilson's illness brought from his bedside late today the assurance that he is "getting better." Elimination of the recent annoyance caused by a slightly enlarged gland has removed the only outstanding obstacle to his convalescence and about the white house there was manifested a decided atmosphere of optimism. His condition early in the day was summarized in the following bulletin:

"The president had a good night's rest, enjoyed his breakfast, and, aside from a slight headache, continues to make improvement. The condition which caused the restlessness of Monday night, and about which Dr. Fowler was consulted, gave no trouble during the night."

Onl ythe following brief statement was issued by Rear Admiral Grayson, the president's physician, at 10:30 o'clock tcnight:

"The president has had a satisfactory day." The headache from which he was suffering from early in the day, it was learned had disappeared.

Given News by Mrs. Wilson.

With the exception of the news furnished him by Mrs. Wilson the president has learned very little of national and international developments, although he is given a daily a general summary of events. He has at times expressed a keen desire for more comprehensive reports and has asked Rear Admiral Grayson, his personal physician, for news but always Dr. Grayson has succeeded in keeping away from his patient information that might prove trying to his nerves, with the reminder that as a physician he has been too busy to keep in touch with government subject.

The president's appetite is reported as good as expected and a recurrence of the glandular trouble is not anticipated. Only a moderate rate of recovery is looked for and indications official and otherwise are that the improvement announced today may be continued.

President Wilson, despite his illness, remembered that today was Mrs. Wilson's birthday. In fact, he made preparations for it several days ago, for it was learned tonight that he then sent out a member of the white house staff to purchase a gift. Today he presented the remembrance to her.

Grayson Writes About Wilson.

New York, October 15.—The New York World today prints the following excerpt of a letter from Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, President Wilson's personal physician, to an unnamed friend in New York. The publication was authorized by Admiral Grayson:

"I do not know of any disease that has not been included in the rumors about the president. If I tried to refute all these rumors that have been scattered about I would not have any time to devote to the president professionally.

"I have not followed this course and I do not intend to do so. I agree with you * * * I wish I was similarly afflicted if I could be as mentally alert as the president.

"I can sincerely say that his mind is as good as it ever was since I have known him.

"I hope the time will not be far distant when it will be considered safe to permit him to resume work when his actions and his words will speak for themselves.

"As he gains strength his case is more difficult for me to handle as he is so very anxious to get back to work.

"All the doctors I have called in agree that absolute rest and quiet is essential to complete recovery. My great difficulty is to keep him from becoming irritated as a result of the rest treatment, for if he should strain himself too severely complications might result. I believe you can appreciate the trying situation with which I am laboring."

FIRST CONVENTION AMERICAN LEGION

soldiers who had gone over, and to those who had stayed at home.

Peace Time Duty.

Mayor Key, in his address of welcome, called upon the American Legion ot strive to maintain the principles they had fought for on the battlefields, and stated that the duty of the men did not stop when their uniforms were discarded.

"The members of the American Legion," said he, "have as large a duty to perform in times of peace as they had to perform when they wore the khaki. The legion has a sacred duty in stamping out the principles of bolshevism, and you should use every means at your command to deefat the propaganda and purpose of the anarchists. By concerted action only can this be accomplished, and it is my firm conviction that you will be able to do this."

Stockbridge Speaks.

The address of welcome on behalf of the legion posts of Atlanta was delivered by Basil Stockbridge, commander of the Charles D. Montgomery, Jr., post No. 1, the first post of the legion to be organized in Georgia. In his speech, Mr. Stockbridge called attention to the fact that the Georgia division of the American Legion was born in Atlanta, and chartered in Fulton county, which maintains seven posts, and that it was appropriate that the first meeting of the Georgia world war veterans be held in this city.

Chairman Harris, in his reply to the three addresses of welcome, declared that the American Legion was established for the American men of the great war; its privileges were for them, and its membership was composed of them. He outlined the policy of the organization and told of its marvelous growth. He urged all ex-service men to lose no time in becoming members.

Immediately after the opening speeches yesterday the state chairman, General W. A. Harris, of Macon, appointed a committee on resolutions composed of Barry Wright, of Rome, chairman; Duke C. Payne, of Elberton; F. J. Whutman, of Macon; Landon Thomas, of Augusta, and O. B. H. Bloodworth, of Forsyth.

This committee will report favorably to the convention today the following resolutions offered yesterday:

Resolutions Approved.

A resolution to make the war risk insurance premium payments payable to postmasters and rural letter carriers instead of only at the bureau of war risk insurance at Washington.

A resolution requesting congress to make November 1, the anniversary of the signing of the armistice a national holiday.

The committee refused to recommend favorably a resolution completely decentralizing the organization of the war risk insurance bureau by establishing separate state organizations.

Committee Was Split.

Several resolutions were offered urging that the Georgia delegates of the legion place themselves on record and urge the senate to adopt the league of nations covenant without reservations. Upon these resolutions the committee was unalterably split, three of its members favoring them and two being opposed. The resolutions will be offered today as favorably reported, but a minority report will be rendered advocating the adoption of the league only with the four reservations as outlined by the foreign relations committee of the senate.

A lively fight is expected on the floor of the convention when these committee reports are made and every indication points to a hard fight and an unequaled flow of oratory. All of the delegates seem to be solidly lined up behind the league, but each has his own view as to whether it should be adopted with or without reservations.

Chairman Harris, during the morning session, called attention to the fact that Marshal Foch, commander-in-chief of the allied forces, would visit the United States at an early date and invitations for him to visit specific cites were in order. These nvitatons will be in order at the session today, and it is understood a resolution is being prepared inviting this great soldier to visit Atlanta.

Next Meeting Place.

Several of the delegations from various cities in Georgia have come prepared to make a strong bid for the next reunion, to occur next year, of the Georgia delegates, and a lively fight is promised when the vote is taken.

The Augusta delegation, representing the Louis L. Battey post of the legion, which is the largest single post in the state, being entitled to six delegates, is a strong contender for the 1920 reunion, and these delegates, Boykin Wright, Jr., Landon Thomas, Robert Walton, Jr., E. H. Arrington, H. J. Shearer, J. G. Wilson and John Hains, alternate, have come prepared to show the assembly why Augusta should win.

Other Contenders.

While the Americus post is not so large as that in Augusta, it is just as enthusiastic about being host to the legion next year and ames A. Fort, J. G. Holst, D. Gordon Howell and R. C. Hague, of the John D. Mathis post, feel certain they can convince the delegates that Americus is the place.

No definite announcement has been made as yet, but it is understood the Albany delegates are preparing to enter the lists today with an invitation to the convention to meet in Albany in 1920.

At any rate it is certain that wherever the delegates decide to convene next year they will have a hearty reception.

At Burns' Club.

Old-fashioned Georgia barbecue, Red Cross and motor corps girls, and delegates to the convention are not essential ingredients to a jolly good time, but when you get these ingredients together the good time follows just as inevitably as the night follows the day.

Immediately after the morning's business of the American Legion convention yesterday morning the more than two hundred delegates and guests were taken in automobiles loaned by patriotic citizens of Atlanta to the Burns' club, where they were tendered old-fashioned Georgia barbecue, followed by a dance in the pavilion.

To make the day a complete success all of the delegates and ladies were given a party last night at the Lyric theater, which they attended en masse. In the interval after the barbecue and dance the visiting delegates were taken for automobile rides over the city and then shown a sample of the true Atlanta hospitality when each of them were taken to an Atlanta home for supper.

Many of the delegates, recent participants in the great world struggle, took the opportunity of stopping a few minutes on the way to the Burns' cottage at the old soldiers' home, where they met many of the old Confederate heroes, who sixty years ago underwent the hardships of war these younger heroes have so recently experienced.

State Executive Committee.

The state executive committee of the American Legion is as follows: Walter A. Harris, Macon, chairman; William H. Beck, Griffin, vice chairman; Baxter Jones, Macon, secretary; James A. Bankston, Atlanta, treasurer; Homer Watkins, Atlanta, and Cooper D. Winn, Macon, delegates from the state at large.

The congressional districts are represented as follows: First district, Sam Cann, Savannah; second district, Lewis S. Moore, Thomasville; third district, Harry D. Schneider, Americus; fourth district; Ronald B. Warner, Columbus; fifth district, Sinclair S. Jacobs, Atlanta; sixth district, Homer C. Jordan, Monticello; seventh district, T. G. Grafton, Rome; eighth district, W. K. Meadows, Athens; ninth district, Edgar B. Dunlap, Gainesville; tenth district, Lansing B. Lee, Augusta; eleventh district, Warren Lott, Waycross; twelfth district, Roy A. Flinn, Dublin.

Decatur Campaign.

The campaign in Decatur is not progressing as favorably as had been expected by the campaign committee and Chairman McKinney has called a meeting of the workers for tonight at 7 o'clock at the Decatur Presbyterian church.

At the noon meeting yesterday at the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, Decatur reported a total of $4,052 subscribed on its quota of $20,000. This is a better percentage than has been reported in Atlanta, but it is not as good as had been anticipated.

To the meeting tonight an urgent call for the attendance of the leading men and women of Decatur has been sent. Chairman McKinney states that the reputation of Decatur is at stake and he is calling for help from the men and women who have made Decatur the progressive community it is today.

Hard Work Needed.

The campaign committee has not lost confidence in the ultimate success of this campaign, but it realizes that if that success is to come within the limits now set for the close of the drive, some real hard work must be done. The town must be canvassed thoroughly and at once.

Chairman McKinney urges that all citizens of Decatur who has its interests at heart, come to the Decatur Presbyterian church tonight ready to put their shoulders to the wheel and help in making a success of this movement which means so much for Decatur.

The meeting will begin promptly at 7 o'clock and will close at 8.

IMPROVEMENT CLUB TO BE REORGANIZED

Announcement has been made that an important meeting to reorganize the Fifth Ward Improvement club, will be held Friday night at 8 o'clock at the English avenue school. This club has been dormant for some time, but its members and others who realize the good accomplished by such an organization in the community, have moved to inject new life in it, and a large attendance is expected at the meeting.

PACT RATIFICATION INDEFINITELY DELAYED

Paris, October 15.—The formal ratification of the peace treaty with Germany, making that instrument effective, will not take place this week, as had been expected, it was announced tonight by the American delegation to the peace conference. There has been indenite postponement of this step, it was stated.

Earlier in the day, it had been thought the exchange of ratifications by the representatives of Great Britain, Italy and France with Baron von Lersner, present head of the German mission, would take place Friday or Saturday.

HOUSTON WOMAN PLEASES BRITISH

Takes Charge of London End for Southern Rice Growers and Negotiates Large Sales Quickly.

By Mary Olive Kennedy.
(The Constitution—London Times—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1919.)

London, October 15.—The Mark Lane rice world has been splendidly surprised by the arrival in their midst a fortnight ago of Mrs. May Andrews Hayes, of Houston, Tex., known as "the rice queen," who was chosen by the American Southern Rice Growers' association to represent them in this country. She has come over with the best possible credentials, letters from Secretary of State Lansing and representative men in the American world to influential men in the rice domain here, all of them commenting on the great efficiency, business capacity and charm of Mrs. Hayes.

The president of the Rice Growers' association perhaps having in his heart a doubt of the position of the business woman in England, says in a letter that Mrs. Hayes is a typical American business woman. That she will "measure up well," and finally, "that she has the confidence of the entire rice industry of America for we all love her."

Makes Big Sales.

Already Mrs. Hayes has cabled over to America offers for 200,000 tons of American rice. "I did not come over here to sell rice," she explained to your correspondent. "The association I represent is to protect the farmers' interest and not primarily to secure sale, but to investigate the market and to see English machinery, some of which is better in certain points than our own. America, though it is the smallest of the rice-growing countries, yet has done more towards improving the cultivation and the eating quality of rice than the great Asiatic countries. Production has increased to such an extent that America has now something like 500,000 tons more than her need and she is prepared to sell it to Europe which is badly in need, owing to the failure of the Asiatic rice crop this year.

American rice is not cheaper than Asiatic rice, but is of far better quality. In India and China rice cultivation has been carried on under the same conditions from time immemorable, but for the past 25 years the rice growers in Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas and California have been improving their crop under scientific cultivation.

Mrs. Hayes began her business career at an unusually early age. "When I was 14," she said, "I began to earn my own living owing to family losses. I found I could sell goods and I went down to the rice country as an agent. Down there some one suggested to me selling rice, so I went back up east and sold rice and for 16 years rice has been my biggest interest. Its growing and its milling. I became a mechanical engineer. I am a member of the Society of American Engineers and began to build rice mills. Already I have built 15 mills in America and several in foreign countries.

Will Open Office.

"In 1910 I started a company with two others and today I own all the stock and have bought my partners out. London, as everybody knows is the center of the rice market of the world and German and Dutch millers, before the war, bought their rice here, milled it in their own countries and distributed it over the world. Presently I shall open an office in Mark Lane."

Mrs. Hayes holds very strong views as to the dress and mannerisms of the business woman and she does not approve of the type of woman who affects short hair, a man's hat and a mannish coat. Her views, to which she lives up, is that men prefer to do business with a woman who gives no hostages to male choice in dress, but expresses her own individual feminity in clothes while meeting them on equal grounds in business matters.

ANTIQUITIES FOUND IN TRENCH MAKING

Saloniki, October 15.—Military excavations, trench making, etc., carried on in the Greek parts of Macedonia during the war by the allied armies have brought to light large numbers of antiquities, such as ancient instruments, vases of geometrical design, and jewelry of iron, silver and of gold of great archaeological value. Further discoveries were made during investigations carried on during the war by the Greek archaeological service and tombs of the fifth and sixth centuries before Christ had also been discovered. These antique articles, which have been taken possession of by M. Pelekides, director of antiquities, prove that the civilization which existed at that ancient time in Macedonia was identical with that in Greece.

GOMPERS SUFFERS FROM EXHAUSTION

Washington, October 15.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, confined to his bed at his home here in a state of temporary nervous exhaustion, was reported tonight to be feeling much better. His physician stated that the labor leader's condition was not serious and that he probably would be able to resume his activities as head of the labor group in the industrial conference.

Early in the day Mr. Gompers' secretary announced to members of the industrial conference that the federation chief had a temperature of 101 and that his physicians had ordered him to remain in bed. The announcement was embodied in the following statement:

"Mr. Gompers returned home from the industrial conference last evening very exhausted and went immediately to bed. His physician, Dr. Henry Parker, was called in to see him. He found Mr. Gompers in a state of nervous exhaustion with a temperature of 101. The doctor said that it would be absolutely necessary for Mr. Gompers to remain in bed."

Later Mr. Gompers sent word to members of the delegation that he expected to be present at the conference tomorrow and at noon, it was announced that Mr. Gompers' temperature was only 99 degrees and that generally he was feeling much better.

Mr. Gompers' illness results, labor leaders said, from months of unremitting work at home and abroad in connection with the peace treaty, the international labor congress at Amsterdam, and the steel strike.

The veteran labor leader was stricken when he reached his home last night after delivering an attack in the industrial conference on the United States Steel corporation for its refusal to deal with the steel strike committee. His friends recalled that the day was the first anniversary of the death of his daughter, and they said this fact probably aggravated his condition.

Spokane, October 15.—Lumber Workers' union No. 50, Industrial Workers of the World, have called a strike in logging camps in eastern Washington, northern Idaho and western Montana, according to advices received here today. Demands of the lumber workers include release of all "class war prisoners," immediate withdrawal of troops from Russia, minimum wage scale of $5 a day, not more than $1 a day for board, eight hours from camp to camp, free blankets, sheets and pillows, bathhouse, dryroom and washroom be furnished seven days a week, right of free speech, free press and free assemblage, all men be hired on the job and not employment officers, and no discrimination against union men.

ATLANTA DISTRICT IS REPORTED THIRD

(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, October 15.—The Atlanta district was third in the sales reported on October 13 to the quartermaster general of the army by the retail army stores that were established in twenty-four of the largest centers throughout the United States. The aggregate sales were $1,671,380. The Atlanta district, which included Georgia, Tennessee, Alabama and Florida, reported sales of $129,516.98. New York and Boston districts respectively headed the list.

Packard Trucks For All-Winter Transportation

No More Guess and Gamble in Trucking Costs—
Packard Figures Based Upon Severest Service

WHAT does it mean when thirty cities report demands for more housing construction and increased industrial building? What does it mean when members of the National Association of Builder's Exchanges promise to "attempt to carry on building all winter regardless of weather conditions"?

It means that if demands and plans are carried out, motor trucks must do their bit.

And motor truck users must know how big a bit they can do when cold is extreme and going is hard

Winter building has always been more or less a gamble with the contractor. A man cannot work a system when the weather deals the cards.

In winters gone by, transportation has fallen down first. Materials were delivered behind schedule or not at all—expensive workmen were forced to slow down—costs were increased accordingly.

Replacement of horses by motor trucks helped to an extent. But reliable figures on winter motor truck performance have been hard to obtain. Consistent figures have been even harder.

Now the gamble is being taken out of winter hauling by Packard transportation figures.

Many of these trucks did not lose a trip or a minute's time during the winter.

Gasoline and oil consumption and repairs run at the same low average that Packard owners expect to find—

Average loads were hauled, even where they consisted of cement or gravel or other materials whose weight and bulk increased where wet or frozen.

Trailers and special dumping and loading equipment were kept in use according to schedule.

For it is the extra margin of strength and stamina that enables the Packard to meet the emergency when it comes.

And it is that same margin—that extra factor of safety—which has kept Packard trucks in continuous service, some of them over ten years. We have yet to hear of a Packard truck going out of active service.

Building contractors and others will find valuable help in solving truck transportation problems by calling upon the Freight Transportation Department of the Packard organization in this city. Its services are without charge.

GREAT NAVY INCREASE PLANNED BY JAPAN

Tokio, September 17.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.) According to Japanese newspapers, the government has decided to build two battle cruisers and 22 other warships, commencing the next fiscal year, and the estimates for these ships will be submitted to the next session of the diet for aproval. The battle cruisers will be of the 40,000-ton class, and their cost of construction is estimated at 120,000,000 yen (about $60,000,000). In addition, there will be three light cruisers, six destroyers, twelve submarines and three river gunboats.

The disbursement is to be spread over three years from the next fiscal year. The building of two 40,000-ton battle cruisers is for the purpose of completing the "eight and eight" squadron which has been decided upon by Japan as necesary for the defense of the country.

LAW AND ORDER WEEK URGED FOR TENNESSEE

Nashville, Tenn., October 15.—Governor A. H. Roberts is requested in resolutions adopted by the Tennessee Law and Order league in session at the state capitol to set aside by proclamation the week of October 26-November 1 as "Law and Order week." Pastors are asked to give special sermons on law and order on Sunday, November 2.

The resolution were adopted following a long discussion of the recent riots, race disturbances and general unrest that have occurred over the country recently. The conference recommend that immediate steps be taken to strengthen the national guard of the state, authorities were urged to increase the efficiency of their respective departments and all forces of the state government were urged to exert every effort toward the suppression of lawlessness.

A committee of 15 was appointed by Chairman John E. Edgerton, of Lebanon, to execute the recommendations of the conference.

The afternoon was given over to a discussion of the resolutions presented and three-minute discussions of the situation in various parts of the state Colonel Harry S. Berry and Colonel Carey F. Spence spoke briefly from the standpoint of soldiers. Each urged immediate steps to strengthen and equap the national guard.

Adjutant General E. B. Sweeney complained that there are certain corporations in this state which refuse to employ any one who belongs to the National Guard. He condemned this unpatriotic stand taken by the corporations and at his request the conference voted its disapproval of a y corporation or concern refusing to employ a man because he was a member of the guard.

A feature of the morning session was an address by Governor Roberts pledging his official support to the efforts of the League to Suppress Lawlessness.

"We are ready to exhaust every resource of Tennessee, men and money, to maintain the majesty of the law," said the governor.

Governor Roberts asserted that the foreign born are responsible for the lawlessness that has swept the country. He commended the act of the recent legislature, which forbids anyone who has not become naturalized from teaching in the public schools, declaring aliens have no place in the nation's institutions unless they are loyal to the republic.

Governor Reberts said crime is becoming organized in Tennessee and that it will take the organize efforts of the more substantial element to combat its menace. He said he understood that in certain sections of the state boot-leggers had organized to the point of adopting by-laws.

J. E. MELLETT JOINS CARTER ELECTRIC CO.

In the commercial application of electricity few men in this country have a more thorough knowledge of industrial engineering than J. E. Mellett, who joined the staff of the Carter Electric company yesterday.

Mr. Mellett has made his home in Atlanta for the past eight or nine years, occupying the important position of commercial engineer with the Georgia Railway and Power company. He was connected with the General Electric company where for two years he was a student of engineering in the factories at Schenectady, N. Y., and Lynn, Mass. Four years was also spent in New York, Boston, Cincinnati and Nashville as sales engineer for the General Electric company, and as manager of their Chattanooga office.

J. E. MELLETT.

The experience gained enables Mr. Mellett to be of material assistance as a member of Carter Electric company, in aiding in every way possible to further the interest of the house and its customers. He is a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, National Electric Light association, and takes a keen interest in local civic affairs.

The Carter Electric company is being congratulated on securing his services. He will prove a valuable acquisition to the rapidly growing business.

Mr. Mellett will occupy an executive position on the Carter Electric company staff, and will take an active interest in the affairs of the company.

NO IMMEDIATE DROP IN FOOTWEAR PRICES

New York, October 15.—There is no indication of an immediate drop in footwear prices, J. Frank McElwain, president of the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' association said tonight in a statement in which he asserted that his remarks at the Middle States Shoe Wholesalers' association convention here yesterday had been misquoted. Mr. McElwain had been quoted as predicting that shoe prices were due for a tumble after Christmas.

"It is my opinion that shoe prices for spring will be no lower than at present," the statement concluded.

AUGUSTA TAKES QUOTA OF EXPORT BODY STOCK

Augusta, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—Following a statement before the Rotary club yesterday by Matthew Hale, president of the South Atlantic Export corporation, Augusta took her allotment in that organization, $5,000. Mr. Hale was the honor guest at the luncheon. The Rotary club is proud that this subscription was made through its organization. Business men who were not present at the Rotary luncheon have asked opportunity to take of the stock of the export corporation. It is evident that the $5,000 will be far overscribed here.

Oversubscribe Quota.

Savannah, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—Savannah's quota of stock in the South Atlantic Export corporation has been oversubscribed largely and W. W. Gordon, who was named to head the stock-selling campaign was elected a director of the organization in Columbia at the last meeting. He was also appointed associate general counsel for the corporation. Mathew Hale, of Wilmington, president of the company and of the South Atlantic Maritime corporation, is in Savannah today in conference with Mr. Gordon and with W. W. Williamson, treasurer of the Maritime corporation. Additional ships for the trade with Cuba will be announced in a few days.

HOUSEWIVES ARE URGED TO CONTINUE CANNING

Fruit Can Be Successfully Preserved Without Sugar, Says the Department of Agriculture.

By J. H. Benton.
(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, October 15.—A warning to Georgia housewives to continue their canning despite the shortage of sugar has been issued by the department of agriculture here in its weekly news letter. Suggestions are offered in the statement as to how the canning can continue with the assertion that "fruit can be successfully canned without sugar and it can be sweetened when served next winter, or syrups can be used in place of sugar to sweeten it now." The article says:

"Don't let surplus fruit go to waste because you can not obtain sugar to use for preserving purposes. Fruit can be successfully canned without it and it can be sweetened when served next winter, or syrup can be used in place of sugar to sweeten it now.

"To can without sugar, simply fill the jars containing the fruit with clean hot water, instead of the usual syrup, and process the jars in a hot water bath. The fruit will not spoil, but it will not have quite as fine a flavor and color as that which is packed in syrup.

Directions for canning by the "cooked-in-the-can" method should be carefully followed to can successfully without sugar, the department of agriculture suggests.

"Fruits canned without sugar are especially good in salads, desserts, pie fillings, ices and in fruit punches. They can also be made into jams and marmalades when sugar is obtainable. Fruit juices take no sugar and their uses are just as varied during the winter season as are the fruits put up unsweetened. These fruit juices are also available for jelly at a future time when sugar is more plentiful. Vegetables need no sugar, and plenty of canned vegetables are always acceptable during the winter months.

"Fruit and vegetables may be high and sugar scarce, but the margin of difference in price between the home canned and the commercially canned product is likely to be as great as when both fresh fruit and vegetables and canned goods were lower in price. The wise are still practicing home canning, sugar or no sugar."

Testifies Jones Told of Shooting Just Before Death

Moultrie, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—The most damaging evidence brought out today against the defendants in the trial of John T. McCracken and Bill Radney, charged with the murder of Henry T. Jones, was furnished by eGorge Mitchell, who testified that Jones, while in a dying condition, told him that McCracken and Radney fired first in the exchange of pistol shots on Lost Creek bridge on Sunday night, June 16, last year.

The question of the admission of Mitchell's testimony consumed some time, Judge E. E. Cox, leading counsel for the defendants, objecting and insisting that the state had not shown that Jones knew at the time that he talked to Mitchell that he was mortally wounded. Judge Thomas admitted the testimony, however.

Mitchell said that he was the first to reach Jones' side after the latter had been wounded, and declared that Jones told him that Radney and McCracken's commands to halt were followed by a fusilade of shots, and that the shooting by them began by the time he got his hand on his pistol. The state is expected to finish its case at a night session tonight.

The defendants contend that they were members of a lawful posse hunting for a negro who had tried to kill Sheriff Boyd and that in the darkness Jones was mistaken for the hunted man when he appeared in view of the Lost Creek bridge. They also claim that Jones had had trouble with a man who lived in his community and, expecting a renewal of the trouble, constantly carried a pistol, and that on the night of the tragedy he was quick to shoot, and that McCracken and Radney had to act in self-defense.

The case is expected to reach the jury some time tomorrow. It is the second time that Radney and McCracken have been tried under the same indictment. At the first trial they were convicted of voluntary manslaughter.

DO YOU CRAVE SWEETS?

A Very Choice Syrup of Tempting Taste

The liking for sweets is a natural craving. The system requires a certain amount of such food. It acts as fuel. It builds energy. It maintains strength.

Domino Golden Syrup is different from any syrup you ever tasted. So good you can dirnk it—so wholesome you can eat all you like! And never tire of it.

And of rare "smack" and savor—flavored with just a dash of delicate cane taste—sweet—but not oversweet—and not too "brackish."

You will like it—on bread, cakes, waffles, biscuit. A table delicacy for every meal of every day. Ask your grocer for Domino Golden Syrup. It is made by the American Sugar Refining Company, refiners of Domino Package Sugars—Granulated, Tablet, Powdered, Confectioners, Brown.—(adv.)

RAILWAY STRIKES MAY BE PROHIBITED BY LAW

Interstate Committee Studies Ways and Means to Prevent Tie-Ups.

Washington, October 15.—Members of the senate interstate committee commenced today a study of ways and means by which they hope to make legally effective their announced intention of prohibiting railroad strikes in the future.

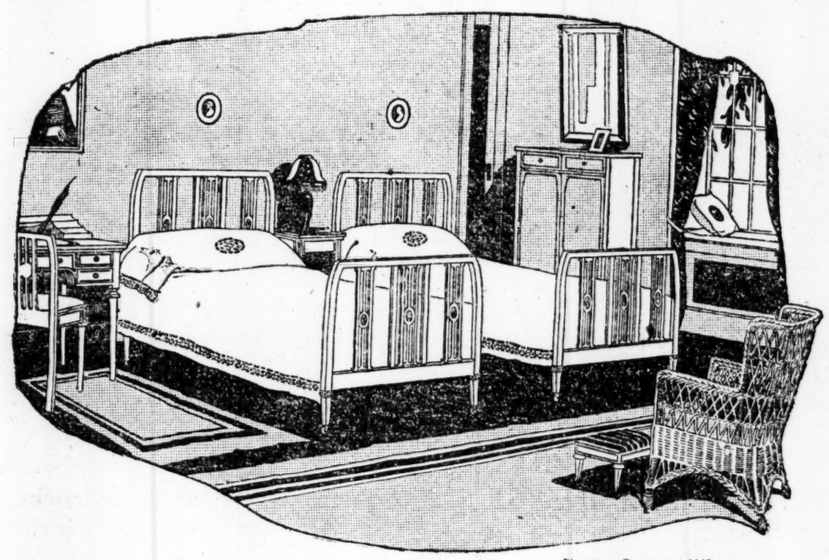

Following the 14 to 1 vote of yesterday in the committee, in favor of reporting out sections of the Cummins bill for railroad reorganization which will make strikes among railroad employees in the future criminal, the actual work of drafting such provisions was assigned to a sub-committee composed of Chairman Cummins and Senators Townsend, Poindexter, Frelinghuysen, Pomerene and Robinson.

More time was given by the full committee today to the consideration of railroad finances, but no decisions on policy were made. Swager Sherley, counsel for the railroad administration, will be heard later on the subject, with Alfred Thom representing carriers.

Beautiful Hardwood Effects Enameled on Steel Beds—a Specialty of Simmons Company's New Designs in the Leading Stores.

THIS will be a new thought to you—Hardwood Effects enameled on a steel bed.

The whole idea is new. Impossible heretofore, in fact until Simmons Company invented its new Seamless Steel Tubing, and opened the way to really good design in metal beds and a perfect finish that admits of exquisite enameling in Decorative Colors and Hardwood Effects.

Now you can go to any of the leading merchants here in the city—select from perhaps a dozen charming designs, enameled in Mahogany, Oak or Circassian Walnut—or if you prefer, in Ivory or Colors.

The range of patterns is so great that you will find beds to harmonize with antiques and "Period" pieces.

The pattern illustrated is the "Stuyvesant." Then there is the "Sheraton," the "Plymouth," the "Tudor," the "Florentine," the "Colonial" and a number of others.

• • •

SIMMONS Company has been working on the problem of good design in metal beds for years.

But really good designs cannot be carried out in old-style tubing. It has a seam running the full length of the tube. It cannot be worked into the shapes. It is apt to be rough—does not take the enamel smoothly.

All these new designs are made with the Simmons Seamless Steel Tubing—a new invention of the greatest practical importance.

Square and trim—free from joints, seam and roughness. Beautifully smooth, so that the enamel lies tight and evenly all over—does not scratch, check or chip.

• • •

YOU will find these fine new Simmons designs in Beds Built for Sleep in the leading stores. Quiet beds, with the Simmons Pressed Steel Corner Locks—free from squeak or rattle.

Your choice of many different patterns—and of Twin Pairs and Double Width in each pattern. Enameled in the accepted Decorative Colors, and in Mahogany, Oak and Circassian Walnut.

Simmons Springs, too—

The Slumber King—a spring composed of flexible steel strips with spirals of high-test spring wire; so combined that the spring action is equal in all directions.

Prices of Simmons Beds are little if any higher than those of ordinary beds.

If you have any trouble in finding them, a post card to us will bring you the names of Simmons merchants near your home.

The STUYVESANT—No. 1802

It is made of Simmons Seamless Square and Rectangular Tubing throughout. Artistic center effects—decorations in relief. Easy running casters.

Your choice of Double Width and Twin Pairs—and especially pleasing in Twin Pairs.

Your Shoes vs. Your Feet

LOOK at your bare feet. Then look at your "stylish" pointed shoes. They're nothing alike. You are able to wear such a shoe only because your foot is flexible; because you can crowd its blunt end into the pointed shoe-toe and suffer—suffer from corns, callouses, bunions and fallen arches.

If comfort and health mean anything, get into a shoe shaped like your foot—into good-looking Educators that let the feet grow as they should, never causing any foot ills.

THE ISHMAEL OF NATIONS

France has done the same thing.

So has Italy.

One after another other nations directly concerned will ratify the treaty, but regardless of the others the three great allied European powers have signed, sealed and delivered the compact, which means that the peace treaty and the league of nations as promulgated at Versailles is an accomplish- ' fact, for the document becomes effective upon its ratification by three of the "big four" allied parties to the peace conference.

The United States of America should have been one of the first three to sign; but thus far petty political and personal spite has kept u out of it.

This country is in the attitude of saying to its former allies that what was good enough to fight for—to sacrifice thousands of valuable lives and billions of treasure for—is not good enough nor of sufficient importance to hold us in line with our allies until we see the thing through!

So far we leave to other nations the task of completing the work to which we became a party when we joined forces with them against Prussian autocracy!

If this is to be the attitude of this country we sacrifice an opportunity that does not often come to a nation.

Are we to stand off and see the world readjusted to conditions and in accordance with a great plan that this nation did so much to formulate, and yet not share in its benefits?

We may rest assured that if these European nations are to bear the whole burden and responsibility of readjustment, and that if we take the back-track at this crucial time we must pay the penalty in the loss of muc of the worldwide prestige we have gained and at such a tremendous price!

Such an attitude would not only affect the standing of this country in the estimate of the world—and more particularly in the estimate of our former allies—but the inevitable result will be a reaction on our business relationship to the rest o the world.

They may make this country the Ishmaelite of the nations of the world—but if they do there will be a day of reckoning!

JUDGE COBB'S CHARGE

Upon the convening of the Clark county grand jury for the October term of supe ior court, Judge Andrew J. Cobb, a great Georgian, and well worthy of his illustrirous name, delivered a charge on the lynching menace that should sink deeply into the heart of every citizen who is in sympathy with the principles of democratic government. In it he said:

"One of the greatest, if not the greatest, evils of the present day is disrespect for authority in every phase of life where authority is to be exercised, and especially disrespect for the law and the authorities constituted to enfore the law."

The preservation of our institutions, Judge Cobb went on to say, "absolutely depends upon the law being enforced through the constituted authorities of the land;" and—

"He who arrogates to himself the authority to enforce the law without the sanction of the law, is an enemy to the law and to civilization. Any set of men who take upon themselves to punish a human being and inflict upon that being the death penalty where they have no authority from the law or the land to authorize their conduct, are, in th sight of heaven and of earth, murderers, and should be dealt with by the law of the land and by the public sentiment of the country as such."

"Any man or set of men," he continued—

"who condones, approves or apologizes for the death of a human being by a lawless mob is morally guilty of the murder which the mob has committed. Any man or set of men who fail on all appropriate occasions and times to speak out boldly in condemnation of mob violence do not measure up to the full duties of true citizenship.

"What I have said has its application in every case of mob violence, it makes no difference whether the victim of the mob is guilty or innocent, or what crime he is charged with or may be guilty of, or what race he belongs to. The death of a human being by a mob is murder, nothing less, and every person connected therewith, whether they should be meted out the punishment which the outraged law would impose upon them, or whether they escape on account of a false public sentiment, will bear throughout their lives the mark of Cain upon their brows."

No more timely charge was ever delivered from a Geor ia bench.

It is high time that Georgia gives heed to such wise counsel.

If the evil of mob law is not stamped out by the law-abiding element of our population the time is ...ckly coming when the strong arm of the federal government will do that which the state either fails or refuses to do by the exercise of its own power and jurisdiction!

THE AMERICAN LEGION.

The first annual convention of the American legion met in Atlanta yesterday and will complete its work today. Delegates were present from every part of the state representing the many posts that have already been organized by the Georgia boys who participated in the great world's war.

Many of these posts have been named to perpetuate the heroism and the memory of the brave Georgia boys who made the Supreme Sacrifice at their country's call.

Similar meetings have been or are being held in every state in the union prepartory to the national convention of the American legion, which is soon to meet in its first annual session, and which promises to play for many years an important part in American history.

This organization is bottomed upon patriotism. It is to be strictly non-political, and its power for good is incalculable.

The organization is made up of hundreds of thousands of young Americans who were ready to sacrifice their lives, if necessary for the cause that called them to arms.

Men would not rally as enthusiastically as they did to the summons to arms if they did not have full confidence in the government for whose flag they fought.

They believed they were fighting for the best government on the face of the earth and they now propose to keep it as such.

Acting in this faith, the members of this organization can wield a powerful influence in steering the country safely through the uncertain seas of readjustment.

Men who have done what they did can be trusted to do their duty in any crisis!

SHORT OF TEACHERS.

The National Education association has just made public a report, based upon a painstaking canvass of the country that more than 100,000 positions in the public schools of the United States "are either vacant or filled by teachers below standard."

This is not only a deplorable condition, but an alarming one; and the gravity of the situation is only heightened by the further declaration that "attendance at normal schools" throughout the country "has decreased 20 per cent since 1916!"

The shortage of competent and trained teachers is greatest in rural districts, according to the report, for th reason that there the salaries paid, and other inducements, are less than those obtaining in the cities and towns; and in six of the southern states one-third of the schools of the rural districts are reported without teachers at all, or served by teachers who do not measure up to the prescribed standards of efficiency.

Educational authorities, especially the presidents of normal schools, are unanimous in recommending higher salaries and higher professional standards "and a more general recognition by the public of the teacher's worth" as the only means of recruiting the fast thinning ranks of the teaching profession.

It is obvious the increase in the number of teachers and the elevation of the standard of qualifications both depend almost wholly upon the raising of the standard of teachers' pay.

The country, and practically every city and community in it, is sleeping over a most serious situation, and inviting a tremendous responsibility to future generations in neglecting to give attention to the danger of this situation!

Same old May,
Same old sunshine
Makes the day
And same old Home—

The Voice From Afar.

The "Stars and Stripes," once printed for the boys in France, contributed by them, has now become a magazine with even a wider appeal than it had before, because of the memories of hearts and homes that go out to it. The poetry in the old-time "Stars and Stripes" was widely quoted, and perhaps this will recall to many what they felt in France. It is entitled "Vestal Star:"

"The long, long march is o'er—the weary roaming;
We bivouac, yearning for a peaceful night;
I lie and dream, amid the purple gloaming,

"As graying shadows lengthen o'er the landscape
And gentle zephyrs lightly stir the air,
In yon first twinkling star I see a vision

The Little Cabin Door.

The Excelsior Springs Standard has one of the best of the home-poets in "Uncle John," who sings, in this prose fashion, of the old times:

"In old-time winter evenin's, there was many things we did, that was mighty soul-inspirin' to the old-time country kid. When we weren't a-pullin' taffy we was busy parchin' corn, while the hills around the cabin, echoed to the hunter's horn. . . .

"I can hear old Towser barkin' when my memory sorter strays to the land of boyhood varmints, an' the sports of early days—I can see my sainted mother in the little cabin door, an' my soul somehow, still hankers for the happy days of yore—

"But now—we've got our jitney, an' a typist an' the 'wire,' an' there ain't no cozy corner, whar we set around the fire. We've got the fireless cooker an' the patent autocow, an' the agent an' the middleman, we pay to show us how. We buy our drinkin' water, an' our middle name is 'charge,' while everybody's second son is runnin' a garrarge—an' we've got the business woman, an' the airplane, an' the phone—an' all because we couldn't let well enough alone."

The Traveler.

I.

The valleys didn't win me—
They were too sweetly still.
And so I went a-climbin'
Up Hallelula Hill.

II.

But when I reached the summit—
From ways where all men roam,
And felt it's sunlight 'round me,
I dreamed the dreams of Home.

III.

The little windows—looking
To Heaven, with their lights,—
The lowliness of valleys

Time to Say Grace.

You get a glimpse of the great life that's in the old land still when you read this, from The Dallas Pitchfork:

"Strawberries and rosen-years and baseball are gone, and the watermelon crop is about to pass out, but the ayster season is at hand, and it won't be long until the frost is on the persimmons and the new crop of pecans will be coming out of their hulls. Then comes hog-killing time, with backbone pie and hog-jowl boiled with turnips and cracklin' cornbread, and spare ribs till you can't rest!"

The Shores of Mobile Bay.

I.

When e'er into the past I'm straying
I am a boy again, and playing
Upon the shores of Mobile Bay
I see the ships as they go sailing,
The foaming waves behind them trailing,
Into the offing, far away.

II.

I see the billows, rising, falling,
The Voices hear that have been calling
A wanderer so long in vain;
For I am growing old, and only
In memory, when I'm sad and lonely,
Those boyhood days I'll live again.

III.

Oh, tender mem'ries 'round me thronging,
You fill my soul with one great longing,
That I might be a boy once more,—
A care-free boy who knew no sorrows,
Who had his dreams of bright tomorrows
When he was playing on the shore.

IV.

When comes my solemn day for leaving
The sadness that my heart is grieving,
And I from Earth shall pass away,
I'll ask no greater joy in Heaven
Than that which long ago was given
To me, a boy, on Mobile Bay

Why the Steel Strike Should Be Defeated

By William Howard Taft.

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service, Copyright, 1919.)

One of the phases of the reaction from the war has been the intoxication of power of the extremists of the labor group. These persons in every country have been caught by the Lenine plan of ruling by the soviets of workmen. The war emphasized the special dependence of society on labor as a group and the Russian debacle gave opportunity to exploit that dependence as a means of subjecting all other groups, however much more numerous, to the dictation of labor. Many workingmen have been carried off their feet and into a vague but exuberant conviction taht the millennium of labor is at hand. In the discussion of wages and hours, the limit in their minds has been "the sky." No agitator, however extreme, has been unreasonable to them.

Level-headed labor leaders who have sought to moderate these aspirations have found their leadership imperiled and their authority and wise conservatism held for naught. In the reaction from the armistice, local labor unions have not hesitated to break their contracts, and this against the lawful orders of their chiefs. Such lack of discipline and subordimatation to wise leadership is the most discouraging circumstance in the situation, and threatens the usefulness and existence of labor unions. It can only be cured by some striking instances of successful resistance to this rapidly growing tyranny by those against whom it is immediately directed, and who shall be supported by the united public opinion of the whole community. The feverish labor enthusiasts need object lessons to bring them to reason. They do not realize the strength of the conservative forces in this country, which will rise to meet persistence in soviet methods.

Boston's Example.

When they take home such a lesson as Governor Coolidge and Superintendent Curtis have taught the deserting policemen of Boston, their ardor will cool. The failure of the British railway unions to overawe that nation, which has successfully defied their attempt to strangle and starve the people of England into compliance with their demands, is another good lesson. The necessity for still other lessons of the kind makes the public, as a whole, wish the steel company to succeed in its present fight. The contest is not yet decided, but the company's resistance has already awakened a supporting public opinion, to which in the end the unions are likely to be compelled to yield.

This is not to say that Judge Gary was wise or right in his refusal to see and talk with the union chiefs who asked an interview with him. His attitude was typical of that of many employers who seem to feel that a mere conference with labor union chiefs is a damaging concession. It gave to the union chiefs, who were thus curtly refused an opportunity merely to present their views, a slogan which aroused their followers to indignation, and furnished them a platform for their propaganda. Had Judge Gary seen these leaders and told them that he could only deal with committees of employees of his own, whether officers of the union or not, and that he would consider, investigate and discuss such grievances as they might present, his position would have been much stronger.

Brought on Riots.

But whatever mistake the company's head may have made, the union chiefs, Fitzpatrick and Foster, have rendered unimportant this circumstance in their wrong-headed course since. They refused to listen to the president's request to postpone resort to a strike until after the labor conference could meet and consider the issues that they presented. They were determined in their purpose to show their strength, to give evidence of their "nuisance value" to the company and to the public. They would not be restrained. So they have brought on what they might have known would follow—riot, mob violence and bloodshed, inevitable when the agencies of society in self-defense and the maintenance of law and order defend that society against destruction.

It is well known that the steel company generally has been progressive in its wages and hours, and that the strength of its position has been in the favorable terms it has given its employees. There was, therefore, no intolerable physical oppression in the nature of insufficient food or impossible housing which prevented a postponement of the issue between the company and the unions. But Fitzpatrick and Foster could not brook delay. They knew that the union men in the steel company's employ were not more than 25 per cent, but they counted on the unrest and the fever which seize bodies of workmen these days to enable them to rush the steel company men into a strike and into their unions. This was most unwise and savors of a radicalism that has weakened the stand of the unions before the public. It is to be hoped, therefore, that the unions will be defeated in this present ill-considered, inconsiderate and violent forcing of an issue which must be and will peaceably and fully discussed before the conference at Washington.

Issue Indefinite.

What is that issue? It is said to be the issue of the open shop, but this is quite indefinite because of the variety of definitions used to describe an open shop. The real issue is whether employers shall recognize the group system in industry as an institution that has come to stay, and shall permit as many of their employees as see fit to join labor unions and to act jointly with their fellows in those labor unions working under other employers, agreeing upon what they believe to be fair hours, fair wages and fair terms of employment, and dealing with the employers through the officers of their associations, whether those officers are employees of the particular employer or not. Those who oppose the group system insist that collective bargaining should be confined to the limits of the single shop, that the employer should deal only with his employees and bargain collectively with them, but that no group dealing shall be granted. In this view it is insisted that if the employer and employees wish to have a closed union shop, which by express agreement shall shut out all but union men, it is not objectionable, and that if the employer and employees agree that no union man shall be admitted or retained in the shop, that, too, is permissible. It is not within the limit of this article to discuss the merits of these opposing views. The latter view, the shop view, as distinguished from the group view, is set forth in the declaration of principles presented by Mr. Wheeler, the chairman of the employers' group. We shall doubtless soon have the opportunity of reading the contrary view by the representatives of organized labor. This is the ultimate issue between the steel company and its men.

One may agree with the men's attitude on this subject and still condemn the strike and earnestly hope that it may be defeated because of the way in which it has been conducted and the inconsiderate refusal of the immediate strike leaders to delay action until after the conference. The ordinary observer of Mr. Gompers' course and views, without being in his confidence, may be fairly sure that he did not advise this steel strike and deeply regrets in his heart that it was undertaken as it was.

Bits of New York Life

BY O. O. M'INTYRE

Readers of this article who desire any information about New York are welcome to write at any time, inclosing a self-addressed envelope for reply. Letters should be addressed to O. O. McIntyre, Atlanta Constitution, Bureau No. 2, West Seventy-second street, New York. This bureau desires to give The Constitution readers every facility at its command in rendering informative service upon every subject from the metropolis.

New York, October 16.—There is a sardonic cackle or so in the humor of life in New York these strike-filled days. One sees the queerest people doing the queerest jobs. I always imagined the errand girl in Manhattan to be a ribfully thin, wide-eyed child of the sweatshops with a hacking cough. After her day lugging big packages to white-wigged butlers I imagined the spindley-legged child picking her dinner out of a garbage pail or something.

You see I lived in a small town, and believed everything in the Sunday papers and the five-cent novels. The other morning the most important member of my little household had me telephone to a dressmaking establishment to have them speed up her pink voile, or yellow satin or tunic or whatever it was.

And a voice, delightfully Parisian, answered that madam's frock—they're always frocks or gowns, and never a dress—was done and would be dispatched. I waited for the tired child of the slums to comwith it. When the doorbell rang about the snappiest looking girl that ever escaped Ziegfeld was standing there with a package containing the dress.

She is the new type of errand girl. She was respectfully rouged and wore one of those zippy hats with aigrettes and carried a gold vanity case. And there I stood like a fat-headed boob with 15 cents in my hand to tip her. The errand girls are on strike, and so the dressmakers pay their designers and needleworkers extra for delivering packages.

As a result you see some of the best-dressed women flitting about the town carrying packages to customers. And our messenger "boys." You should see them. They all have gray beards and white hair. From my observation there is not a messenger boy in town under 60.

As I have said, there is nothing so funny as life. For two years I have been slaving and economizing to buy a certain galt-edged security and I awakened this morning to read in the paper that an adolescent living down the hall, who never knew the pangs of honest toil, has walked away with a fortune, and will spend the rest of his life roughing it between Palm Beach and New York.

Horse liniment has suddenly grown into popular favor with the owners of disappointed rum appetites over in the Cherry Hill district. The newspapers report at a "racket" over there the other night potions of a horse liniment—80 per cent kick—were served, and the victims were knocked stiffer than army underwear. Among other things that are reported to have been used lately are hair tonic, extracts, prune whisky and the lowly shoe polish.

An excited group of baseball fans were collected around the ticker at the Claridge the day that Babe Ruth made his twenty-eighth home run. Afterward they collected around a table and over the grape juice discussed the feat. One man in the party showed such a lack of interest that Raymond Hitchcock questioned him about it. It was learned that the stranger was a Peruvian professor of Icelandic languages, and the fact that a man was able to swat a sphere of rubber so hard with a piece of wood that he could touch three bases 90 feet apart and get home before the ball was returned—meant nothing in his young Peruvian life.

Today's Anniversaries.

1819—Eunice P. Cutter, reformer, who furnished to John Brown the cartridges used in the Osawatomie fight, born at Warren, Mass. Died there in 1893.

It Is Reported That the Delegates to the Industrial Peace Congress Are Getting Along Famously With Each Other Down in Washington

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Catching Them Young.

A good many frall young men selected for army service began to put on weight and feel vigorous and well for the first time in life while they were undergoing training in the military camps. These same young men were inclined to grumble at first because the military and medical authorities seemed to be bent on "treating 'em rough." Rough treatment, in the way of normal sleeping hours, a fair amount of exercise every day, and a little less indulgence than mama's boys are accustomed to, proved just the medicine those young effeminates required. For a few generations back there has been a tendency toward increasing effeminacy in this country. The sexes have approached each other altogether too closely for the good of the country.

A mental and physical condition too commonly seen in children and youths in schools where education is neglected, especially the physical education of girls, has been called cacexia scholastica. It is about as deplorable as it sounds. But it is not hopeless if taken in time. I believe I'll break my rule and mention the symptoms of this sad condition. In this instance it may do good.

Cacexia scholastica is characterized by an unsteady nervous system, easily overwrought by trifles, an unnatural irritability bordering on the hysterical in some cases, a disordered digestion with finicky appetite and poor assimilation, a flabby muscular development with a slouchy or weak posture, and in most cases the child is underweight. The direct or primary cause of the condition is misguided parents; the predisposing cause is a narrow-minded teacher. The two causes combine to encourage cramming and they either ignore or frown upon the great safety balance—physical education. The child is encouraged to think herself "delicate."

A determined effort is being made to stamp out cacexia scholastica. Some public schools have gone so far in that direction as to require the potential victim of the disease to take prophylactic treatment every day in the school year—down in the gymnasium. I visited such a school a while ago. It was a sight for sore eyes. There were only half a dozen girls "excused"—their parents or their family doctors insisted on the "delicate organization" at least for a few days now and then. But the school was a new one, in a new town and in a new state. Young folks get those progressive ideas sometimes when there are no old fossils to frown the innovations down. It's great to be a youngster in a young school governed by a young board of education in a new town in a twentieth century province.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Shoes for Weak Feet.

My daughter, aged fourteen, complains of her feet hurting and aching a great deal after she has been on her feet a short time. She has been trying going barefoot around the house, but it does not relieve her. What kind of shoes should she wear? (Mrs. F. S.)

ANSWER—Shoes with heels not more than one inch high and not less than two inches wide, flexible shanks, broadly rounded toes, straight inside lines or inward turning soles.

Beautiful Hands While You Wait.

Some time ago you gave a formula for a lotion to whiten and soften coarse, red hands. I cut it out, but of course I can't find it now when I need it. Will you please print the formula again? (Mrs. G. B. A.)

ANSWER:

Boric acid	3 drams
Glycerin	1 ounce
Tragacanth	1 dram
Oil of bergamot	5 drops
Water	1 pint

Boil the water and tragacanth, stirring constantly till dissolved, then add the other ingredients Rub some of the lotion on the hands two or three times a day, after washing and while the skin is still a little moist.

How Other Great Wars Left the World

By H. IRVING KING

After the Wars of Charles V.

(Copyright, 1919, for The Constitution.)

(Copyright, 1919, for The Constitution.)

In the convent of Yuste, in Estremadura, in a spot "pure-aired, high, wrapped in lemon and myrtle groves," died in the year 1558, Charles V., emperor of Germany and king of Spain, a worn-out, broken old man at the age of 58, who for two years had been awaiting his death in the seclusion of this retreat. From his accession to the Spanish throne at the age of 16 and from his election to the crown of the holy Roman empire at the age of 19 he had been engaged in constant warfare and the universal empire which he sought had at times been, seemingly, almost within his grasp. On his abdication in 1556 he bequeathed his wars to his son Philip, who succeeded him as king of Spain, Italy and the low counrties, and to his brother Ferdinand of Austria, who succeeded him as emperor.

Every nation in Europe had trembled at the might of Charles and far beyond the Atlantic Cortez and Pizzaro had, in his name, toppled down the thrones of Montezuma and the Incas and annexed the ancient empires of Mexico and Peru to the Spanish crown.

The wars of rivalry between the house of France and the house of Austria which were inaugurated by Charles V. in his boyhood and which devastated Europe for more than thirty years were ended by Charles' successors by the peace of Chateau Canbresis in 1559. Europe fell into a state of domestic disorder complicated by the aggressions of the Turks from which it had not fully recovered when, nineteen years later, it was plunged into the thirty years' war which destroyed it economically and all but destroyed its civilization.

The wars of Charles V. ruined Spain. In spite of the treasures of Mexico and Peru, those fleets of Argosies and those long trains of mules which entered Madrid shod with silver and their panniers stuffed with gems and gold, the close of the wars left Spain exhausted in men and money and resources. The subsequent victory of Lepanto and the fitting out of the "Invincible Armada" were but the expiring gleams of the sun of her greatness. True up to 1580 Philip managed to so display the Spanish power as to make it said "When Spain moves the earth trembles." But her decline had set in and it was rapid. Never again was she to play the leading role in the affairs of Europe.

An uprising of the oppressed people of the Netherlands was only put down by the execution of 18,000 people on the scaffold, the confiscation of the property of 30,000 more and the driving from the country of 100,000 artisans, while a ruinous tax was inflicted upon those who remained. Uprisings in Spain were suppressed with slaughter, a relentless religious persecution was carried on.

Meantime France was torn by the civil war of the "League." Germany was distracted by the ambitions of rival princes and religious quarreis. The Turks had taken possession of the greater part of Hungary and their admirals had turned the Mediterranean into a Turkish lake, collecting tribute from or destroying the shipping of the Christian nations and defiantly anchoring their fleets even in the Bay of Naples.

Italy, in which the Spanish influence had been dominant, shared the fate of Spain. In the north of Europe Holland was rising into a great maritime power, while England, guarded by her encircling seas from an invasion of the woes which distracted the continent, was laying the foundations of the naval supremacy which demonstrated by the defeat of the Armada, she has maintained to the present day. Also at this period she began on the western continent those settlements which have now grown into the United States of America.

That same distressed era in Europe which followed the wars of Charles V. saw in America the beginnings of the great republic which is now undergoing a process of readjustment after another great world struggle.

A Veteran's Estimate.

Editor Constitution: I have talked with some of the old Confederate soldiers from all of the 13 states, and they said that Atlanta was the leading city of the south. We believe, that with the growth and building of the city in the last ten years, that it has a larger population than New Orleans. They all expressed themselves as feeling that Atlanta left nothing undone that could be done that was for our comfort and our pleasure while we were there.

I was in every big battle that was fought in the western department, and was in the battle of Atlanta, and I had seen the reel, and wanted to see the picture of the battle, and it looked very much like it, only I didn't see as many dead Yankees in the picture as I saw in the battle. My brigade was left there after the battle to support the cavalry in doing picket duty, and we went every third day through the battlefield to do duty and would go through the part where the unburied Yankees were lying thick on the ground.

Mr. G. F. Willis did us a great favor in coming to us on Wednesday night and telling us that we shouldn't sleep in the tents, and that he would see that every old Confederate was taken into the city where he could be taken care of. He did as he said he would do.

The Atlanta Athletic club also took old Confederates in when they didn't have a place to stay, furnished cots and blankets, gave them meals, and treated us just as well as we could wish to be treated, and we want to thank them for the way they treated us.

We want to thank the Boy Scouts also. I fell in love with them.

The President's "Presents"

(From the San Francisco Chronicle.)

For months there have been in circulation stories about "presents" of immense value, alleged to run into hundreds of thousands of dollars and to occupy a large part of the hold of a big ship. As the customs records failed to show entries of such commodities it was alleged that the president must have abused his power by smuggling them in.

And now, by order of the president, a complete list of these gifts has been made public, and it appears that a good-sized mantel would contain the whole lot which have any intrinsic value and that there was not one of them which was not modestly appropriate to the means of a giver desiring to pay a personal compliment to one who was thought to have been specially useful in an official position. And even as to these the president had directed that a list be prepared that he might ask the consent of congress to his acceptance of them.

The readers of the Chronicle know that it very vigorously opposes the most important of President Wilson's policies, and believes that he is temperamentally unfitted to be the head of a popular government. But it has utter contempt for those who spread lies about their political opponents in order to injure their personal standing. To start or give currency to unfounded evil rumors about the personal conduct of a president of the United States is evidence not only of moral degradation but of feebleness of intellect, for in the end the result is to strengthen instead of injuring the slandered official.

$30,000 IN TAXES SAVED TO STATE

More than $30,000 in special taxes, which amount would otherwise have been lost to the state, have been collected to date by the four special tax collectors appointed by Governor Dorsey, according to information given out by the comptroller general's office yesterday.

The salary of the governor is $7,500 and the appropriation to his office for secretaries and other clerical help $10,000 per annum making a total of $17,500. As these special tax agents have not finished their work and a considerable number of counties remain to be visited, the governor will probably be able to reimburse the state in this way for more than double the entire cost of the executive department this year.

As it has long been a matter of public complaint that the state was losing largely through the dodging of the payment of license and other special taxes, Governor Dorsey last spring conceived the idea of designating special agents from his office to find the delinquents and bring in what they were due the state. The first man whom the governor put at this work was A. S. Allen.

Commission Contract.

The governor made a contract with Mr. Allen which would cost the state nothing, the latter agreeing to work on a commission basis entirely, paying all of his expenses and turning in to the comptroller general's office all that he collected less his commissions.

It soon developed that there were hundreds of individuals and corporations all over the state liable to license taxes which had not paid them. One telephone company was found which had been operating for seven years and had never paid any tax to the state. Druggists, soft drink dealers, cigarette and tobacco merchants, amusement place proprietors and others were found in practically every county visited who were "shy" on their obligations to the state. Many of these when confronted by the special collector readily paid their tax, claiming that they did not know that the law required a special tax from them.

Details of Law.

Under the law all kinds of businesses, subject to a license tax, must report to the ordinary before the first of January. Such businesses started during the year must report to the ordinary from the date of their opening. The ordinaries are required to make quarterly reports to the comptroller general.

The taxes are due to be paid to the tax collectors of the respective counties. In many cases it was found that reports had been made to the ordinaries but no taxes had been paid.

From several of the counties visited by Mr. Allen more than $2,000 each was collected. Even from so small a county as Tallatetro, another special agent appointed since Mr. Allen, has dug up over $2,400. Mr. Allen's returns to the comptroller general's office for several months averaged over $4,000.

Others Appointed.

Seeing that the plan was a decided success, Governor Dorsey decided to add other special collectors. R. E. Church and J. F. Roberts have been in the field for two or three months and more recently Marshal Nelms, the governor's private secretary, has taken up the work temporarily. Governor Dorsey has made the same contract with all of them and required of them a bond sufficient to cover the state in any possible loss. All of them have reported good results.

C. C. Buchanan, of Waycross, has been added to the force and assigned a number of counties in southeast Georgia, but he has not yet started to work.

The net amount that has been turned into the state treasury so far after all commissions have been deducted, as shown by reports to the comptroller general's office, is $29,343.40. Other collections have been made which have not yet been officially entered which will bring this sum to well over $30,000.

SEES PILGRIMAGES TO SAGAMORE HILL

Charles E. Hughes, who won the republican presidential nomination from Theodore Roosevelt in 1916 and who was opposed to his political views, declares that in a future day "there will be pilgrimages to Sagamore Hill in equal number with those that are made to Mount Vernon."

C. W. McClure, state chairman of the Roosevelt Memorial association, and former progressive national committeeman from Georgia, today received a letter from Mr. Hughes in which the former supreme court justice said:

"I have a great desire that in all that is done memorializing Colonel Roosevelt there should be constantly impressed upon the succeeding generations of America the habit of thought and ideals of that man as he actually was and walked among us."

Jesup Bonds Carry.

Jesup, Ga., October 15.—(Special.) The bond election for sewers for the city of Jesup was carried overwhelmingly today, there being only eight votes cast against bonds. The election was for $30,000 worth of bonds.

DR. HARDIN PLEADS FOR HUMAN TOUCH IN TREATING SICK

Before a meeting of the Georgia Nurses Wednesday, Dr. Robert Hardin, of Rome, discussed the relationship of the spheres of doctor and nurse. In his talk Dr. Hardin strongly denounced the practitioners who are allowing the "human touch" to disappear, and are using exclusively the "cold-blooded work of the scientist." He states that there must be both science and love for humanity if the work in either profession is a success.

Miss Ada Woolfolk, associate director of civilian relief, southern division of the Red Cross, presented the program adopted for civilian relief in the south. "This work will be directed to the mental, moral and physical conditions of the people," stated Miss Woolfolk.

According to Miss Woolfolk, "a health laboratory is to be instituted in every rural district from which health reform and preventive measures will be directed."

Among the many plans discussed was the "Training School Standards and Facilities," presented by Mrs. Eva Tupman, of the Georgia Baptist hospital. She made a plea for better homes for the nurses, a vacation each year, and for study hours to be included in the working hours, so that the nurses should have the evenings for recreation.

Delegates visited the general hospital at Fort McPherson, and after visiting the wards they gathered in the rooms of the Red Cross house for a social hour.

Among the Georgia nurses in the receiving line were Misses Mattie Lee Cooper, Maude Smith, Virginia Gibbs, Gradie Baggarly, Ella Wells, Mary Hennemeyer, Mrs. Clifford Grinnel, Misses Willie Livesy, Margaret Bartley, all of Atlanta, and Ruth and Ruby Thomas, of Brunswick, Ga., and Debbie Grimes and Myrtle May.

In the party of more than 100 visiting nurses were Miss Henrietta Meyers, Savannah, president of the state association; Miss Van de Vrede, secretary of the southeastern division of the Red Cross, and Miss Sarah Sly, of Detroit. Miss Dougherty was a special guest of the Georgia Nurses.

COURTS TO DECIDE TAX OF STEAMSHIP COMPANY

Whether or not the Southland Steamship company of Savannah will be required to pay a tax on $395,000, the assessed valuation by Comptroller General W. A. Wright, the courts in Chatham county will be asked to decide on a bill filed by the company to enjoin the collection of the tax.

The Southland company was first incorporated under the Georgia law, but relinquished its charter last year to take out a charter in Maryland. When called on by the comptroller general for a tax return the company declared that it did not have to make returns to Georgia. It proposed to return its real estate, shipbuilding plant and fixtures at Ossabaw Island to the county tax receiver, but the tax receiver was notified by the comptroller general not to accept the returns.

Arbitrators were appointed but they could not agree upon an umpire. When the appointment of arbitrators was placed before the governor, the company gave notice that it would withdraw its request for arbitration. A fi. fa. was then issued by Comptroller General Wright and the company is now seeking to prevent the execution of it by court action.

GUILFORD WITHDRAWS DECISION TO RESIGN

Macon, Ma., October 15.—(Special.)—Announcement was made tonight that J. E. Guilford, who has been secretary and treasurer of the board of water commissioners for several years and who resigned recently, effective November 1, when he was made the target of criticism by Commissioner B. L. Hendricks, has withdrawn his resignation and has been unanimously re-elected to the position.

Following Guilford's resignation, the board considered several plans for operation of the water department and investigated the ability of combining the water department finances with those of other city departments and having one treasurer for all with only a bookkeeper for the water board. It was finally decided the present system was the best.

PLAN NOVEL FEATURE FOR SAVANNAH FAIR

Savannah, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—One of the most interesting features of the first three-state exposition to be given in Savannah in the autumn of 1920 by the permanent Savannah Fair association, will be an immense group of exhibits of goods and products, typical exhibits of distinctive interest, from all the countries with which there is trade carried on from this port.

There are more than 30 countries which regularly do business, export and import, through the port of Savannah and representatives of some of these countries have already signified their pleasure at taking up the plan and assuring a fine exhibit. The section of "exhibits from the countries we do business with" promises to be a miniature world's fair in itself.

FORMER ATLANTAN WINS HIGH HONORS

News of honors acquired by Major Joseph D. Eby, of Atlanta, at Walter Reed hospital, at Washington, where he is now stationed, will be learned with interest by his friends in the city. He has won a national and international reputation through the results he has accomplished in the treatment of wounds of the face and jaws and his originality in making all forms of mechanical devices used in the grafting operations for rebuildng faces and jaws.

Major Eby was a former well-known dentst of Atlanta. He is in charge of wounds of the face and jaws at Walter Reed hospital.

TO DEMAND J. O. JONES OF CAMP AUTHORITIES

Following the indictment of J. O. Jones, member of the provost guard at Camp Gordon, by the Fulton county grand jury Tuesday afternoon on the charge of murdering Leroy Pope in a Peters street pool room on September 25, Solicitor General John Boykin Wednesday was preparing papers making formal demand on the military authorities at the camp for Jones.

Solicitor Boykin stated that the case against Jones will not be set for trial until it is determined what the government authorities will do in the matter.

UNSATISFACTORY BIDS FOR STATE PROPERTY

Western and Atlantic Railroad Commission to Continue Negotiations for Lease.

Four bids were received yesterday by the Western an dAtlantic railroad commission for the lease of the property owned by the state in Chattanooga and authorized by the general assembly to be disposed of apart from the Western and Atlantic railroad to which it was formerly attached. All of the bids were rejected by the commission as unsatisfactory.

The commission then authorized its chairman, C. Murphey Candler, to negotiate privately for the lease of the property, the deal to be closed at another meeting of the board as soon as a satisfactory lessee could be found.

The property in question constitutes what are known as the Eastern hotel and the Southern Express building in Chattanooga. The commission in handling it are subject to the same regulations as were prescribed by the legislature for the leasing of the railroad. They may lease it up to a fifty-year term, but the lessee is required to deposit bonds of Georgia or the United States with the state treasurer to cover the first year's rent.

The commission asked the legislature last summer to prescribe somewhat different terms for the lease of this property and to authorize its sale. The senate, however, would not hear to the sale and the house passed a bill and went so far as to seek to limit the lease to a five-year term and put the matter in the hands of the railroad commission. As a result nothing was done and the W. & A. commission was left to act under the old law enacted for the lease of the railroad proper.

UNDERSEA TERRORS DELIGHT BRUNSWICK

Brunswick, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—The flotilla of submarines, accompanied by Eagle No. 25, one of the Henry Ford type of little fighters, which have been in Brunswick for the past four or five days, sailed this morning for Jacksonville, where they go to spend a week in the interest of navy recruiting. During the stay of the submarines and the Eagle in Brunswick they have been visited by thousands of people, who have been courteously shown over the little boats by the officers and crew, who have likewise been entertained during their visit to the city, two or three pleasant affairs having been given in their honor.

Yesterday afternoon Brunswick's water front was lined for many blocks with people anxious to see one of the submarines give an exhibition in diving, while seaplanes flew above. The submarine gracefully steamed down the river and suddenly started down, emerging in about two minutes. With only the top of the mast above the surface of the water she steamed down the harbor for a short distance under good speed, and finally the little mast disappeared, and no one would have ever known that the submarine was in the river. It is the first visit to this port of submarines.

NUT GROWERS' BODY OPENS ALBANY MEET

Albany, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—The National Nut Growers' association, which has memebrs in a number of states, met in annual convention here today, and its deliberations will extend through Friday. The enrollment of delegates is expected to reach several hundred, and the names of men who are most prominent in the nut industry, particularly pecan culture, are on the program for addresses.

B. W. Stone, of Thomasville, president of the association, ispresiding. The meeting of the convention is a reminder of the extent to which the pecan industry has grown during the last few years. Sixty thousand acres of pecan groves are in the Albany district alone, and millions of dollars have been invested. The crops of the last few years have been exceedingly valuable, and pecans are now shipped from this section incarload lots.

ALLEGED PEDDLERS OF DOPE FACE PROBE

Macon, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—A trio of alleged "dope" peddlers, two men and one woman, are being held in the Bibb county jail pending an investigation tomorrow of their alleged violation of the Harrison narcotic law. Revenue officers who arrested them say they had a large supply of morphine in their possession and each was equipped with a hypodermic needle used for injecting the drug into the body, which they admitted they carried for their personal use.

Federal officers claim that the use of the drug does not stop there and that they have been sellin it to others. The trio gave their names as Bari Weids, Harrie Weids and Bertha Weids. They dress neatly and appear above the average in intelligence. They claim they are from Oklahoma, but have so far failed to give any reason for coming to Macon.

JOE NEEL LEGION POST PERMANENTLY FORMED

Macon, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—The Joe Neel post, of the American Legion, of Macon, has perfected permanent organization and officers for the year have been elected. Lincoln McConnell, who has been temporary commander, has been elected to that office. Other officers of the post are Vivian, Roberts, vice commander; John J. McCreary, adjutant; Allen C. Clements, finance officer; Fred Walker, historian, and Rev. J. G. McDonough, chaplain.

The membership of the post now numbers 353 and the post is the third largest in the state. Arrangements are now being made for a "speechless" banquet to be served at one of the Macon hotels within the next few weeks, the exact date not yet having been decided.

USED BOAT TO REACH STILL; NEGRO HELD

Macon, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—H. Isdal, a white man, and Monroe Hall, a negro, both of Laurens county, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Martin here today charged with operating an illicit distilery. Isdal was discharged, while Hall was committed to jail in default of $500 bail. Revenue officers testified they had to use a boat to reach the still, and they found three outfits in full operation. In Hall's house, they said, they found 100 quarts bottled.

SAVANNAH RESUMES TRADE WITH GERMANY

Savannah, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—The resumption of trading between the port of Savannah and German points will be well under way in a few days. The Galesburg sailed today for Bremen and Hamburg with a cargo of cotton and the Canibas is now in port loading cotton for the same destinations. The West Erral is expected in port in a few days for a cargo. Regular sailings will be established in the course of the next few weeks.

Penalties Are Heavy For Guilty Offenders Against Uncle Sam

Macon, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—The "moonshine" docket of district court will be only about half disposed of at this session. JJudge Beverly D. Evans, of the United States district court, plans to leave Friday night for his home at Savannah, and Saturday will go to Montgomery, Ala., to sit on the circuit court of appeals, taking the place of the late Judge Don A. Pardee.

A number of cases were disposed of today, including two pleas of guilty in cases involving the raising of bills. Ben. F. Mitchell admitted, changing a $1 bill to $20. He drew a sentence of one year in the federal prison at Atlanta and a fine of $100. Paul W. Buchanan, who pleaded guilty to raising a $1 bill to $5, will be sentenced later.

Willie Giles, a negro, charged with breaking into the postoffice at Kathleen, Houston county, told the court he made a mistake as he did not know it was a postoffice he was robbing. He drew one year in the federal prison and a fine of $100.

FRANKLIN FRMERS HAVE FINE EXHIBIT

Carnesville, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—The planters of Franklin county are more prosperous than at any time in the history of the county. They are marketing an almost normal crop of cotton at high prices and as a result of the fact that experts claim the boll weevil will never damage cotton in this high altitude and red, stiff land, county farm lands run as high as $325 per acre twelve miles from railroads. This land made this year from one and a half to two bales of cotton per acre.

The happy farmers foregathered at the county fair here and one of the best exhibits ever seen in this section was due to efforts of County Demonstrator O. D. Hall. Those awarded prizes are as follows:

Corn club best ten ears, first, Newell Spears; second, Escoe Parham; third, James Brown; fourth, Guy Smith; fifth, Hoyt Williams; pig club registered Duroc, female, first, Carl Smith; male, first, Doyle Adair; registered Berkshire, male, first, L. C. South; registered Poland China, female, Cleo Mitchell; second, John Forrester; third, Ferd Terrell; registered Poland China, male, first, Paul Andrews; sow and litter of pigs, first, Collins Hall; pack of wheat, first, Neal Mize; second, John Forrester; peck of potatoes, first, Escoe Parham; agricultural exhibit, first, Dwight Means; second, Joe Means.

EXPEDITION MAY CLEAR VALBANERO MYSTERY

Miami, Fla., October 15.—Hope that the mystery surrounding the loss of the Spanish steamer Valbanera with its crew and passengers totaling 459 persons may be cleared up soon has been revived by reports reaching here that a Cuban expedition is being prepared to explore the wreck off Rebecca shoals.

The American government, according to the report, has been asked for permission to salvage the valuable cargo of wines and liquors and other merchandise aboard the foundered ship.

No reports of finding of bodies from the Valbanero have been certified. The theory held in Havana, it is said, is that the vessel was cut in half when it struck a reef, thus accounting for the fact that no lifeboats were launched.

TO INTRODUCE BILL FOR BIG BUILDING

Savannah, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—Congressman J. W. Overstreet, here to attend the Millen five-county fair, where he makes an address, stated in Savannah today that he will duplicate in the house the bill introduced by Senator W. J. Harris for a $1,000,000 federal building for Savannah.

ARMY ORDERS

(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, October 15.—Lieutenant Colonel William E. Hoyer, infantry, will proceed to Camp Benning, and report to the commandant infantry school of arms for duty.

Colonel Grayson V. Heidt, Q. M. C., on or prior to the expiration of his present leave of absence, will report to the commanding officer of the United States army general hospital No. 6, Fort McPherson, Ga., for further observation and treatment.

First Lieutenant Herbert L. Stephen, infantry, is relieved from his present duties as manager of the Liberty theater, Camp Gordon, and will repair to this city for duty.

Colonel Alvord Van P. Anderson, cavalry, upon completion of treatment at United States army general hospital No. 6, Fort McPherson, Colonel Anderson will return to his proper station at Greensboro, N. C.

Second Lieutenant Frank R. Whelan, corps of interpreters, is relieved from his present duties at the war prison barracks, Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., will proceed to this city for duty.

Chaplain James L. Robinson, United States army, now at Fort Screven, Ga., is relieved from duty in the coast defenses of Savannah. He will proceed to the canal zone for duty in the coast defenses of Cristobal.

First Lieutenant John W. Halsey, field artillery, is relieved from duty in the office of the judge advocate, southeastern department, and will proceed to Camp Gordon, and report to the commanding general fifth division for duty as assistant division judge advocate.

INSTRUCTOR HAD TO RESIGN PLACE

Prof. E. A. Lowry, of 412 Woodland Ave., Chattanooga, Tenn., who has been identified with some of the leading business colleges of the South, says he feels it his duty to give out a statement about the benefits he has derived from the use of Tanlac. In relating his experience with the famous medicine, Prof. Lowry says:

"I have been a teacher for thirty years, and twenty years of that time I was afflicted with indigestion. I have been treated by many specialists in different places where I have lived, but none of them was able to relieve my sufferings. I got into such a miserable state that I had to resign my position with the Chattanooga Business College, for I was unable to go on with my work.

"One of my friends in a neighboring city, where I was visiting, recommended Tanlac to me, and the results after taking it have been marvelous. Before taking Tanlac I was took weak to lift or carry anything heavy or even to walk any distance without getting sick and faint. Now I feel like a new man, can lift and carry quite heavy articles and my stomach trouble has entirely disappeared. My appetite is splendid. I sleep like a log and my nervousness is about all gone."

CHARGE COLLUSION IN PREVENTING SALE

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1919.)

Washington, October 15.—Collusion of private interests prevented the government from getting a reasonable bid for its great powder plant at Nitro, W. Va., Representative Graham, of Illinois, chairman of a special subcommittee, charged in the house. The largest offer was withdrawn, he said, because a great banking institution which had agreed to back it suddenly decided not to lend the money.

When bids were opened recently at the war department and it was found that the large tender, $5,800,000, would not even cover the value of the loose material at the powder plant, all offers were rejected. Mr. Graham told the house today that it was costing the government $40,000 a week to maintain the plant against the time it could be disposed of at something like a fair price. The war department spent $60,000,000 in erecting the plant and had advanced $14,500,000 to the Hercules Powder company to operate it. Only 4,500,000 pounds of powder had been manufactured at Nitro, said Mr Graham, and not a pound of this quantity ever had reached France.

"The investigations of this committee have disclosed what seems to be a disposition on the part of employees of the government to disregard the interests of the United States in making settlements," said Mr. Graham.

Representative Garrett, of Tennessee a democratic member of the committee, replied that this charge was best answered by the fact that all the bids for the plant had been rejected. He said work at the plant was not well under way before the armistice was signed and it would have been physically impossible to have shipped any of the powder abroad before hostilities ceased. Various manufacturers had made surveys of the plant, he declared, and the war department had honed to get a better price from one of them by selling the plant outright than by junking the equipment.

Chairman Graham said the committee was not ready to submit a final report but thought giving publicity to the facts might result in obtaining a fairer price for the plant at which the loose material alone was worth more than $11,000,000.

Plant for Gainesville.

Gainesville, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—John H. Hosch, William H. Hosch, Lester W. Hosch, Ralph B. Hosch and Heyward C. Hosch, composing the wholesale house of Hosch Brothers company, have applied for a charter for the Hosch Manufacturing company. The charter will be a very comprehensive one, but they will start in a limited way by making overalls, shirts, pants, etc., for their own trade.

Miss Frances Akin Weds Mr. Amberg in Asheville

The marriage of Miss Frances John Akin and Mr. Harold Vincent Amberg, formerly of Chicago, which was solemnized yesterday at high noon in the colonnade room of the Grove Park inn, was a social event, in which the interest of a number of Atlantans centered.

The ceremony was performed by Father Marion, in the presence of a group of relatives and friends. The altar was an artistic arrangement of palms in pyramid effect, and a basket filled with Easter lilies starred the center of the altar. Two seven-branched Cathedral candlesticks were placed on either side of the altar, which was flanked by bay trees.

The lovely bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Howard B. Odell, of Atlanta, with whom she entered the room, wearing a handsome model of gray satin, the skirt draped in the style now in vogue, and completing the costume, was a hat of soft brown tulle, trimmed with Paradise in the natural shade. She carried a bridal bouquet of orchids combined with valley lilies.

Matron of Honor.

Mrs. Verdery Akin McMichael, a sister of the bride, was the matron of honor and she was elegantly gowned in midnight blue panne velvet. Her hat was a model of gray moire ribbon and she carried a bouquet of orchids, showered with pink roses.

The two little flower girls, the nieces of the bride, Misses Frances and Ruth Odell, wore exquisite frocks of white georgette crepe, trimmed with Val lace, and sashed with pink satin ribbon, and they carried French baskets filled with pink rosebuds. Mr. Theodore Amberg, of Kansas City, a brother of the groom, acted as best man.

Mrs. Howard B. Odell, the bride's younger sister, wore a costume of cete de negre satin, with overdraperies of biege chiffon. Her hat was a turban of brown velvet, and she wore Parma violets as a corsage. Mrs. L. P. Bradley, of Cartersville, was gowned in black satin, with hat of black velvet. She wore a corsage of white roses.

Mrs. Samuel Dick, of Atlanta, wore a smart gown of midnight blue chiffon, draped over blue satin, and a hat of black velvet. Her flowers were pink roses in corsage effect.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served, the decorations being carried out in pink roses and Easter lilies. Mr. and Mrs. Howard B. Odell were hosts at the breakfast, which was artistic in the appointments.

The Bride.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Akin and the late Judge Akin, of Cartersville, one of Georgia's most prominent citizens. She is a young woman of unusual culture and charm, a graduate of Leland Stanford university, her course there following two years at Smith college. She is one of the most popular young women in the social life and has recently returned from France, where she did a year's valuable work with the Red Cross, as she and her sister, Mrs. McMichael, were the first Atlanta women who went overseas, where the bride was in the department of requirements in the manufacture of surgical dressings, as she qualified in the highest point of efficiency in her work. She served in the Red Cross throughout the entire time the United States was at war, and only returned to this country last June. She met Mr. Amberg while she was on duty in France, where he was one of the shipping board's representatives at the conferences held in Paris after the armistice. He is a garduate of Harvard from the academic and law school courses. He left the practice of law to become associated in the work of the government for three years, and was associated with Chairman Hurley. Mr. and Mrs. Amberg left after the wedding breakfast for a wedding journey in the west. Afterward they will make their home in New York, where Mr. Amberg is alawyer of recognized ability in the professional world.

Among the wedding guests were: Mr. Edward M. Hurley, of Washington, D. C., former chairman of the shipping board and a cousin of Mr. Amberg's; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Odell, of Cleveland, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Russell, of Chicago; Mrs. Arthur Christie, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Edson Bradley, of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Patterson, of Pasadena, Cal.; Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Hurley, of Wheaton, Ill.; Mr. Theodore Amberg, of Chicago; Mr. Kenneth Hawkins, of Chicago; Mr. T. W. Amberg, of Kansas City; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Amberg, of Montclair, N. J.; Mr. Paul Amberg, of New York; Mr. Champ Corry, of Chicago; Mr. George T. Rice, of Chicago, Ill., and Mrs. R. P. Bellows, of Boston.

Banquet and Dance For Miss Stirling.

On Wednesday evening, October 22, the directors and members of the Atlanta Athletic club will honor Miss Alexa Stirling, national woman golf champion, with a banquet and dance at the East Lake Country club.

The club has invited the members of the Piedmont Driving club, the Druid Hills Golf club and the Capital City club to take part in honoring Miss Stirling, as she not only won the highest golf honor for the Atlanta Athletic club, but for the other clubs of Atlanta as well. The dinner will be served at 8 o'clock, the guest of honor being seated at a large, round table in the center of the large living room, with the directors of the club and their wives, the presidents of the invited clubs and their wives, Miss Stirling's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Stirling, and sisters, Mrs. Walter Davidson and Miss Nora Stirling, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Jones and Mr. Robert Jones, Jr. The club will be beatuifully decorated with smilax and cut flowers. An augmented large orchestra will render music for the dancing. The toastmaster and speakers will be announced later. Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Speer have made reservations, and Colonel and Mrs. W. L. Peel have reserved a table.

Those wishing reservations will please call the East Lake club as soon as possible, as reservations will not be accepted after Tuesday, October 21.

Honoring Madame Jarrett.

Mrs. Robert R. Otis entertained at her home on Piedmont avenue Monday afternoon, complimenting Madame Jarrett, of Paris, who, with her friend, Mrs. Mary Jarrett White, of Tugalo, Ga., were the guests of friends in Atlanta this week.

Miss Mildred Cabaniss won the top score prize, a box of embroidered handkerchiefs, and Madame Jarrett was presented with a special prize.

Mrs. Otis wore a gown of white georgette crepe, over white satin. Madame Jarrett wore black chiffon with collar of Bruges lace.

Only French was spoken during the afternoon and eight members of Madame Bizien's French circle were the guests of Mrs. Otis. Bridge was played during the afternoon.

Today's Calendar

The Debutante club will be entertained at a luncheon by Miss Margaret Pratt at her home on Fairview road.

Miss Frances West, a bride-elect, whose marriage to Mr. Audley McCallee will be an event of Saturday morning at 11 o'clock at the Druid Hills Methodist church, will be the guest of honor at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Osborn.

Mrs. Paul Clement will be hostess at a luncheon at her home on Westminster drive complimenting Miss Sarah Bess Clement, a bride-elect of next week.

Miss Elizabeth Shewmake will entertain a bridge-tea at 4 o'clock at the Piedmont Driving club in honor of Miss Sarah Bess Cleemnt, whose marriage to Mr. James A. Bankston will be an event of October 21.

The members of the O. B. X. club will be entertained by Mrs. William H. Kiser, at "Knollwood," her home, on Pace's Ferry road, to complete the arrangements for the dance.

Mrs. H. T. Dobb's matinee party and tea will be for Miss Edith Couch and her bridesmaids.

Mrs. O. D. Gorman, Jr., will entertain the wedding party for the Thomas-Keyes wedding at a dinner-dance at the Capital City club.

The regular East Lake dinner-dance, possibly the last of the al fresco entertainments, will be given in the evening.

There will be a dinner and dance at 8 o'clock in the evening at the Capital City club.

There will be a cafeteria supper-dance given at St. Phillip's chapter house on Hunter and Washington streets.

Honoring Mrs. Campbell.

Mrs. William R. Campbell, of Asheville, N. C., the guest of Mrs. Jesse Couch, was the central figure at a luncheon yesterday, given in her honor by Mrs. J. Hall Miller, at the Piedmont Driving club. The luncheon table was adorned with a French basket filled with varicolored dahlias, and the guests' places were marked with monogramed cards of the hostess in gilt.

Mrs. Miller wore a gown of dark blue georgette crepe, beaded in conventional design, and a hat of black velvet.

Mrs. Campbell was gowned in blue serge, with hat of blue velvet.

Covers were laid for Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Joseph Raine, Mrs. Louis Gregg, Mrs. Robert Gregg and Mrs. Jesse Couch.

JUDGE S. H. SIBLEY GUEST OF HONOR OF ATLANTA BAR

The Atlanta Bar association entertained at a large dinner last evening at the Druid Hills Golf club in compliment to Judge and Samuel H. Sibley, newly appointed federal judge, and Mrs. Sibley.

The ballroom where the table was placed was elaborately decorated in palms, ferns and quantities of fall flowers. The central decoration of the table was a plateau of yellow and white chrsyanthemums and the other details were carried out in the same color motif.

Making Little Spendthrifts Of Children in America

By Isma Dooly.

In the hysteria of the moment, when a certain element of people are basking in the sunshine of an unexpected prosperity in wage, one hears of expenditures for luxuries not to be marveled at, especially among those who have never had similar experiences.

That a tempering influence will some day come, the thoughtful believe, but in the meantime some very demoralizing things are happening and young America is the victim.

An incident of this is related by one of the Atlanta women workers in the thrift movement, who visited a home recently where an estimable woman—a young widow with limited means—is endeavoring to rear properly her young family.

The visitor's conversation was interrupted by the little daughter of the household coming in and asking to go to the store nearby with "Susie" and "Essie," two little girl neighbors.

The mother looked troubled but the three little girls were so eager that the mother consented to her little girl going.

Then she remarked: "My children are being demoralized by these two little girls. Not that they are naughty, nor ill-bred, but their father, in his desire to share his sudden prosperity with his family, gives each one of the little girls 50 cents a day pin money, and they are spendthrifts in the making."

"I cannot afford to give my children pin money, nor can any of the neighbors, yet our children play with Susie and Essie; they are 'treated' by them daily, at the corner store, where frequent trips are made. Candy, ice cream, cakes, peanuts, pickles are bought and now they are all of them wanting to make trips to town to buy anything the store may not keep.

"Think of it, what this money being wasted by these poor little children could do for them, if they could be taught to save it," continued this earnest mother.

"The $7.00 a week wasted by the little girls means $28 a month, and $336 a year.

"That amount saved for them, say for ten years, would warrant their having a college education, and certainly in the meantime their digestive organs would be kept in a better condition.

"Then the father's earning capacity may not continue, and there will be nothing laid aside for the indulged children, then tragedy comes into their lives just at the moment their life careers begin, and they themselves will never realize that a misguided parental indulgence brought them to grief."

Nobody begrudges any child all the joy it can get out of life, and many people spend money and time to make less fortunate children happy, but what folly it is at this period of reconstruction era, when the nation is calling for a practical and far-reaching thrift and savings habit, that some parents should deliberately make spendthrifts of their children!

Miss Goldsmith is the lovely debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William S. Goldsmith, and Miss Johnson is a popular member of society and the daughter of Mrs. W. H. Gorman.

Red Cross Workers Present Silver Vase to Mrs. Dickey

Mrs. James L. Dickey, chairman of the canteen corps of the Atlanta chapter of the Red Cross, was presented with a beautiful silver vase by a number of her co-workers at the Red Cross house yesterday afternoon.

Lee Ashcraft, chairman of the chapter, presented the vase to Mrs. Dickey on behalf of her co-workers, and paid to her high tribute for her faithful services to the Red Cross during the period of the war, and since, when the Red Cross has continued in service through the home service section, the canteen committee and the hospitals.

Mr. Ashcraft referred to women who served their country through the Red Cross overseas, but believed those who stayed at home found equal opportunity for self-sacrifice and service.

Night and day the canteen workers have been at the trains at all hours of the day and night, in all kinds of weather, and in all emergencies. Thousands of soldiers were cheered on their way overseas and lovingly welcomed on their return, and always the home robed women of the canteen kept their faith in the service they had pledged. No committee had worked more faithfully than the canteen committee under the inspiring and noble leadership of Mrs. Dickey, who has devoted her entire time and interest to the work.

Elaborate Luncheon For Mrs. Pankhurst.

One of the most brilliant of the late social events was the luncheon yesterday at the Piedmont hotel given in honor of Mrs. Emmaline Pankhurst, the noted British suffragist.

The central decoration of the oblong table was a large basket of fall flowers gathered from the gardens of some of Atlanta's most brilliant women. Dahlias, zinnias, ajeratum, asters, cosmos and chrysanthemums were artistically arranged.

Mrs. Pankhurst was introduced by Miss Eleanor Raoul, chairman of the citizens' committee of women.

Covers were laid for Mrs. Pankhurst, Mrs. Charles Goodman, Mrs. W. A. Morris, Mrs. A. G. Helmer, Mrs. E. E. Smith, Mrs. F. J. Graham, Mrs. Albert Spalding, Mrs. Louise Foster, Mrs. Hugh Richardson, Mrs. Frank Golden, Mrs. James L. Beavers, Mrs. F. M. Mitchell, Mrs. S. Boone, Mrs. Harry Hartman, Mrs. George Dexter, Mrs. B. M. Blount, Mrs. Ernest Duncan, Mrs. William Rawson, Mrs. Elliott Cheatham, Mrs. Vergil Estes, Mrs. Haynes McFadden, Mrs. Phillip Wilcox, Mrs. C. P. Ozburn, Miss Eleanor Raoul, Mrs. W. G. Raoul, Mrs. W. J. Brooks, Mrs. William E. Duncanson, Miss Vecta Blackburn, Miss Blanche Schrack, Mrs. O. C. Cole, Mrs. G. F. Fulton, Miss Tinsley Harrison, Miss Sally Fanny Gleaton, Mrs. Beaumont Davison, Mrs. Katherine Weatherby, Mrs. G. V. B. Higdon, Dr. C. S. Hodge, Captain George Harrison, Mr. William McKenzie, Mr. Francis Clarke, Mr. Keyes and others.

Mrs. Dannals, Hostess.

Miss Martha Davenport, of Chattanooga, was the honor guest at the pretty informal luncheon given Tuesday by her hostess, Mrs. Charles Dannals, at the Piedmont Driving club.

An artistic arrangement of ajuratum, pink rosebuds and maidenhair fern formed the central decoration of the table, and the other details were in the same shades.

Mrs. Dannals wore a smart gown of blue serge with a hat of green pattern.

Covers were laid for eight.

For Miss Clement.

Miss Margaret Horton entertained at a seated luncheon at the Georgian Terrace on Wednesday at 1 o'clock in honor of Miss Sarah Bess Clement, a bride-elect of this month.

A silver basket of white chrysanthemums formed the central decorations of the prettily appointed table and the place cards were kewpie brides. Tiny white umbrellas, tied with dainty bows of tulle caught with orange blossoms, were the favors.

WOMEN WORKERS

In almost every line of war activities the women of this country have done well and have taken front rank for doing work that released thousands of men for service overseas. Some women have been over-ambitious, and, at the expense of their health, have filled places once occupied by men. Every woman who, because of overwork, has brought on some ailment peculiar to her sex, should depend upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore her health and strength, as this remedy is now recognized as the standard and has restored multitudes.—(adv.)

HOW TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

A Cincinnati Barber Tells How to Make a Remedy for Gray Hair.

Mr. Frank Harbaugh of Cincinnati, Ohio, who has been a barber for more than forty years, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is easy to use, does not color the most delicate scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."—(adv.)

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE

People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel: there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Dr Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 10c and 25c.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

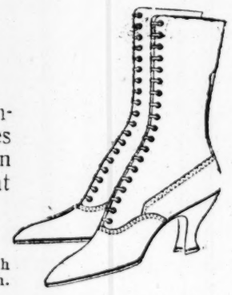

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract known the world over for its healing effect on membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

100,000 VISITORS CAME TO ATLANTA FOR GRAY REUNION

One hundred thousand visitors were entertained in Atlanta during the confederate reunion, and 10,000 of these were veterans, according to the report in the weekly bulletin issued by the Atlanta Convention Bureau.

Fred Houser, secretary of the convention bureau, says that the parade was the longest that Atlanta has ever seen, and holds the opinion that it was the most enthusiastic within itself, and the most enthusiastically received.

"Interest was manifested and gratitude was shown the venerable old men of the sixties, from the newsboy to the man of fortune," the review says.

Women Amateurs Win Prizes In Floral Exhibit at the Fair

The floral exhibit in the woman's department of the Southeastern fair attracted a large crowd yesterday, and the standard of the exhibit was the best yet seen at any previous exhibition.

Mrs. T. O. Plunkett, chairman of the floral committee, announced yesterday that the prize winners were as follows:

At the dahlia show, which was held Monday and Tuesday, Mrs. Oscar Palmour won the first prize for the best six blooms in the class of white, pink, yellow and red.

Mrs. R. D. Nesbitt won the second prize for the best yellow and pink and blooms, and Mrs. E. P. Crenshaw won the second prize for the best red blooms.

For the best collection of dahlias, not less than 12 blooms, Mrs. Palmour won the first prize; Mrs. Henry Johnson, Jr., second prize, and Mrs. G. L. Richardson, third.

For the best decorative vase of flowers of four different varieties, the first prize was won by Wackendorf Brothers, and the second prize by Mrs. Oscar Palmour.

Best Peonies.

Wackendorf Brothers won the first prize for the best 12 peonies, and for the best cactus dahlias.

For the best vase of 25 blooms of five varieties, Wackendorf Brothers won the first prize, and Mrs. Palmour second. For the best vase of 50 blooms, of 10 varieties, Wackendorf won the prize.

For best collection of dahlias, the first prize was won by Mrs. Henry Johnson, Jr., and Wackendorf won the second.

Best two decorative plants the first prize was won by Dahl, and the second by Mrs. Ira Smith.

Garden Flowers.

For the best selection of garden flowers, the prizes were won by Mrs. G. L. Richardson, Mrs. Oscar Palmour and Mrs. Sarah Kate Broome.

Chrysanthemum Show.

The competition in the chrysanthemum exhibit will begin Friday and last through Saturday, and a wonderful exhibit of blooms has been entered. There is the keenest competition in the various classes, and prizes are offered to professionals, amateurs, and in an open class.

The Wackendorf company have presented the floral committee with a number of the Celosia plants, which have become such a popular plant, and the committee will sell them, giving the proceeds to charity.

For the flowers presented by the same firm last year and sold, the money was used for the care of two French orphans.

Members of New Dancing Club.

The first of the series of tea dances which will be given by the members of the Club de Vingt will take place at the Capital City club on Saturday afternoon, October 25, at 4 o'clock.

This event promises to be one of the brightest affairs of the season for the younger set. The dances at the Terrace last winter and spring were very happy occasions and their resumption is anticipated with a great deal of pleasure.

Mrs. John E. Murphy, Mrs. Henry L. de Give, Mrs. Joseph Raine, Mrs. H. F. Shedden, Mrs. Edward Van Winkle and Mrs. William T. Healey were among the chaperons at the first meeting of the Club de Vingt, which was held in the ballroom of the Capital City club yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The Club de Vingt is under the direction of Mr. Arthur Murray, of the Georgian Terrace, is a new dancing club of boys and girls and is made up of the younger members of society.

The Club de Vingt was so named because there were 20 members in the original class at the Terrace. They are the Misses Mary and Harriett Shedden, Rebecca Harrell, Adeline Winston, Lettie Witherspoon, Mary Ann Lipscomb, Emmie Nixon, Sue Bucknell, Emily Davis, Ann Spalding, Messrs. Edward Van Winkle, Nisbet Marye, Rutherford Ellis, J. Epps Brown, Jr., William Nixon, Edward Winston, Lloyd Hatcher, George L. Morton, Jr., Henry S. Johnson, Jr., and Francis and John Willis.

For Mrs. Wood.

Mrs. Bliss W. Cook entertained at a matinee party Tuesday afternoon, the honor guest of the occasion being Mrs. W. A. Wood, of Columbia, S. C., who is visiting Mrs. McSwain Wood. Invited to meet the honor guest were Mrs. Richard D. Powell, Mrs. John Beddingfield, Mrs. Robert Mullunix and Mrs. McSwain Wood. An informal tea followed the matinee party.

Honoring Mrs. Durant.

Mrs. Armand Durant, one of the most attractive among the October visitors, will be the central figure at a tea given Friday afternoon at the Capital City club at 5 o'clock, at which her mother, Mrs. Edward Durant, will be hostess.

Mrs. Durant, the honor guest, is a recent bride, and with her husband, Captain Durant, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Durant at their home on Peachtree road.

Invited to meet Mrs. Durant are Mrs. William Grant, Jr., Mrs. Eugene Black, Jr., Miss Eloise Robinson, Miss Nellie Dodd, Miss Georgia Rice, Miss Isoline Campbell, Miss Blanche Divine, Miss Caroline Blount, Miss Mary Murphey, Miss Hallie Crawford and Miss Jean Ashcraft, of North Carolina, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Andrews.

Reception and House-Warming to Be Given.

A reception and house warming will be given to the patrons and friends of the Moreland Avenue school on Friday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock at the school, corner of Euclid and Austin avenues.

BITTER TASTE, SOUR STOMACH

Pills and Strong Medicines Made This Lady's Troubles Worse, But Thedford's Black-Draught Improved Her Appetite and Took Away Her Bile.

Nancy, Ky.—Mrs. Cora Waddle, a resident of this place, gives out this statement: "I have taken Black-Draught and found it to be the best liver medicine I ever used. It has just been fine for indigestion, sour stomach and a bitter taste in the mouth.

I used to get bilious and constipated and had to take something. Pills and other strong medicines would only tear my stomach up and leave me in a worse fix than before taking. I began to have sick headache.

After learning of Black-Draught I took it and was cured of sick headaches. One or two doses a week, or a pinch after meals, kept the bowels open and took away all bile. I have a good appetite, due to my use of Black-Draught."

If your liver is not acting properly you may suffer from such symptoms as headache, biliousness, constipation, indigestion, etc., and unless relief is obtained serious trouble may result.

In its 70 years of successful use, Thedford's Black-Draught has been found to relieve these ailments and stimulate the liver to do its work.

LET "DANDERINE" SAVE YOUR HAIR

Get rid of every bit of that ugly Dandruff and stop falling hair.

To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter for a few cents, pour a little in your hand and rub well into the scalp. After several applications all dandruff usually goes and hair stops coming out. Every hair in your head soon shows new life, vigor, brightness, thickness, and more color.—(adv.)

Here's a Fine Tonic Laxative, Says Druggist

Every other night for three weeks it's your duty to brew a cup of this great vegetable tea—that is, if you want better blood, clear complexion and sparkling eyes.

Celery King

Get a package to-day. It costs but a trifle, but as a health builder is worth its weight in gold.

Normal bowel action, perfect working stomach and sweet breath follow its use.

PROMINENT MACON WOMAN ENDS LIFE BY JUMP IN RIVER

Macon, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—Miss Kate Long, music teacher, and sister of A. J. Long, one of the leading business men of Macon, ended her life today by drowning herself in the Ocmulgee river. Her body was recovered late this evening after the river had been dragged. It was found a short distance from the spot where it went down.

As for as known, Oscar Mobbs, an employee of the Macon Fuel and Supply company, was the only one who saw Miss Long just before she took the fatal jump. He was working on a pump when Miss Long passed along the railroad track. She spoke to him and continued on her way. Happening to glance up the river a short time later, Mobbs saw the form of a woman swinging from a limb of a tree out over the river. He called C. T. Amos, engineer at the plant, and together they went to the spot to investigate.

As they drew near, Miss Long saw them and released her hold on the limb. Her body sank from view, and though she was known to be an expert swimmer, she made no effort to save herself. The water was 20 feet deep at the spot where the body sank. On the river bank Miss Long had left her personal belongings, and it was these that led to her identification.

J. A. Long said he could give no reason for his sister's act. She had not appeared to be despondent, he said. Miss Long is survived by her mother, Mrs. Rebecca Long; two brothers, A. J. Long, of Macon, and Frank Long, of Mandarin, Fla.; one older brother, E. T. Sterling, of Macon, and two sisters, Mrs. M. J. Carroll, of Macon, and Mrs. W. T. Wright, of Americus.

O'QUINN IS ELECTED MERCER GRID LEADER

Macon, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—Charlie O'Quinn, of Odum, has been elected captain of the Mercer university football squad for this season. O'Quinn plays right end and was considered one of the best punters in the S. I. A. A. in 1916. This will be his second year of college football, as Mercer did not put out a team in 1917 or 1918.

SAVANNAHIANS FLOCK TO FIVE-COUNTY FAIR

Savannah, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—Today is "Savannah day" at the five-county fair at Millen, Jenkins county. This morning three solid coaches of Savannah business men, flanked by scores of automobile parties taking the highway, left for Millen. The Greater Savannah Commercial club, the board of trade, the Rotary club and other organizations sent delegations, of from 50 to 200, to represent Savannah at Millen.

(CHAPTER XV.—CONTINUED.)

He was watching her closely while he talked, although his tone was a bantering, rather than a decided one.

He saw that she sighed again, resignedly and that she was vastly more disappointed than she wished him to know. He was more than ever convinced that she was keeping something from him that she wanted to tell, and which, for some inexplicable reason, she withheld.

"Who is it that you wish to be rid of?" he asked abruptly. "Belknap?"

Instantly she was on guard.

Her husband's question might have been purely accidental, or there might have been a purpose behind it. She did not wait to inquire of her own mind, but replied instantly:

"Did you notice, Bingham," she asked, "that Mr. Belknap was the only one of our entire guest list who did not appear when Mme. Savage alarmed the whole house?"

"Yes," he replied coolly. "I did notice it; but I knew why he did not."

"He, too, like the senorita, discovered prowlers in the grounds around Myquest, but with the difference that he actually encountered one of them, and had been very badly handled when he returned to the veranda where I waited him, you'll remember. He had lost his watch stickpin and some money—and an important message or letter, which he went back to search for at the spot where he was attacked."

Katherine, in her amazement, gasped, and Harvard misunderstood the reason for it.

"Do you mean that he was robbed—actually robbed—in our grounds?" she demanded.

"Yes; perhaps by the same prowler, or prowlers, that the senorita saw, and that Mme. Savage shot at. However, you have not replied to my question."

"What was it, Bingham?"

"You would not want to go away, just now, unless there were some persons here whom you prefer to be rid of. I asked you if that person is Mr. Conrad Belknap?"

"Oh. Why, yes, I suppose so, when all is said. He is a stranger to us, isn't he? One can't say that he really belongs, you know. But, dear, the truth is, that I would like to be rid of all of them—every last one of them."

They had remained standing while they talked. Now, Harvard reached out and put his arms around Katherine, and drew her close to him, kissing her brow, and inhaling the fragrance of her hair. Then, holding her so, he asked:

"Has something happened to annoy you, Katherine? Has any person annoyed you, by word or deed? If anything of that kind has occurred I want you to tell me."

"No, no, no, no!" she exclaimed, so vehemently that he suspected she was not entirely truthful. Then she broke away from him and laughed. "How silly we are, just because of a burglar scare," she said. "Do go to bed, Bingham. Do you know what time it is?"

"I wonder," Harvard remarked tentatively, as he turned toward the door to his own part of the suite and while his back was toward Katherine, "if you, also, saw a prowler under your window, last night?" I wonder if that is what you want to tell me, and are afraid to tell—lest I should go outside and get hurt, or—hurt somebody else?"

Then, before she could reply, he wheeled and faced her—for his own words had provided the key to the mystery that perplexed him so sorely.

"What has Belknap done to you, or what is he trying to do? Tell me!" he demanded.

CHAPTER XVI.

An Appalling Situation.

There was a crucial instant for Katherine Harvard when her husband put the abrupt question which was a demand rather than an interrogation.

It was one of those vital instants when one has only a flash of time in which to determine a course which must be adhered to indefinitely—in which a thousand queries and replies pass into and out of one's mind with the rapidity of thought which can span the distance between earth and sun with one ten-millionth of a second.

Katherine realized in that instant—when there was no perceptible pause at all—that she had to choose between a deliberate deception and a complete revelation of all of the facts. Merely a part of the truth, with something withheld, would not suffice for Bingham Harvard, once called the Night Wind by the men who had hunted him.

Katherine lied to him—and hated herself for doing so the instant when it had been done; yet, had she been given an hour or a day to think it over, she must have arrived at the same decision—for the dread of what Bing might do filled her with terror.

"What has Belknap done to you, or what is he trying to do? Tell me!" was the demand that he made upon her; and her reply was ready as soon as the last two words were pronounced.

"Mr. Belknap?" she questioned instantly—and Katherine was a perfect actress in such emergencies.

The pronouncement of Belknap's name interrogatively was made with such perfect simulation of astounded surprise that it was quite enough without further remark. It was so adroitly done that it disarmed Harvard; and she added:

"What has he done, or tried to do—to me? Why, what could he do—what could anybody do—what could any person try to do to Bingham Harvard's wife—or dare to try to do, that might affront her?"

Harvard sighed, unconsciously, and with an inward sense of relief.

"Then, dear, answer your own question—the one that you have just asked," he said. "What has anybody done, or tried to do, that is not to your liking?"

"Nothing," she replied.

Thus Katherine uttered the first lie—why soften it by substituting the word untruth?—that she had ever told to her husband.

Harvard sighed again.

He believed her—because he had never known her to deceive. Yet there remained in the back of his mind a mental reservation of doubt. It was so faint, so obscure, as to be unrecognizable, but it was there.

He kissed her forehead again, curbed and withheld other questions that sought utterance, held her close in his arms for a second, said "Go to bed, now, sweetheart," and left her.

When the door had closed and he was gone, Katherine moved about the room in her final preparations for bed, methodically; automatically is perhaps a better word.

She turned down the bed-clothing, snapped off the lights, returned to her bed, got into it, pulled the covers over her, snuggled into her pillows, and closed her eyes. But—she was another Katherine; she was not the same personality that she had been a little, just a very little while before.

She had told her husband a lie.

Sleepless, although motionless and with closed eyes—for she was trying to sleep—the events of the night since she came to her room from the veranda passed in review before her. She mentally visualized everything chronologically.

Again, in retrospect, she put on her negligee, snapped off her lights, and stepped from her window to the little balcony to enjoy the night air.

Again Belknap made his appearance beneath her window, and dared to address her intimately, by her given name, and by another one which only an extremely favored few were permitted to use; again the senorita—Roberta—came to her room, frightened, or pretending to be frightened, by burglars.

Katherine had not believed, then, nor did she believe while she thought it over, in the genuineness of that fright. She had thought then, as she still thought, that it had been simulated. But why—for what purpose?

In the light of what had happened afterward—with the appearance of real burglars and the attempted entrance to the room of Mme. Savage; with the absence of Belknap from the scene that followed, and with the senorita's too-reluctant reappearance, hovering at the edge of the partly clad group of startled guests—there could be only one answer to those two questions.

Katherine opened her eyes wide and sat up in bed, startled into sudden revelation when that answer occurred other; and she whispered it breathlessly, in a hushed whisper.

"That attempt at burglary upon Mme. Savage was real; it was genuine. Belknap knows who those burglars were, and was expecting them. He went from the veranda into the paths among the shrubbery and trees to meet them. They saw him under my window, and they quarreled; perhaps that accounts for his bruises. Roberta is Belknap's accomplice—she knows why he is at Myquest—what he intends to do—and she came to my room to warn me by the only method she dared to use."

Instantly, when she arrived at that solution of the mysteries of the night, Katherine sprang out of bed, seized her discarded negligee, and without switching on the lights, thrust her feet into her bed-slippers and ran—literally ran—to the door.

She opened it softly, passed to the outside, closed it noiselessly, and glided like a ghost in pink, to the senorita's door.

She hesitated there for an instant, listening. Then she tapped softly upon it, and waited.

There was no answer, even when she tapped a second time, more loudly, so she grasped the knob, turned it, discovered that the door was not locked, and entered the room.

Senorita Cervantez was not there. The bed had not been disturbed.

TIME TO YELL

It was perfectly evident that there had been a slight altercation. In any event, Nick had been summoned to the house.

It was a fight, or a pseudo fight, or an embryo fight, his father and mother weren't quite clear which, but they intended to find out.

"Who started it—and what was the matter—and what did you have in your hand—and were you going to throw that stone—and what did the other boy say—?" It was a kind of antiphonal chorus with one question from father and one from mother and defiant monosiyabic answers from Nick. A sort of infantile "third degree," you might call it, with Nick in the witness chair and the prosecutors bringing pressure to bear to get the evidence.

Finally, even Nick's nerve gave way, and he exclaimed in desperation, "If I hear any more about that fight, I'll yell."

Nick saved the day, but he will never know why. It was too much for their sense of humor and they laughed. After that it was all off.

That ended the matter with Nick on that day. But it doesn't exactly end it with every sensitive kid who hates inquisition and the third degree as much as any grown person could hate it.

There is a queer misapprehension among many grown-up people that because children don't understand all the issues of life as clearly as their elders, they are utterly lacking in all the finer sensibilities.

The humane society is supposed to keep people from beating up children's bodies. But there isn't any society which prevents folks from fairly crucifying a youngster's mind and more particularly his self-respect.

The only difference between Nick and a lot of the rest of us, by the way, is that Nick spoke his mind.

Have you never sat at a dinner table and heard some member of the family keep on proving a point long after the matter has grown painful to all present?

It takes a saving sense of tact to know when one has enough on a given subject, a sense the lack of which has caused many a matrimonial bark to founder.

Yes, Nick, we know just how you feel, and your parents owed it to your nervous system and your self-respect and your peace of mind to lay off on that fight question before the yelling time came.

A bit of thrashing would have been easier to bear than all that solemn questioning, wouldn't it?

But parents are queer folks and think it's part of their business to rub it in. Even when it's evident that one feels like yelling.

Says Abour One-Fifth Of American School Children Are Underfed

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1919.)

Philadelphia, October 15.—From three to six million American school children are not getting enough to eat, according to Miss Jessie R Haver, legislative representative of the National Consumers' league, who spoke today at a meeting of the consumers' league of eastern Pennsylvania, at the City club.

Miss Haver said that this information came from the United States children's bureau, and that this includes from 15 to 20 per cent of all the school children and leaves out children between the ages of two and seven.

"The National Consumers' league is after the packers who try to assume meat control and if the proposed Kenyon-Kendrick bill goes through, we have taken a big step in that direction," said Miss Haver.

"Nine O'Clock" To Give Balls.

At the first meeting of the year of the Nine o'Clock club last night officers for the coming year were elected and plans for two brilliant balls were discussed.

Mr. Lynn Werner was re-elected president; Mr. Hunter Perry, secretary and treasurer. The board of directors includes Mr. Jesse Draper, Mr. J. Bowie Martin and Mr. Wellborn Blalock.

Only two balls instead of the usual three will be given and the first of these will take place on Thanksgiving and the other will occur some time during the Chrismas holidays and will be an interesting fancy dress affair.

The balls given by the Nine o'Clock are looked forward to by the debutantes with a great deal of pleasure as these affairs are among the most exclusive given in Atlanta and the dances this winter will be the first since the war.

Wednesday there was a board meeting to decide on the new members as membership is extended by invitation only.

Grandmother's Club Is Entertained.

The members of the Grandmothers' club were entertained informally yesterday at a spend-the-day party, at which Mrs. George McCarty was hostess.

U. D. C. Notice.

The delegates from the Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., going to the state convention to be held in Valdosta will leave Tuesday morning, October 21, on the Central of Georgia, at 7 a. m., terminal station, and will arrive in Valdosta at 6 p. m.

Miss Thomas Honor Guest.

Miss Loudie Speer was hostess at a bridge luncheon yesterday at her home in Ansley in honor of Miss Lucille Thomas, a bride-elect of the month.

A profusion of many colored autumn flowers were used throughout the reception rooms. Vases and baskets of dahlias and cosmos were artistically arranged on the mantels and tables.

The luncheon table had as its central decoration a large silver basket filled with rose-colored asters and the other appointments were in the same color motif.

The prize for top score was a beautiful handkerchief case and the winner of the consolation was given a deck of cards. The guest prize was a piece of dainty French lingerie.

The guests included members of the bridal party, who were Miss Thomas, Miss Henrietta Davis, Miss Nelson, Miss Martha Louise Cassels, Miss Virginia Lyon, of Baltimore; Miss Margaret Pratt, Mrs. Julian Thomas and Mrs. Hal Hart.

Parties for Miss Meredith.

Miss Seba Harp entertained very informally a group of the intimate friends of Miss Dewey Meredith, whose engagement to Mr. Harrison M. Harp, of Ashburn, was recently announced.

Miss Thelma Waters entertained with a theater party at the Lyric on Tuesday evening complimenting Miss Dewey Meredith, a bride-elect of this month. Those enjoying the hospitality of the hostess were: Mrs. Thomas M. Murphy, Mrs. Ktheldred Stewart, Misses Eve and Ruth Fussell.

Mrs. Olin S. Cofer and Mrs. Howard Durham complimented Miss Meredith with a miscellaneous shower Wednesday evening, inviting to meet the bride-elect a large number of her friends.

Mrs. Bivings' Luncheon For Mrs. Durant.

Mrs. Troy W. Bivings will be hostess at a luncheon today at 1 o'clock at the Druid Hills Golf club in compliment to Mrs. Armand Durant, of Fort Myer, Va., who is visiting her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Durant, on Peachtree road. Invited to meet the honor guest will be a small group of friends.

BELGIAN ROYAL COUPLE IN YOSEMITE VALLEY

Glacier Point, Cal., October 15.—(By the Associated Press.)—Through the valley of the Yosemite, where the sun, moon and at least one star were visible at midday, the king and queen of the Belgians, came here today. The queen said it was one of her special days in the United States. At the government ranger station near Yosemite village, she stroked the ears of a mountain lion and then, when no one was looking, stepped inside the cage to inspect it more closely. The lion snapped at the fur in the sleeves of her coat and her majesty retreated but not in disorder.

At an Indian camp she chatted wth a squaw, but displayed no inclination to kiss a pappoose. A shy Indian lad of 6 was asked if he recognized the queen, and he replied:

"Sure, I saw her photograph in a San Francisco paper."

Dickey-Strickland Wedding of Interest.

A wedding of interest to a large circle of friends was that of Miss Jessie Dickey and Mr. Robert Strickland, Jr., which was solemnized at high noon yesterday at the First Methodist church, Bishop Warren Candler officiating.

The church was beautifully decorated in quantities of ferns and palms. Tall baskets of feathery white chrysanthemums were used before the altar.

Before the ceremony Mrs. Charles Dowman, a cousin of the bride, rendered a musical program, "Staccata," by Dubois; "Meditation," by Sturges; "Serenade," by Browne, and the overture from "William Tell," by Rossinj.

Miss Claire Dickey, the only attendant, was maid of honor, and wore a satin gown of French blue and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. Her hat was of black velvet.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Rev. James E. Dickey, was lovely in a suit of brown silver tone trimmed in beaver, and she wore a small close-cut beaver turban. Her corsage bouquet was of orchids and swansonia.

Mr. Dean Strickland acted as best man and the ushers were: Mr. William Nixon, Mr. Addison Maupin, Mr. John A. Hynds and Mr. John J. Woodside, Jr.

Mrs. James E. Dickey, the mother of the bride, wore a gown of black satin and her hat was of black panne velvet. Her corsage was of Parma violets.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. Robert M. Strickland, Sr., and Mr. Lowell Strickland, from Tallapoosa; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Davidson, from Quincy, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Jones, from Toccoa.

On their return from their wedding trip, which will be east, Mr. and Mrs. Strickland will reside at the Fleming apartment, corner Juniper and Tenth streets.

YOUTH PLEADS GUILTY TO THEFTS FROM MAIL

Approximately $500 worth of clothing, which had been taken from the mails, was brought into Judge Newman's courtroom as evidence Wednesday morning, when W. M. Walker, a youth 19 years old, formerly employed in the parcel post room of the postoffice, pleaded guilty in the federal court to a charge of mail thefts.

The clothing exhibited was taken from the boarding place of young Walker by postal inspectors, who discoverd some months ago that he was readdressing packages to himself there. Some he also sent to his home in Tifton, representing to his family, it is alleged, tat he had bought the articles himself.

Judge Newman sentenced Walker to eighteen months in the National Training school in Washington, being unwilling to send so young a man to the penitentiary, but a telegram from the attorney general's officer later in the day informed him that there was no room in the training school. Accordingly, Judge Newman will announce sentence again Thursday morning.

HOME COOKING

By MRS. M. A. WILSON
Queen Victoria's Former Cuisiniere

(Copyright, 1919, for The Constitution.)

The modern hostess may entertain Sunday evening and serve a little informal supper without the aid of a maid. This delightful way of having a friend or two to sup with you when the family is at home will appeal to the busy housewife and will delight the family.

The guest may be some old cronie of father's or perhaps some friend of Tom's or Ethel's or an old schoolmate of mothers, who may wish to meet the family when they are together, and right here let me suggest to the mothers that this Sunday night supper is a splendid means of knowing the friends of your boys and girls, for you must realize that it is the real ambition of each boy and girl to have their friends dine with them.

It will also give the housewife a splendid chance to know just who her children's companions are. And if you will introduce some of the little niceties that go a long way to lend elegance to the humblest table you will not only teach your children that unpurchasable commodity, nice table manners, but the young people will naturally avoid making friends with undesirable companions or those whom they would feel ashamed of in their own homes and at their own tables.

The chafing dish and the casserole dish may be featured at these little informal meals with great success, and this can be made a time to teach daughter how successfully to make attractive Sunday night suppers.

Celery, radishes, watercress and some of the various home-made relishes may be set upon the table in small glass dishes.

Bacon Sandwiches

Cut the crust from the loaf of bread, beat four tablespoons of butter until creamy and then add
One-quarter teaspoon of mustard,
One-quarter teaspoon of paprika,
One-half teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce.

Blend well and then butter the slice of bread on the loaf, then cut very thin with a sharp knife. Cut each slice in half and place a nicely browned thin slice of bacon between the slices of bread.

Chocolate Custard.

One and one-half cups of milk,
One-half cup of ginger,
Seven tablespoons of cornstarch,
One-half cup of cocoa.

Stir to dissolve thoroughly the starch and then bring to a boil and cook slowly for six minutes. Now rinse the custard cups with cold water and drain well. Add one teaspoon of vanilla extract to the custard and beat well, and then pour into the cups and set aside to mold. Use the yolk of egg for the creamed chicken on toast and the white of egg for the caledonian cream or fruit whip.

Eggless Mayonnaise.

Place in a vegtable dish or on a soup plate
Two tablespoons of evaporated milk,
One-half teaspoon of mustard,
One-half teaspoon of paprika.

Beat to mix thoroughly and then add one cup of salad oil, beating hard while adding the oil. When thick and creamy add
One teaspoon of sugar,
Three-quarters teaspoon of salt,
One teaspoon of vinegar or lemon juice.

Beat to blend. The oil may be added much faster in making this dressing than when it is made with the yolk of egg, and if it is placed in a fruit jar and covered and set in a cool place it will keep for three weeks.

Shrimp and Celery Newburg.

Open a can of shrimp and turn into a bowl. Break into small pieces. Chop fine sufficient celery to measure one cup and chop one green and one red pepper. Place the celery and peppers in a saucepan and cover with water and cook until tender. Drain well. Now place in a chafing dish two and one-half cups of thick cream sauce and one well-beaten egg. Stir to blend thoroughly and
Two teaspoons of salt,
One teaspoon of paprika,
One-quarter teaspoon of mustard,
The prepared celery and pepper,
The shrimp.

Heat slowly, stirring frequently with a fork to prevent the Newburg from scorching and when smoking hot serve on toast.

Banana Shortcake.

Place in a mixing bowl
One cup of flour,
One-half teaspoon of salt,
Two teaspoons of baking powder,
Five tablespoons of sugar,
Three tablespoons of shortening,
One-half cup of water.

Mix and spread in well-greased and floured deep layer cake pans and cover the top with the thinly sliced bananas. Bake in a moderate oven for twenty-five minutes. Cool and cover with more freshly sliced bananas and then serve with fruit whip.

Barbecue of Ham.

Place in a chafing dish
One-half glass of currant or grape jelly,
Juice of one-half lemon,
Four tablespoons of catsup,
One tablespoon of Worcestershire sauce,
Four tablespoons of water.

Add one slice of cold-boiled ham for each service. Heat slowly and when hot serve on thin slices of toast.

Potato Croquettes.

Mold well-seasoned mashed potatoes into small croquettes and roll in flour, then brown in hot fat.

The regular meeting days of Cherokee Rose lodge, No. 606, L. A. to the B. of R. T. are changed from second and fourth Friday afternoons of each month to the first and third Friday afternoons of each month. Meet on the third floor of the Wigwam, 86 Central avenue.

Reception at Craigie House.

Mrs. David Woodward, regent, was assisted in entertaining by the officers of the chapter.

Many fall flowers were used most artistically throughout the house and dainty refreshments were served.

After the business session a charming literary and musical program was rendered, Miss Eda Bartholomew and Mrs. Benjamin Parker furnishing the music and Mrs. Whiteford Russell a paper on "Revolutionary Times."

BELIEVED MUTINY ABOARD STEAMSHIP

Philadelphia, October 15.—The American steamship Zirkel, due here tomorrow, has asked that she be met by a police boat and a revenue cutter. According to the American Mercantile Marine, the ship's owners, she had aboard four members of the crew of the British schooner Onato, picked up at sea.

Wireless messages indicate that the schooner was abandoned several days ago. She is a small vessel bound from Oporto, Portugal, for Newfoundland. They also reported the death of the captain and mate of the Onato, and shipping men believe there was a mutiny aboard. No particulars were given of the death of the two men or the reason for the request for a police boat.

MOONSHINE IN CAR LEFT FOR REPAIRS

Ten gallons of moonshine liquor were found by deputy collectors in a repair shop on Ivy street Wednesday and confiscated. The men who left the machine there were not on hand, but the state license which it bore was issued to J. C. Norrell, Cummings, Ga. The identity of the possessors will be established Thursday morning, it is expected. Those making the raid were Deputy Collectors Lee Whatley and C. O. Cochranfi and Deputy Marshal Lee Whatley.

Eight moonshine cases came up in the federal court Wednesday, three of the defendants being sent to jail; three acquitted, while two charged with removing and concealing liquor paid fines.

Court Does Honor To Memory of Late Judge D. A. Pardee

Ceremonies in memory of the late Judge Don Albert Pardee, of the United States circuit court, were held Wednesday morning in the circuit courtroom in the postoffice building, those gathering to do honor to the deceased justice being the members of the Atlanta Bar association and the officials of the circuit court of appeals.

Judge R. W. Walker, of the United States circuit court, presided over the assemblage, while seated with him were Judges W. I. Grubb and R. E. Foster, district judges, all of whom paid high tribute to the character and services of their former colleague.

Resolutions prepared by a committee from the bar association, of which Morris Brandon was chairman, were read and unanimously adopted by the lawyers. These memorialized Judge Pardee's long and praiseworthy career as a jurist, and his faithful service to the bar and to his country.

The sincerest sympathy was expressed for the grief-stricken widow in her sorrow and other members of the family.

HOLLAND AND BELGIUM ABOUT TO COMPROMISE

Brussels, October 15.—Several newspapers here are informed that Belgian delegates negotiating in Paris with representatives of Holland relative to the revision of the treaty of 1839 are about to conclude a compromise with Holland in the form of a Belgian-Dutch alliance. It is understood that in making this arrangement Belgium will give Holland military guarantees.

OCTOBER SAILINGS BELOW SCHEDULE

(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, October 15.—During the first six days of October 4,923 army personnel sailed from Europe, according to war department announcement today. This is one-third of the number scheduled to sail during the month. The total number of troops embarked from the signing of the armistice to October 6, is 1,938,824. In addition to this number, a total of 50,153 marines, navy personnel, and civilians have sailed, bringing the aggregate to 1,988,977.

LONGSHORE STRIKERS RETURN AT NEW YORK

New York, October 15.—The strike of longshoremen and other harbor workers which had paralyzed port activities here for several days and threatened a serious food shortage, was broken today when the ferry workers returned to work and 15,000 of the 80,000 longshoremen resumed their labors. Union leaders predicted that by Friday all of the longshoremen would be at work.

The ferrymen at midnight unexpectedly decided to return immediately, accepting, with reservation, the government's compromise wage increase offer. Before dawn all of the ferries were plying the Hudson as usual. The ferrymen filed notice, however, that they were not satisfied with flat increase in wages amounting to approximately 10 per sent. They had demanded an increase of 25 per cent.

Six longshoremen's locals, with a membership of 15,000, have voted to return at once, and strike leaders said the remainder of the unions would take action during the next few days. The strikers voted to abide by the wage award of the national commission, pending further negotiations on December 1.

The teamsters' strike remains in force, as the men decided last night that they would not return until they receive more definite propositions concerning an adjustment of their demands.

It was announced that half of the city's food reservations had been consumed through the joint strikers of the longshoremen and teamsters.

STRIKE CONTINUES AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, October 15.—With a relief in New York from the water-front strike there yesterday, the New Orleans harbor tie-up showed no improvement early today.

The demands of the longshoremen who are out here have not been referred to the national adjustment commission. The 4,000 men who struck here quit work after the local steamship officials had refused to grant $1 an hour straight time, $1.50 an hour overtime and $2 an hour Sundays and holidays.

No reply by leaders of the strikers has been made today to the letter of S. T. Demilt, in behalf of the steamship association, offering to have the matter adjusted by the national adjustment commission.

Heads of the longshoremen's union declared that the decision of a portion of the New York striking longshoremen to return to work would have no effect on the situation here. They stated that until the demands of the men for an increase in pay were met by the stevedores and steamship agents, they would continue the strike. In the meantime, it was said, steamship men were preparing to divert ships from New Orelans to other gulf ports.

A sympathetic strike of teamsters, loaders and other harbor workers affiliated with the longshoremen's organization has been called for tomorrow.

The embargo on export shipments through New Orleans, except for Cuba, continued in effect today.

DR. KUNO MEYER GOES INTO GREAT UNKNOWN

London, October 15.—Announcement is made in Berlin of the death in Leipsic of Dr. Kuno Meyer, professor of Celtic language and literature at the University of Berlin.

Dr. Kuno Meyer was a lecturer widely known in the United States. He was born in Hamburg December 20, 1858, and received his early education in that city and at Dessau. Later he became a student at the University of Leipsic, specializing in Celtic philogy.

Subsequently he became director of the school of Irish learning in the University of Dublin, and then entered the faculty of the University of Liverpool. He was a voluminous writer, among his works being books on Irish legend and history. Dr. Meyer was virtually the first prominent person to predict that the war between Germany and England, France and Russia, would develop into a world conflict. In 1917 he wrote an article entitled "Our War Aims in Enemy Eyes," which quoted a conversation with Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and attracted wide attention. Later he wrote an article for the Berlin press saying Germany had lost the friendship of the United States after the sinking of the Lusitania.

Presbytery Delegates.

Waycross, October 15.—(Special.)—Dr. J. S. Sibley and Elder J. H. Gillion, of the First Presbyterian church, represent this church at the presbytery in Vidalia. Closely following the presbytery there will be an installation service held at the church in Waycross, when Dr. Sibley will be installed as pastor, he having come to this church from Charlotte, N. C.

Scenes at Southeastern Fair

The top picture shows the crew of the HS-1, the naval flying boat on exhibition at the Southeastern fair. Standing on the 12-cylinder Liberty motor, which has been placed on a stand and runs to the amusement of the crowds are her crew. From left to right they are: Chief Machinist's Mate R. N. McCreadie, Machinist's Mate W. F. Yoggurso, Machinist Charlres L. Smart, Gunner's Mate C. D. Lowry, Chief Machinist's Mate E. E. Mutthart and Lieutenant G. C. Matteson. Lieutenant Matteson wears the insignia of an ensign in the picture, having received his promotion Monday of thisweek.

GEORGIA PRESS BODY TO HOLD MEET AT FAIR

McRae, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—President J. K. Simmons, of the Georgia Press association, in announcing the program at the Southeastern Fair association on Friday, inadvertently named C. J. Haden as the one who would make the address of welcome, when it should have been President H. G. Hastings, of the Southeastern Fair association. Mr. Haden will address should have been President H. G. the illiteracy commission of Georgia.

President Simmons stated this morning that he had received numbers of letters from Georgia editors from all over the state, stating they would be at the Atlanta meeting. A program has been arranged, at which informal talks on printing problems will be made and the day promises to be one of profit as well as pleasure. Secretary R. M. Striplin has promised the press people a great day, planning to pin a badge on each and every newspaper visitor, which will admit them free to all attractions.

WIDOW ROBBED OF GEMS WORTH OVER $100,000

New York, October 15.—The theft of jewels valued at between $100,000 and $150,000 from the apartment of Mrs. Lela Brandeis, was reported to the police today. Mrs. Brandeis is the widow of H. H. Brandeis, who, with two brothers, founded the department store in Omaha, Neb., which bears their name.

According to the list supplied the police the stolen gems included a large rope of pearls, a diamond necklace, several diamond pins, rings and other articles, which had been given to Mrs. Brandeis by her husband.

Mrs. Brandeis visited her mother, Mrs. Wilbur F. Studebaker, on Long Island, over the week-end. When she returned to her apartment she found a steel box in which the jewels had been kept lying empty on the bathroom floor, having been wrenched from the wall of the closet into which it was built.

Lawyer Returns Home.

John Wood, of Jasper, who came to Atlanta Monday to represent clients in the federal court, returned home Wednesday. Mr. Wood is candidate for solicitor general of his circuit.

GRIFFIN SHRINE DAY SCORES BIG SUCCESS

Atlanta Fez Wearers Prominent in Elaborate Program of Day.

Griffin, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—Today was Shrine day in Griffin, approximately 2,500 Shriners being present in the city participating in the great Shrine ceremonial and celebration, Atlanta's delegation being prominent in the events of the day.

The city was gaily and lavishly decorated for the occasion, thousands having been spent in decorations, and the city presented a splendid appearance. The vanguard of the visitors began arriving Tuesday afternoon, and the red fez was seen everywhere today.

The nobles were met at the station and as they arrived in automobiles by a reception committee. During the morning they were taken for a drive and shown principal points of interest here and at the experiment station.

The great parade took place this afternoon and was a spectacular affair. About 2,500 Shriners were in the line of march, which included the principal business streets of Griffin.

At 5 o'clock in the afternoon the visitors were guests at an old-fashioned barbecue at the Spalding county fair grounds.

The great ceremonial session began at 7 o'clock tonight and was followed by a big dance in the public streets at the base of the Confederate monument on Hill and Solomon streets. All Griffin joined in extending to the visiting nobles a hearty greeting and cordial welcome.

GOVERNMENT AUTOS SOLD AT M'CLELLAN

Anniston, Ala., October 15.—(Special.)—In less than half a day Camp McClellan sold out its supply of unserviceable army trucks and cars and had $40,000 to show for the sale, scheduled for two days this week. Three hours after the auction sale of army trucks and cars had started, Lieutenant W. C. Hurst, motor transport officer at McClellan, found the stock depleted and the sale was officially ended.

Seventy-four trucks and cars, all classed as unserviceable for army use, were disposed of, the bidding being lively among a good number of buyers. Another truck and car sale probably will be held at the camp shortly, as other motor vehicles are found unserviceable when shipped in from other camps. The sale this week was conducted by Leo Fresh, of Atlanta, as auctioneer.

A DISCOVERY THAT BENEFITS MANKIND

Two discoveries have added greatly to human welfare.

In 1835 Newton originated the vacuum process for condensing milk with cane sugar to a semi-liquid form.

In 1883 Horlick at Racine, Wis., discovered how to reduce milk to a dry powder form with extract of malted grains, without cane sugar.

This product HORLICK named Malted Milk. (Name since copied by others.) Its nutritive value, digestibility and ease of preparation (by simply stirring in water) and the fact that it keeps in any climate has proved of much value to mankind as an ideal food-drink from infancy to old age.

IS YOUR SKIN ABLAZE WITH FIERY ITCHINGS?

Don't Continue to Suffer Because of Wrong Treatment.

If you are one of the thousands who are afflicted with any form of irritating skin disease, verily you know what real torture is. You know well enough what it means to lay awake at night, rubbing and scratching your raw and irritated skin, in a vain endeavor to get relief from the fiery burning.

Of course, the most serious phase of skin disease is the almost unbearable suffering caused by the fiery itching and irritation of the skin. In addition, the disease often causes unsightly roughness and discolorations, disfiguring and spoiling the complexion, and leaving its blighting marks in its wake. Many a beautiful skin has been marred by these disorders which first appeared as tiny red pimples.

At last science has determined the real source of all skin diseases, and with this enlightenment comes the reason why the prevailing treatment heretofore used has proven such a complete failure. It has been proven that impurities in the blood cause millions of tiny disease germs to set up their attack on the surface of the skin, and in the form of pimples, boils, scaly eruptions and itchy, burning irritations, begin their disfiguring and destructive work.

Being in the blood, these disease germs can be reached only through the blood, and local applications have no effect whatever. That is why salves, ointments, lotions, washes and other remedies applied to the skin can do no more than give merely temporary relief. Soon the fiery itching breaks out again, for such treatment cannot reach the source of the trouble.

If you want genuine relief from the tortures of skin diseases, lose no time in discarding all local remedies, and begin taking S. S. S. today. You will be delighted with the results, and when you are thoroughly rid of your trouble you will praise the day you got on the right treatment. You can get S. S. S. at any drug store. Begin taking it today, and if you write to our physician he will gladly give you full instructions about your own case. Address Medical Director, 402 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.—(adv.)

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury—quicksilver; and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel today and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work.

Take "Dodson's Liver Tone" Instead!

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful tonight. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone tonight and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.

MORE BIG CROWDS AT THE GREAT FAIR

those contemplating a back-to-nature venture.

How to Build Roads.

The correct way to build roads, whether it is of concrete, brick, macadam, or graver, is shown in detal, with instructions as to the correct mixture of materials, and a few suggestions as to following the terrain so as to provide a road with slight grades and good drainage. "The Ideal Born" provides another interesting study, while the dissected parts of silo, and the same completed, demonstrate how easily the farmer may construct this vital need of the well-ordered farm.

Of especial interest to those in the mountainous districts of north Georgia, are the displays from North Carolina. Apples, almost as big as grapefruit, and the same color, and delicious tasting, have been brought from "The Land of the Sky," and while some parts of Georgia produced the product to compare with them, north Georgians could learn lots from studying the method of raising the fruit used in and around Waynesville, N. C., which is a country totally mountainous.

Midway Thronged.

Johnny J. Jones' attractions in the midway continue to draw immense crowds, and the fair officials have expressed themselves as highly pleased with the suport given the fair by people in the district affected. All indications point to a smashing of all records, not only in attendance, but in the number and character of exhibits offered.

Students Attend Fair.

In line with the policy ofSHRDL Atlanta schooldom an opportunity to visit the Southeastern fair, Elizabeth Mather college closed its classroom doors on Tuesday for this purpose, and a large number of the students enjoyed the day at the fair. On Tuesday evening the majority of the girls attended the lecture by Mrs. Emmline Pankhurst, at the Auditorium.

A new feature to be heard from soon at Elizabeth Mather is the "Kindergarten Jazz Band." This is composed of the little tots in the kindergarten department who are showing excellent musical tendencies and are making splendid progress with their "Band." In this connection the Mather kindergarten department is also turning out some thoroughly trained teachers. Four of the graduates of the department have this year established kindergartens in other parts of the south.

SHANTUNG AMENDMENT TO FAIL IN THE SENATE

principal signatories. However, adoption of the Johnson amendment giving the United States six votes in the assembly of the league of nations appears to be assured. The president insists such an amendment likewise would require resubmission. The real test, therefore, in the senate must come on the Johnson amendment, for which republican leaders claim a majority of two votes. Their poll shows the senate stands 49 to 47 in favor of the Johnson proposal.

Vote Likely Today.

Hopes for a vote today on the Lodge amendment to the treaty proposing that China instead of Japan should have the Shantung province, faded under the flow of oratory which showed no signs of abatement in time for senators to have their dinners at the usual hour.

Five senators whose stand had been the subject of some speculation announced they would vote against the pending proposal, but all of them indicated they would support a reservation on the subject. They were Senators Colt, Rhode Island; Lenroot, Wisconsin, and Spencer, Missouri, republicans, and Shields, Tennessee, and Thomas, Colorado, democrats.

Besides Senator Reed, Senators Borah, Idaho; Brandegee, Connecticut, and Lodge, Massachusetts, spoke in support of the amendment, Mr. Brandegee reading into the record a long pamphlet on the subject published by the Chinese society of America.

There is every indication that a vote will be reached tomorrow. The roll call cannot be expected to show more than forty senators in favor of the amendment. It will thus fall far short of a majority. Three democratic senators will vote for it, but a much greater number of republicans will oppose it. They believe the matter may be dealt with more effectively through a reservation.

Senator Spencer, republican, of Missouri, expressed the sentiment of the "middle ground" republicans. He began a brief address by denouncing the Shantung award as "shameless," but ended by explaining why he would have to vote against elimination of the provision from the treaty. Senators Smoot, of Utah; Lenroot, of Wisconsin, and Colt, of Rhode Island, republicans, and Shields, of Tennessee, and Thomas, of Colorado, democrats, did likewise.

None Defended Shantung Award.

None of these senators defended the Shantung award. Some of them apologized for it. Senator Borah pointed out that even the president of the United States has not defended it. The governments of Great Britain, France and Italy were charged with having acted in bad faith by withholding knowledge of the secret treaty with Japan on Shantung.

Senators who sought to justify their opposition to the Lodge amendment advocated a reservation expressing the fact that the United States does not recognize validity of the Japanese rights in Shantung and is to be free to aid China in every way possible to regain the territory.

This position drew sharp retorts from the advocates of the amendment. Senator Reed, democrat, of Missouri, was especially bitter in attacking the position of his colleague, Senator Spencer, a republican. Whenever one of the reservationists opened his mouth a group of the amendment's supporters pounced upon his utterances with merciless retorts.

Senator Lodge closed the debate by replying to Senator Lenroot's contention that the United States could accomplish its purposes through a reservation, by exclaiming with a fervor unusual for the senator from Massachusetts:

"The senator from Wisconsin will never see the day and Europe will not be glad to accept the United States into this treaty on any terms that the United States dictates, because without the United States this treaty simply is a house of cards, and they in Europe know it. We can dictate what we think is just and honorable before we enter into it, but once we are in the snarl our hands are tied."

Reed Glowered at Colleague.

Senator Reed glowered at his colleague from Missouri, Mr. Spencer, and shouted that what was needed in the senate was "a little more American nerve and not so much acquiescene in the wishes of other nations."

Senator Borah insisted that since President Wilson himself had stated that he knew absolutely nothing of the secret treaty between Japan and Great Britain, France and Italy on Shantung, this nation was under no obligation whatever to respect that agreement.

"The bad faith of such an agreement," the senator said, "relieved the United States of any moral obligation to respect them. There was no obligation to give consideration to it at Versailles and there is no obligation upon the senate to consider it now. If the allies had refused to abrogate the secret government and persisted in acting in bad faith with us our delegates should have withdrawn from the conference because moral prestige still is a national asset."

Senator Reed maintained that the proposal to object to the Shantung award through a reservation instead of an amendment simply was an effort to salve the consciences of senators. A reservation prates against a great wrong, he said, while the time to protest is before the contract is signed.

Senator Lenroot maintained that the effect of an amendment simply would be to keep the United States out of the treaty while Japan would keep Shantung anyway. When he flung this charge at Senator Borah, the latter replied that in "every way anywhere along the line I can cast a vote defeating this entire treaty so far as the United States is concerned, I will be here voting happily to do just that very thing."

Shields Against Amendment.

Senator Shields, of Tennessee, a democratic member of the foreign relations committee, speaking against the Shantung amendments, said disposition of the Shantung rights was a question not directly concerning this country.

"The United States is not interested in it," he said. "It is only a party by construction if at all."

Senator Shields declared that to adopt the amendment would be to abandon the traditional American policy of non-interference in the affairs of other nations. He said he could not reconcile the amendment, therefore, with the reservation he supported in the foreign relations committee to keep the United States out of foreign quarrels under article ten of the league of nations covenant.

Making a plea for the committee reservations, Senator Shields said he never would vote to send American soldiers to settle quarrels in distant lands in which this country had no interest. He asserted an army for such a purpose could be raised only by conscription.

Taking issue with the treaty provision giving the British dominions votes in the league assembly Senator Shields said he could not support such a provision. He urged that the treaty be disposed of speedily, saying the people were less interested in the league of nations than in the restoration of peace.

"I am unwilling," declared Senator Shields, to support a treaty by which the most remote implication or possible reconstruction, authorizes a super-government or a council of foreign nations to interfere with and control our internal affairs and domestic relations of any character, sacred rights cherished by all nations, and now secured to

Fourth National SHAREHOLDERS

There are many of them—223 in all.

The enhancement of their holdings has made their investment a most attractive one.

This large number of shareholders means that a wide range of interests is represented in the ownership and, therefore, in the management of this bank.

It means that many people of varied occupations, of widely diverse businesses, are definitely interested in the success of "The FOURTH."

In other words this is not a close corporation. It is broad-based. Its welfare is of vital concern to a great many individuals.

The 20 Directors, representing these Shareholders, compose a body that is capable of viewing the common interest from many different angles. It is a truly representative board.

The 10 Officers, in turn, express in the active management of the bank this same spirit of actual representation.

All of which makes for a breadth of policy. It helps to make "The FOURTH" a bank for the whole community.

If this strikes you as desirable, we shall be glad to have you come with us as a depositor.

Form Tells Better On Football Field Than Anywhere Else

Walter Camp Gives Resume of Work Done by Some Eastern Elevens and Shows Where It Could Have Been Improved.

By Walter Camp.

(Copyright, 1919, Otis F. Wood.)

There is really after all no sport in which form tells in the long run more decisively than in football. And by "form" is meant the all round development of a team in those essentials which come from a strict grounding in the fundamental principles of the game, and then building up upon that solid rock foundation. For this reason, although there may be early season upsets occasionally, it is unusual that the teams which go into the big games of November as the favorites fail to win out. They may be thrown into an occasional flurry, but in the 60 minutes of actual play teams that are best grounded surely fight their way to eventual victory.

Trick and fancy plays can be added to a good ground work attack and defense, but unless they are backed up by a real attack and a sound defense they usually fail of result. Form and prestige and force of well grounded habit seem to make for a steadier fighting spirit than do the possession of trick plays.

The sifting process is now going on rapidly and the well coached and experienced teams are working their way toward the top. A study of this process is interesting indeed. The first week in October found Yale and Harvard, with their wealth of material—material upon which the coach of a decade ago would have looked with amazement—bringing some sort of order out of the seething mass and welter of men who a month ago submitted themselves as candidates.

Work Is Crude.

The work is still crude so far as general team play is concerned, but the smoothing out process has begun. Both teams are able to throw in fairly strong substitutes to the extent of four and five deep, and these substitutes are all men who can "fall on the ball" and know the rudiments of play. The same is true of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania and Syracuse. Princeton, Colgate, Lafayette and Lehigh are not as well off in wealth of material, but when their full first string are in they have a big backbone of experience. Dartmouth, Annapolis, West Point, Rutgers, Georgetown, are coming along more slowly, having a job matching up a small proportion of veteran material with what fortune has given them to fill up the ranks.

Cornell is too much limited to Shiverick, and he cannot do it all. Columbia is fighting her way back after long years of limitations, but in Canaperry and Shaw, has a nucleus about which to build. Williams has a star in Boylston, but one man is not enough for these modern days, early October games. And how did this all work out in the games of the eleventh? Yale and Harvard smothered their opponents, not by steady consistent football, but by occasional flashes of continuous gain, when linemen and backs got working together for a succession of downs and by working as a machine and not as individual stars. It was still crude, but the power was there and was really exerted as team play.

The same was true of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania and Syracuse. But Princeton did not show this. They fought hard against the veteran Eastonians and never gave up, finally coming through with a scant victory, but machine work was missing. Cornell and Williams were almost Shiverick and Boylston and the former finally got over a field goal which was all there was to the game. Dobie's machine did its work at Annapolis and gave him the chance he wanted to test out some of his second string backs.

Columbia Line Weak.

At Columbia it looks as though Dawson will have to get his line steadied up, and steadied hard before his charges meet Williams. He has some good ground gainers in Canaperry, Shaw, Quigley, Eccles, but Saturday's game did not seem to show the line working to the advantage of the backs.

The big eye-opener of the west was the Minnesota-Nebraska game, for coming only a week after the Iowa decisive defeat of the "cornhuskers," it certainly caused a depression of spirits among Dr. Williams' followers. However, there is time yet for the doctor to get order out of chaos. Chicago, with the first good material Stagg has seen for some years, ran a veritable steam roller over the green aggregation from Great Lakes. It was altogether too easy, and made for no good in real preparation for the teams "Chi" will have to meet. Northwestern had a similar experience with De Pauw. Wisconsin and Illinois had real games, but did not give their followers much to brag about.

In the south, poor Virginia seems to have fallen upon a lean year, and must look forward with trepidation to her northern trip. Georgetown is coming along well; Nashville saw a hard fought game between Vanderbilt and Tennessee, but not much attack in either team, while the University of Georgia showed up fairly well against South Carolina.

Tony Issues Challenge.

KINGS OF SPEED TO GATHER HERE

The great program of automobile racing events to be staged at the Southeastern fair for two days, beginning next Monday, is bringing to Atlanta a constellation of racing stars that are well known to Atlanta speed fans, including among the number Louis Disbrow, the Frenchman who has made America his home for many years, and whose myriad successes on the circular track include the record that made him world's track champion.

The exponents of the game who will race here are representative of the best tracksters in the gasoline racing sport, and there are adepts at the speed proposition from America and Europe that will manage to delight Atlanta's and the southeast's craving for fast auto racing.

The first session that the racers give to the public will be the program of seven events that will start Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The schedules for both days have been so arranged as to give the fans a chance at seeing races, both short and reasonably long, that will provide them with all the thrills possible from speed contests on the dirt track at Lakewood.

Atlanta has a large following of devotees of this phase of the many-sided racing game, and it seems that they are now being presented with the opportunity to satisfy some of that longing they have been declaring for real speed served up in a legitimate style.

THREE MORE ADDED TO CRIPPLE SQUAD

By Geo. C. Griffin.

More and more the game against Vanderbilt looms up like a dark cloud for the Yellow Jackets. Old man Jinx seems to be on their trail and Coach Heisman is willing to offer a reward to any one who can supply some kind of formula to drive hard luck away from Grant field. The baking machine is certainly being worked to death, and from the number of trips it makes one would think Uncle Sam was running a base hospital there instead of a school of 1,300 husky young Americans.

McDonough, Gaiver and Webb are the three latest members of the cripplesquad, but all of these with the exception of Webb should be able to answer the gong Saturday. Webb received a nasty cut over his left eye which completely closed it up.

The scrimmage yesterday was divided into two parts, first one team being sent against the scrubs for about fifty downs, then another team for fifty more. The scrubs played Vanderbilt formations and had fair success with them. Williams, the scrubs' left half, slipping through for a touchdown during the latter part of the scrimmage.

"Pep" In Abundance.

More pep was flowing around Grant field Wednesday since the game last Saturday with Clemson. The Jackets have recovered from the terrible surprise handed them by the hard-hitting Tigers, and have come out of their daze with more enthusiasm than ever.

If Phillips is unable to play Saturday, it is possible that Lebey will be shifted to center as a relief for Amis, while Gaiver will take Harlan's place at full.

This game Saturday, followed by the Pittsburg game, will certainly give the Jackets all the work they need. While Pittsburg is still ten days off, Vanderbilt is right ahead of the Jackets, and Pittsburg has passed from everyone's mind around Tech, and attention is concentrated on getting rid of the evil which is nearest at hand.

The Vanderbilt squad will arrive in town Friday morning, going directly to Camp Jesup, where signal drill will be held and they can get a good night's sleep away from the noise and distractions of the city.

The Tech management announced that the Tech team will leave for Pittsburg next Wednesday, October 22, and will stop at the William Penn hotel.

Sale of Cardinals To Former Owners Now Contemplated

Two Former American League Magnates Want to Purchase St. Louis Club, and Negotiations Are Now Pending.

If present plans do not miscarry, the St. Louis Cardinals may be sold the coming winter to two former American league owners. Negotiations are said to be on now in an informal way, with all actual bargaining set aside until some sort of basis is reached tentatively, at least regarding price, terms, leases and so on.

The prospective purchasers of the Cardinals' property are Colonel Hedges and James McAleer. Hedges was formerly the owner of the St. Louis Browns, while McAleer for a time was manager of Hedges' teams. McAleer was later owner of the Boston Red Sox, disposing of his holdings in that club to Joseph Lannins a few years ago. McAleer, since selling the Boston club, has been retired.

The talk about Hedges and McAleer getting back into the major league was circulated at Cincinnati during the first two games of the world's series. McAleer admitted the truth of the report, but he added that he had not made up his mind definitely as to whether he wanted to return to the game.

Hedges is said to have opened the subject. Meeting McAleer in the lobby of the Sinton hotel, the former Brown owner was enthusiastic. The St. Louis situation was discussed among other things, and finally Hedges asked McAleer to go fifty-fifty with him in the deal. Speaking of the matter later, Hedges declared: "We could take the St. Louis National club and put it over in good shape, I am sure. I want McAleer with me. He has one of the best baseball minds in the country today and with some new life the Cardinals can be made a winner. I may have something to announce before the winter is over."

The National league would no doubt welcome McAleer and Hedges, as they are both experienced baseball men of unquestioned standing. Their long association with the American league would help them to solve many problems, and a change of owners, it is conceded, would work no injury to the Branch Rickey squad after a fling at the co-operative plan, which has so far failed to co-operate to any great extent. There was a rumor that McAleer would purchase an interest in the Washington club in the American league early in the winter, but this seems to have petered out entirely.

The big fight between Eddie Buras and Larry Avera is going to come off at the Auditorium-Armory tonight and there won't be many members of the Atlanta fight colony absent as these two boys have demonstrated that they can stage a show which is well worth the time and consideration of true boxing fans. It really isn't necessary for Atlanta promoters to import fight material when a bout such as the last one these fellows staged can be obtained from local boys.

Arrangements are being made at Tech to take care of a capacity audience Saturday afternoon when the Vanderbilt Commodores and Tech Jackets tie up in the big game of the Atlanta season. Vandy will bring along a trainload, and it's safe to say there won't be many Atlantans absent.

Word from Pittsburg seems to be that the Panthers are going to be great odd favorites over the Georgia Tech machine. Better not get too chesty up that way, because this Tech outfit always fights, and when a football team fights it takes something to beat it.

The golf tournament now in progress over the links of the East Lake Country club is disappointing to members of the club, inasmuch as there are very few entrants, but, nevertheless, there is great interest among the participants, and it is bringing out some real golf.

The four Atlanta clubs—East Lake, Brookhaven, Druid Hills and Ansley Park—are anticipating a big few weeks now, as the weather is ideal for the Scotch game, and each of the four courses is in the best possible condition.

Zipp Newman, assistant sporting editor of The Birmingham News, has wired that he is going to bring a delegation of Birmingham fans and sport writers over to see the Tech-Vandy game Saturday.

Word has been received from C. Frank, portly pilot of the Cracker Champions, that he is having a great time fishing and boating at his home near New Orleans. Cholly spends a great winter if he does live a hard life in the summer time.

Bob Higgins, who will manage the 1920 Crackers, is getting a good start in his winter business, according to the popular catcher, who was a visitor to The Constitution office Wednesday. Bob is selling automobiles and trucks for the Newberry Motor company, of East Point.

It's tough luck on "Pup" Phillips and Judy Harlan to be forced to stay out of the games right now, but there might be a chance for them to go to Pittsburg, and it would be foolish for them to try to get into these games here when their presence will mean so much against the Smoky City boys.

Again Atlanta stepped to the fore in the sport world, this time at Lakewood Park, when Harrs S., the horse owned by Billy Lotz, of this city, won the feature race of the day Tuesday.

This game of automobile polo is the next best thing to playing tag with steam-rollers ever seen. The birds who pilot these turnsky mounts don't care much whether they join the harp gang or not.

The list of racing drivers announced for the automobile events which are to be staged at Lakewood, October 20 and 21, show many familiar names to Atlanta automobile racing fans, and it looks as if the events are going to be well worthy of patronizing.

MAY I NOT . . . Suggest that niches be carved in the hall of fame for deserving baseball heroes?

Eddie Wallace has been signed up for five scraps in the Australian stadium of Sydney. The Brooklynite shoved off recently for Vancouver, where he will embark with all his hopes for the Antipodes on the steamship Niagara. The first bout in which Wallace will figure will be with Lew Edwards, the Britisher, who holds the lightweight title of the island continent.

Houdini, the "handcuff king," wants to become a baseball magnate. Recently he wired Ja Calewind, president of the Pacific coast league, as follows: "Learn your franchise is for sale. Am interested. Wire particulars."

Duncan Makes Good.

When it was intimated some time ago that Pat Moran planned to use Pat Duncan, his recruit outfielder, in left field in the world's series, various and sundry baseball men freely criticised the grizzled leader of the Reds for his supposed lack of judgment. However, Moran went through with his plans just the same, and Duncan went a long way towards justifying the faith which his manager has placed in him. He covered his territory in a splendid manner and bumped the offerings of the Chicago pitcher for several clean hits. Duncan is fast on his feet and a good hitter, and attached to his right shoulder is one of the most powerful throwing arms in the National league.

To Crouch or Not to Crouch!

"No real boxer could ever get into such a position. No really good boxer would have allowed him to escape from it without a severe trouncing."

That may all be so, but just ask Willard, Brennan, Fulton, Morris or Gunboat Smith about it. They not only let him escape from it, but took the count as well. It's a queer position, to be sure, but it pulls the tall man over and brings him down to Jack's size.

Anniversary of Gully-Gregson Battle

John Gully defeated Bob Gregson in 36 rounds at Newmarket, England, 112 years ago tomorrow, October 16, 1807. Hen Pearce, "the game chicken," was then champion, but he was ready to retire, and Gully and Gregson were fighting for the right to succeed him. Early in the fight Gregson landed a blow that almost settled Gully's hash, but he managed to toe the mark just in the nick of time. Bob then "rushed in, caught Gully in his arms and flung him with astounding force to the ground." Such tactics seem strange to the ring fans of today, but The London Chronicle said that "by the amateurs present this was thought to be the finest round ever fought. As they fought on, both men became so weak they could scarcely stand and their blows would hardly have damaged a fly. More than once the two fell so exhausted that it seemed doubtful if either would ever be able to answer to the call of 'time.' Gully evidently had the advantage in durability and in the 36th round he landed a tap on Gregson's neck which sent him to the ground senseless. Gully himself then collapsed and had to be carried to a carriage. The next year they fought again and Gully had the best of it, becoming champion of England—an honor which he soon voluntarily relinquished."

Can't Break Through.

It looks now as if the colored heavyweights are having trouble getting on bouts with the white men in their class as they still have to battle among themselves in order to make any money out of the sport. The latest match between the big colored "heavies" to be clinched is that between Sam Langford, the veteran fighter of Boston, and Jack Thompson, the six-foot fighter of Philadelphia. They have signed articles of agreement calling for them to meet in a 15-round fight at Tulsa, Okla., on October 20.

Barrett Back With Rutgers.

Budge Garrett, the Indian star, who was chosen for the all-American eleven in 1917, has returned to the Rutgers' line-up after a two-year absence in the service. Contrary to expectations, he was placed in the back field instead of at guard, and he is showing that his long absence has not slowed him up at all.

Morrie Trimble, a product of Shadyside academy, will probably bear the bulk of Princeton's punting burden this season. He is not yet a second Eddie Driggs, but he is a good, consistent booter, and will probably hold his own against any man Harvard can send against him. He is a short, rather slippery sort of person and is expected to reel off many a yard for the Tigers on quick stabs off tackle or around the ends.

Roseben's Great Race.

Many turf followers will recall with interest that today marks the thirteenth anniversary of the great race when Roseben made a new world's record of 1:22 for seven furlongs. Willie Shaw was astride the gigantic gelding on that memorable occasion. The big train carried 126 pounds, and there was only one other starter in the race. Roseben shot away from the post like a cannon ball and never faltered a second until the wire was reached. When the timekeeper certified 1:22 as the time for the seven furlongs, a wail of woe went up from the bookies. It had been conceded that the big gelding would win, but a lot of wise ones had induced the bookmakers to put up money against the proposition that roseben would beat the track record of 1:25 for the Belmont course, seven furlongs around the run. While it was a violation of the track rules to bet on time, a large sum had been wagered before the authorities put a stop to it. It is said that the bookies took in about $35,000, at even money, so Roseben's record-breaking stunt cost them a pretty penny. The best previous record for seven furlongs was 1:23½, hung up by Bella B., carrying 103 pounds, at Monmouth park in 1890.

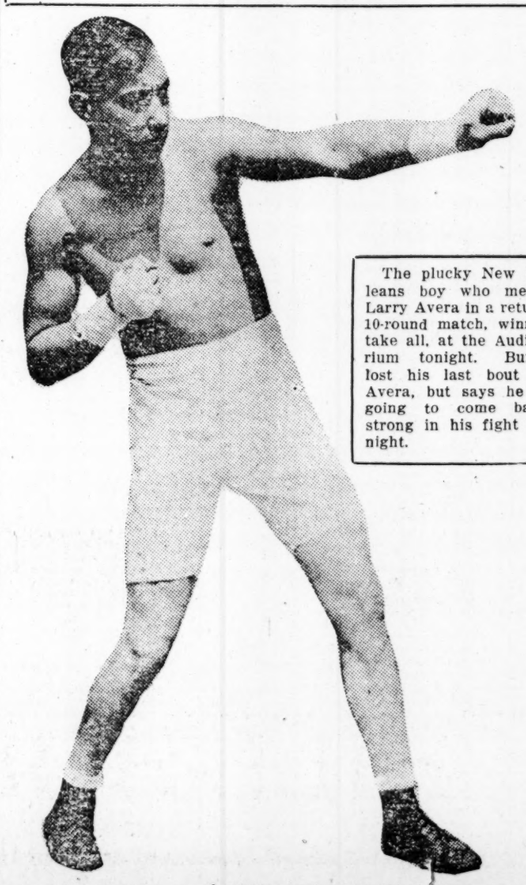

The Class in Sportography.

Answer—The greatest distance ever covered by walking in one hour was 8 miles 302 yards. This feat was accomplished by J. Meagher at New York, on November 29, 1882. The previous record was held by W. Griffin, who covered 8 miles 172 yards in the same period on October 4, 1881.

What was the longest baseball game on record?

Frank Dewey's Time Proves Lakewood One Of Speediest Ovals

PITT IS WARNED TO 'WARE OF TECH

Alumnus' Report to Warner Causes "Mystery Man of Football" to Dope Out New Emergency Plays for Great Struggle.

Pittsburg, Pa., October 15.—(Special.)—A report made by a University of Pittsburg alumnus, who has seen Georgia Tech play this year, to the effect that the Yellow Jackets are much stronger this year than they were when beaten by the Panthers last year, has stirred Glenn Warner to action and he is drilling the varsity squad in any number of new plays, which he may be forced to use when the teams clash here a week from Saturday. In the meantime, Warner is also preparing his team for the Syracuse game Saturday.

Weather conditions here have been anything but favorable this week and the scrimmage practice has been confined to only a few minutes. However, hours are being spent drilling the men in the plays which the Pitt mentor has doped out.

If Pitt is expecting an easy proposition in Georgia Tech on October 25, she had better correct that impression immediately. The Yellow Jackets are stronger this year than when they were beaten last year by the Panthers. This is the report made to Graduate Manager Davis by the Pitt alumnus, who has just completed a tour of the southland. He asserted that Coach Heisman is pointing his team especially for the Pitt game, in hopes of gaining revenge for last year's defeat.

Although stories have been circulated to the effect that Pitt is much weaker than last year, University of Pennsylvania scouts, who saw last Saturday's game with West Virginia, declare the team is as good as ever. They give the "mystery line" credit for being the greatest factor in the defeat of West Virginia.

Interest in the game with the Golden Tornado is mounting higher each day, and the request for seats is so great already that a crowd of 35,000 will surely see the game. It probably will be the largest crowd that has ever gathered at Forbes field.

FIGHT TO FINISH ON TONIGHT'S BILL

Avera and Buras Meet at Auditorium in 10-Round Grudge Contest, With Two Fast Preliminary Bouts.

Twenty-four rounds of fast boxing will be presented to Atlanta fight fans at the Auditorium tonight when Eddie Buras, of New Orleans and Atlanta, meets Larry Avera, of this city, in a 10-round grudge contest, which is to be preceded by two bouts, a six-round affair between "Red" Mason and "Kid" Ruddy and an eight-round bout between "Kid" Karst, of Fort McPherson, and "Battling" Lucas, of Camp Gordon.

The principals in tonight's fight have completed their training and rested Wednesday. Larry Avera taking a look at the Southeastern fair to keep from going stale and to get his mind off the coming battle, while Buras loafed around with just a little road work in the morning to top off his schedule.

Promoter J. Hume McDonald is expecting one of the greatest crowds that has ever witnessed a fight of the kind at the Auditorium and has made arrangements accordingly to take care of it.

The first bout will start promptly at 8:30 and as fast as the preliminary is over the semi-wind-up will follow and then the main bout.

Walk Miller, manager of Avera will be in his fighter's corner for the main scrap, while Louis Most, Buras' manager, will take care of his protege.

In all probability Hugh Mauck well-known Atlanta boy, will referee the preliminaries, and McDonald himself will act as the third man in the ring for the main go.

Starting Judge, Dr. F. E. Stone, Announces to Record Crowd That Performance of Pacer Establishes Fact of This Being One of the Best Courses—Great Events Wednesday.

After Frank Dewey, of the Cox stables, and piloted by Walter Cox, breezed around the Lakewood oval at a 2:01¾ clip in the first heat of the 2:03 pace yesterday afternoon, Starting Judge Dr. F. E. Stone megaphoned to the crowd that packed the grandstand that "this proves that Atlanta has one of the fastest race tracks in the world."

Although Mr. Cox had no difficulty in taking this heat away from a field of four, he lost badly in the second and third, which heats were won, respectively, by John R. Braden, driven by Thomas, and Direct C. Burnett, which was scalled by Murphy. This necessitated the pacing of a fourth heat, in which only the three heat winners started, and which was won by Frank Dewey, with Direct C. Burnett second and John R. Braden third, the money going as they finished this heat.

South Bend Girl, piloted by Beck, also started in the first three heats, but each time it got off to a bad start, after delaying the game to a wearisome length at each start, and the best she could do was to come in for third position in the third.

Frank Dewey's Record.

Previous to yesterday Frank Dewey's record was 2:02¼; and the best track record for this meeting, prior to his 2:01¾ mile performance, was 2:02¾, which was made by Grace Direct last Monday. The Lakewood track record for pacers is held by Miss Harris M., which made it in 1918 in two minutes flat.

Lu Princeton and Mabel Trask, two of the most remarkable trotters that ever featured in the Grand Circuit, fought through the two heats of a special free-for-all, programmed for three heats. The former was piloted by Cox, the latter by Murphy. It was a spectacular battle while it lasted, the Cox trotter winning by a head in each of the two heats, and trotting the last half of the first heat in one minute flat, Mabel crowding him every foot of the way.

Another interesting duel of the afternoon was the 2:12 class trot for three-year-olds, which was fought out between Mr. Murphy, up behind Mollie Knight, and his veteran rival on the major circuit, Mr. Geers, who held the reins over Wiki Wiki. Both of these starters are of the Murphy stables. Willie Knight won the first two heats handily, and, this being a two-out-of-three race, the two straight wins took the honors and the race.

Running Races.

The three-quarters running race was an easy victory for Prince Bonero, the five-to-one favorite, in 1:14⅘. He was ridden by F. King. Bengali, E. Smith riding, was second; Kathardin, J. Collins the pockey, third, and Kharemanah, ridden by Mahoney, was fourth. Leoma, ridden by J. Chauncey, also ran.

In the second running event, a seven-furlongs dash, Trauby, with F. King in the saddle, won in :29¾. Harmon was second, Letata Fay third and St. Judge fourth. Fred Johnson was the fifth entrant, and also ran. The nine-mile dash was won by Baby Rash, ridden by J. King, with Mallowmat (E. Smith) second; River King (J. Collins), third, and Little Tom, ridden by J. Chauncey, number four in the money.

Fair Weather, Big Crowd.

Yesterday was an ideal day for the track sport, so far as weather was concerned, the course was in good condition and the attendance the largest of the meeting thus far.

Today's program measures up fully to any of the three previous days of the Lakewood contests, consisting in a trot for two-year-olds, a 2:07 class trot and a 2:07 class trot, no pacers being scheduled to appear today.

G. M. A. AND TECH HI IN SCORELESS TIE

By Roy E. White.

The Tech High and G. M. A. scrub football teams fought to a 0-to-0 tie yesterday afternoon at College Park before a large crowd of spectators, most of whom were rooters of G. M. A., and a few scrub supporters of the Tech High team. In the crowd were also many young ladies.

This was the best scrub game that the writer has seen in many a day despite the fact that there were several costly fumbles on both sides. On one occasion had a forward pass not been fumbled by Duson, of G. M. A., it would have netted a touchdown.

Another time a punt was received by a G. M. A. man, which was fumbled and recovered by Jenkins, of Tech High. Gordy, the fleet-footed halfback of the Tech High scrubs, also got away for a 20-yard gain, only to fumble after being tackled. The ball was recovered by G. M. A.

During the first half there were many good gains through the line on each side, but when either team was within scoring distance a costly fumble lost their chance. The second half of the game was the best, and it began to look like real football. A forward pass from Cox to Helton netted a gain of 20 yards for Tech High in this period. Gordon Nebell also gained some ground by his long end runs. Gordy also did some good running and sidestepping. Palmer Cox was a mighty valuable man to Tech High scrubs until he was hurt during the first half. Cookie Benning and Gruder Meyers also did some good playing for the Junior Smithies.

Stars for G. M. A.

For G. M. A. the work of Dreger at right halfback was by far the best. This fellow would get away for a long end run, many times without any interference from his mates. Loving, at quarterback, also would get away for good gains around the Tech High ends. In the line the playing of Clark at center on the defense was good. He broke through the Tech High line and got his man time after time. Rogers, at right tackle, was also a stumbling block for the Tech High line.

DuBose, at left tackle, put up one of the finest games ever played by a G. M. A. scrub.

An interesting feature of the game was the punting of Dick Peel, who was substituted for Cox. Peel is a southpaw punter and a very interesting man to see in action. It doesn't seem unnatural to see a southpaw hurler or outfielder on a baseball field, but to see a southpaw punter in football is about as natural as seeing Georgia Tech being scored on in their own backyard.

TECH HI—	Pos.	G. M. A.
Helton	L. E.	Duson
Meyers	L. T.	DuBose
Glenn	L. G.	Pantaze
Benning	C.	Clark
Calhoun	R. G.	Grimes
Hardin	R. T.	Rogers
Jenkins	R. E.	Estill
Cox	Q.	Loving
Hodges	L. H.	Sale
Nabell	F.	Dobbs
Gordy	R. H.	Dreger

Tolbert (G. M. A.), referee. Wilson (T. H. S.), umpire. Carter (G. M. A.), and Sims (T. H. S.), timekeepers. Blecknell (T. H. S.), head linesman. Substitutes for Tech High, Willingham for Hodges, Sturgeois for Glenn, Peel for Cox, Finch for Gordy; for G. M. A., Wilson for Sale, Cooper for Estill, Sale for Wilson, Estill for Colper.

Score:

G. M. A.	0 0 0 0—0

The "Autometric" Carburetor

YALE

Made by The Yale & Towne Mfg. Co.
STAMFORD CONNECTICUT

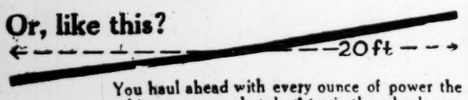

How do you like to pull out of tight traffic?

Like this?

YOU jam her down, spin the rear wheels, rack the whole machine, and go 20 feet (if you don't stall the motor.)

Or, like this?

You haul ahead with every ounce of power the machine can carry, but do not spin the wheels, nor stall the engine, nor have to get in any careful toe work on the accelerator. And you get the same 20 feet just as quick.

That's what we call flexibility of control—power in the pinches when you need it. And a smooth even flow of power too. That's the kind of control you get when you equip your car with an "Autometric" Carburetor made by The Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company.

That's the kind of control that eliminates at least 20% of your gear shifting.

And in addition you get more power, up to 30% more mileage from your gasoline, and engine vibration is reduced to a minimum.

You get these benefits because the "Autometric" Carburetor provides the correct mixture for all speeds for any car. No more fuel is burned than is actually necessary at whatever speed you are traveling—best results at all times.

Step in and we'll arrange to have your own garage man put an "Autometric" Carburetor on your car on approval.

New York, October 15.—After making new high prices for the movement during today's earlier trading, the cotton market turned easier under realizing with December selling off rom 34.75 to 34.15, and closing at 34.27.

The general list closed steady at a decline of 1 to 140 points, active winter and spring months being 36 to 55 points net lower, while near months were relatively firm, and the biggest losses were on the next crop deliveries.

The market opened irregular at an advance of 21 points to a decline of 10 points, but soon turned firm on the continued strength of Liverpool, bullish over-night spot advices and reports of further rains in the western belt. For a time the buying was active, and before the end of the first hour active months sold 33 to 40 points net higher, with January touching 34.56.

Offerings increased at this level and there was considerable hedge selling as well as realizing. Buyers found encouragement in the bullish weekly report of the weather bureau, but prices gradually sagged off. New Orleans was a seller on the break, while there was also selling for a reaction after the advance of about 6½ cents per pound from the low levels of last month.

January sold as low as 33.70, while March eased off to 33.50, but October was relatively well sustained, and closing prices showed rallies of several points from the lowest.

The New Orleans selling, combined with reports that the cotton conference there would take up the question of gambling in cotton, and the elimination of iiddle men, probably had an unsettling influence during the afternoon.

Savannah reported a clearance of 4,000 bales for Bremen, the first direct shipment from that port to Germany since 1915, and Liverpool cables reported spinners in a rush to secure good grades.

REALIZING BY LONGS LOWERS NEW ORLEANS

New York, October 15.—While there were new high levels developed in the early trading in cotton today, the market developed a pronounced reactionary tendency around the middle of the day, and in the afternoon net advances were replaced by net declines.

Realizing from the long side furnished most of the selling pressure, although mixed with this character of offerings were short sales in some volume, being induced by the belief among bearish traders that a reaction from the long advance was overdue. At the highest levels, the trading months were 30 to 61 points above yesterday's close, and at the lowest they were 28 to 50 points lower.

The opening was higher in response to a much better Liverpool than due and the demand increased on the unfavorable weather over the belt. The weekly crop reports from the government were considered unfavorable, but were not followed by any buying of consequence.

Spot accounts, on the whole, were with values. At the highest levels October touched 35.11. Spots here weer marked up 25 points to 35 cents for middling.

Summary for the Cotton Region States.

New Orleans, La., October 15.—Somewhat warmer weather prevails over the western portion of the belt and temperatures are near or considerably above the normal in the entire cotton region. Light to heavy showers occurred in eastern Texas, southeastern Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, the northern portions of Alabama and Georgia, and at a few places in North Carolina and Oklahoma.

Heavy rains—Louisiana, Robeline, 1.00; Minden, 1.40. Mississippi, Natchez, 1.10; Port Gibson, 1.54; Aberdeen, 1.62. Arkansas, Arkansas City, 1.00; Dumas, 2.04; Eldorado, 2.00. Oklahoma, Hanmon, 1.32. Alabama, Tuscumbia, 3.30. Tennessee, Memphis, 1.32; Nashville, 1.66. Texas, Galveston, 1.22; Houston, 1.16.—Cline.

Summary of Weather and Crop Conditions in the Cotton Belt for the Week Ending October 14, 1919.

Washington, D. C., October 15.—Quite warm weather prevailed in the eastern portion of the cotton belt, but temperatures were below normal in the northwestern part. The rainfall was considerable to excessive from the Mississippi valley westward, and mostly below normal in the eastern portion. Excessive rains and inadequate sunshine caused deterioration or but poor progress and considerable damage in Arkansas, Mississippi, Oklahoma and Texas, where picking was mostly at a standstill or made very slow progress during the week. The weather was favorable for picking in the eastern half of the belt, and harvest is well along in most sections and nearly completed in Georgia, Florida and southern Louisiana. The condition of cotton is rather poor to about the average in the Carolinas, and prospects for a top crop are very poor in South Carolina. It was too wet for truck crops in Texas and too dry in the South Atlantic states.—Marvin.

Meteorologist, Weather Bureau.

PROFESSIONAL VIEWS ON COTTON SITUATION

New York, October 15.—(Special.)—The sharp advance in Liverpool was accepted as indicating that it was time to take profits, which local operators have been doing all day. They thought that a large amount of cotton had been bought in the south which would come upon the market around these prices. There is no change in the bullish feeling, based on the rains in the south for the past ten days, so that this decline today was considered by the trade to be a reaction in a market where the short interest had been eliminated on the advance of the past fortnight.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.

New York, October 15.—(Special.)—The weekly weather report was as unfavorable as the trade expected it to be. Heavy and persistent realization for local long account and steady selling of southern hedges occasioned a setback today. Spinners were the buyers, and the strength of spot cotton at interior points is causing the near positions to command an increased premium daily. A further downward reaction is possible on which we favor purchases.

J. W. JAY & CO.

New York, October 15.—(Special.)—Today's cotton market displayed strength under the influence of higher cables than due and fresh buying for trade and speculative account, the weekly weather report read very bullishly, showing deterioration and serious effects from the heavy rains. Hedge selling and liquidation played an important part, bringing about lower prices. Sentiment continues bullish, the reaction being regarded as but natural and healthy.

ORVIS BROS. & CO.

New York, October 15.—(Special.)—Although sales in the foreign market again totaled 15,000 bales, American rings were not deluged with buying orders. On the contrary, the public seems disposed to take profits still. The market absorbed same easily and at no time was there any indication of weakness. The spot situation remains so strong it seems foolish to take a pronounced position on the short side of the market. CLARK : CO.

IRREGULAR TREND IN STOCKS AGAIN

Monetary Conditions, Industrial Situation and Pressure From Shorts Featured--Liberty Bonds Active.

New York, October 15.—Monetary conditions and the industrial situation seemed to offer sufficient explanation for the further hesitation shown by the stock market today, intermittent pressure from the shorts adding to the irregularity.

Call loans, which closed at 14 and 15 per cent yesterday, opened at 9, soon rising to 12, with 14 per cent quoted in the final hour, another advance to 15 per cent being made at the end.

Industrial developments were somewhat confusing, settlement of local labor differences being offset by the strike call of the United Mine Workers and the less optimistic views of steel trade authorities.

Dealings failed by a considerable margin to approach yesterday's large and more varied turnover. It was regarded as significant of technical conditions that, excepting the rally of the last half hour, the market was most active when prices were declining.

Trading again centered largely in oils, motors and equipments, although shipping and food shares were included in the operations of bull pools. Tobaccos, leathers, metals and unclassified specialties were less prominent at mixed gains and losses, and rails, Southern Pacific excepted, were scarcely a factor.

Chandler Motor (new stock) and Bethlehem Motor, both at new high records, enlivened the later dealings with steels and equipments, although United States Steel failed to hold its slight gain, ending unchanged on the day.

Liberty issues were the foremost features of an unusually active bond market, that group, however, manifesting an irregular trend, with the exception of 3's, which added to its recent steady rise at 100.48. Total sales (par value) aggregated $18,-850,000. Old United States bonds were unchanged on call.

Warehouse Burns.

Thomasville, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—The Planters' warehouse at Coolidge, with its entire contents, including about 300 bales of cotton, was entirely destroyed by fire at an early hour this morning. When discovered the flames had made such progress that the fire department could only save the adjoining buildings. The cotton was partly insured. There was about $2,000 insurance on the warehouse. Nothing is known of the origin of the fire.

Bears Raid Market But Prices Recover

BY R. L. BARNUM

(The Constitution-Philadelphia Public Ledger Service. Copyright, 1919.)

New York, October 15.—During the first half hour of trading today Studebaker was up 3¼ points, Chandler 7 and General Motors 9½, with the rest of the market following. This activity continued up to noon, although for the first two hours only 585,000 shares changed hands, compared with 792,000 shares for the same time yesterday. Shortly after noon call money advanced to 10 per cent, compared with the renewal rate of 9 per cent, and time money went to 7 per cent. Then the bear party which successfully raided the market yesterday began to sell stock short, with the result that United States Steel and most other shares made new low records for the week. In the last hour there was a recovery to above the opening prices.

Today the government is making its semi-annual payment on the fourth Liberty 4¼s. There were $6,989,000,000 of these bonds sold. The interest to be paid in the New York district alone calls for $43,-455,000. Naturally such financing has a disturbing effect on the money market.

Admit Mistake.

However, bankers stated today that there was something more the matter with the money market than the temporary displacement of funds resulting from payment of interest on the Liberty bonds. It was freely admitted that a mistake had been made a month or so ago in reversing original judgment that, owing to large demands of general busoiness this autumn, would see very high money. With call money lending at the rates quoted for the past month, it was admitted today stock exchange activity cannot continue on a rising scale of prices.

Before the close of the market at 3 o'clock the rate on call money advanced to 15 per cent. One class of stocks that attracted much attention during the early advances included corn products, United Food products, Wilson, Loose-Wiles and other shares of companies interested directly or indirectly in food products.

Up until a few weeks ago these stocks took a very active part in all of the advances in the stock market. This activity ceased, however, when President Wilson began his 90-day campaign to get the cost of living down. Today's renewed activity in these shares indicates that Wall street believes there will be higher prices and larger profits for the food stocks.

Wall Street Gossip.

A very interesting set of figures were given in the balance sheet of the Ford Motor company, just filed with the secretary of state of Massachusetts. Total assets as of July 31, 1919, foot up $332,998,121, of which $156,011,964 are in cash or accounts receivable. This compares with a similar item a year ago of only $91,471,851 and total assets of $203,749,460. The company has no bonds outstanding and only $2,000,-000 stock. There is a floating debt of $72,174,639. The profit and loss surplus, which represents the excess of assets over liabilities amounts to $227,586,581, against $175,242,728 a year ago. The head of one of the best known investment banking firms in Wall street was asked today for his opinion on the bond market. "I am advising my customers," he said, "to buy prior lien railroad bonds. These issues will not give the buyer a very attractive income return, but within five years, and perhaps much less time, will show very handsome profits."

A very shrewd observer of the stock market expressed the belief today that the sustained upward price movement which has been under way since September 20, was over. "Professional traders sell stocks short after an upward spurt and then stop selling them when they find no stock is being brought out."

Depends on Labor and Money.

"Then the same traders buy back the same stock and stop buying when they find they have you following. This floundering about convinces me that this particular phase of the market is over. Whether or not the upward price movement is resumed later depends on labor and money market conditions."

In responsible banking quarters the prediction is rather freely made that the federal reserve banks will before long raise their rediscount rates. Heretofore, they have been prevented from doing this by the fact that they were obliged to "carry" at a low rate the banks, which, in turn, had lent money to borrowers of Liberty bonds at the coupon rate. This arrangement applied to the fourth Liberty loan floated last October. In that instance the banks agreed to carry borrowers, with no increase in the interest rate, for a year. The year will end in a few days, thus removing one obstacle to an increase in the rate at the reserve banks.

As to whether high rates for call money will eventually break the stock market, opinions among well posted observers are different. Some of these people point out that the stock market is now a national institution in the broadest sense. People all over the country are buying stocks, and they are not especially concerned over the rate for loans in New York, since they finance their purchases with their own banks. In the judgment of some bankers the market has more to fear from the industrial and labor situation than from the money rate.

Wall street has been greatly interested in the stock dividend case, now pending before the supreme court. On the court's decision depends the question whether stockholders will have to pay the income tax on shares distributed to them during the taxable year. A decision of the British courts was cited in the financial district today bearing on this point. Stockholders had contended when the tax assessor sought to charge them with the tax upon shares distributed as a bonus that these shares represented capital and were not taxable as income. According to the item handed about in Wall street today, the British appeal courts sustained this view. In our case, however, even if it is determined that stock distributions are not taxable, the law provides that the corporation itself must pay a tax upon its undistributed earnings. If they are distributed as dividends, the stockholders pay the additional income tax.

CORN SCORES RISE ON STRIKE ENDING

Advance Was Only Moderate One, However. Oats Also Made Gain and Provisions Rose 5-70 Cents.

Chicago, October 15.—Announcement that the longshoremen's strike had been called off led to a moderate advance today in the corn market.

Prices, however, reacted somewhat and the close was unsettled at ⅜c to ¾c net higher with December $1.22⅜ to $1.22½ and May $1.21¼ to $1.21⅝. Oats gained ½c to ⅝c and provisions 5c to 70c.

Corn was bullishly affected from the outset by the ending of the longshoremen's strike, as grain had begun to pile up at interior terminals and lake loadings from here had been brought to a virtual standstill. Unsettled weather tendered likewise to strengthen the corn market today, and so, too, did an advance in quotations on hogs.

At one time talk of a revival in export demand for oats counted as a further bullish factor. On the whole, however, buyers of corn were not aggressive and considerable realizing on the part of holders was noted toward the last. New corn arriving was said to show exceptionally good quality for this season of the year.

Oats displayed independent strength as a result of gossip that 500,000 bushels had been taken for export. Messages on the subject, though, were conflicting.

Provisions were lifted by the upturns in the value of grain and hogs.

Georgia Markets

Conserving Our Crops.

"We want to call attention of our farmers," says this week's bulletin of the state bureau of markets, "to the tremendous loss sustained in previous years through improper harvesting and storing of their crops. Thousands of tons of peanuts rotted in the fields of Georgia last year; millions of dollars are lost to our farmers each year through careless or improper harvesting. After you have spent six months of continuous toil to produce the crops you should not omit any possible effort to protect your crops so they may be safely conserved and carried through the winter months.

"Many of our farmers are not equipped with potato curing houses and are forced to sell their surplus crop as they harvest. On the other hand, there are many potato curing houses which have already been constructed and which are in the market for potatoes. We repeat our advice already given: In selling such surplus always give preference to the potato curing house or cannery at equal prices."

COMMANDER ATKINSON LEAVES NAVY STATION

Lieutenant Commander J. F. Atkinson, who has been in charge of navy recruiting for this district since June, 1917, gave up active service Wednesday and turned his desk in the postoffice building over to Lieutenant Commander H. C Wyck, assistant recruiting inspector, who will assume temporary supervision over recruiting work.

Lieutenant Commander Atkinson was retired in 1911 because of wounds received in naval service, but when the United States entered the war, he volunteered his services, and was made commanding officer of the navy recruiting station in Atlanta.

During his administration the Atlanta station has made a most excellent record and a noteworthy showing in the number of men enlisted in the navy, often leading the other stations in recruits. The commanding officer received a promotion during this period.

The success of the office here is attributed by Commander Atkinson to the efficiency and co-operation of the force of enlisted men serving under his command. "They're a fine bunch of men," he said Wednesday as he was preparing to take official leave of them.

Regrets Leaving.

"I regret to give up the work here," was the sentiment expressed by Commander Atkinson to a reporter, who called just in time to see him gathering together all the records which he has kept for his successor. "The duty has been most pleasant and interesting and has given me an opportunity to meet and see again many of my old shipmates with whom I served in different parts of the world.

"Having been on the retired list for several years before this assignment, I had missed the navy life and associates, and I was really glad of an excuse to serve with old friends again, as much as I regretted the occasion of my return to active service.

Native Georgian.

Commander Atkinson, who is a native Georgian, was graduated from the naval academy in 1905, and was on active duty from then until he received an accidental shot in the leg, which prevented further service on sea. He will now return to his home in Waverly, and engage in stock raising.

GEOLITTI'S SPEECH CREATES SENSATION

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1919.)

Rome, October 15.—A speech by ex-Premier Giolitti to his constituents at Dronro, Piedmont, has provided a political sensation. It has the appearance of a bid for the premiership after the elections.

Giolitti refused to take a share in committing the country to war. He refused to take a share in helping the country to recover after Caporetto. For this he threw all responsibility on the government. He now poses as the only man capable of rescuing Italy from the slough in which others had engulfed her.

Though 77 years old Giolitti retains his old lucidity and much of his old power, but outside the circle of his own people, the speech will not strengthen the dictator's position. It is just possible that his entry into the arena may have the effect of lessening the virulence of the opposition to Premier Nitti.

Dorsey at Valdosta.

Valdosta, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—Governor Hugh Dorsey came down to Valdosta today to bring his young son, Jim Wilkinson Dorsey, for a visit to the lad's grandmother, Mrs. J. M. Wilkinson, and other relatives here. Governor Dorsey spent the forenoon attending a meeting of the trustees of the coastal plains station at Tifton and a portion of the afternoon at the Cook County fair at Adel. He returned to Atlanta tonight.

STRIKERS FIGHT FOR FREE SPEECH

And for Free Assemblage. They Will Appeal to Courts—Alleged Meetings Are Forbidden in Pittsburg Region.

Pittsburg, Pa., October 15.—The fight for free speech and free assemblage which the steel strikers claim have been denied them in the Pittsburg district, will probably be carried to the courts, according to an announcement made today at the national headquarters of the unions involved in the strike.

W. B. Rubin, counsel for the strikers' national committee, today notified Mayor E. V. Babcock, of Pittsburg; Sheriff William Haddock, of Allegheny county, and all the burgesses in the steel towns in this vicinity, that the union organizers will make a test case of the alleged rulings of the public officials in denying the strikers the right to hold meetings.

The test case, it is said, will be made on the refusal of the police authorities to permit the holding of a meeting in a hall on the south side tonight. About 1,000 men gathered, but Police Commissioner Peter R. Walsh refused to allow anyone to enter the place unless a permit to hold the meeting could be shown. Many in the crowd angrily protested against the action of the police and one man was arrested.

In his letter of notification, Mr. Rubin said that after a study of the state constitution and state and local laws he found that meetings in public halls may be held without any permits and the denial of such meetings and their dispersing and threats of arrest because a permit had not been obtained, is without any warrant in law.

Warning Is Given.

The letter said:

"I hereby respectfully inform you that your interference with any public meeting held under the auspices of the American Federation of Labor or any one of the international labor bodies affiliated with it, or any committee or subcommittee for them under pretext that same is without permit will be regarded as an unlawful interference by you of their rights, for which action will be instituted against you and you be made answerable for all liabilities therein; that I have advised the various union labor organizations interested in the holding of such public meetings that they may do so without first obtaining a permit from you therefor."

It was also announced at strike headquarters that the labor bodies identified with the Pittsburg central labor union will hold a meeting Sunday afternoon to consider "a program of collective action in support of the steel strike."

The alleged action of the city authorities in denying a hearing of complaints against city officials for refusing to permit mass meetings and alleged illegal arrests will be considered at the same time.

RADICAL AGITATORS SOUGHT AT GARY.

Gary, Ind., October 15.—Army and city officers today continued their search for radical agitators who have aligned themselves with the striking steel workers. Rumors of plots against the lives of city officials and steel mill heads gained wide circulation throughout the city, but the polce and military commanders refused to confirm the reports.

Picketing increased and Colonel W. S. Mapes announced that he had a report that pickets wearing masks had carried off the wife of a workman in the steel mills. Other reports of attempts to intimidate workmen also reached Colonel Mapes.

The first mass meeting permitted since the federal troops entered the city was held by the strikers this afternoon in a public park and was addressed by John Fitzpatrick, of Chicago, chairman of the national strike committee and others.

Colonel Mapes is said to have made a report to Major General Wood today on the Gary situation, presenting documentary evidence showing the activities of radicals in connection with the strike.

Several men, including Anton Gorski, who was said to be under surveillance in connection with the explosion of a bomb in the Chicago postoffice in September, 1918, were questioned yesterday, and it was stated Alexander Ivanoff, believed to be maker of the 36 bombs sent from New York to prominent men throughout the country last June, was being sought.

Steel workers disavowed the "proclamation" issued by the "communist party of America," calling on the working men to wrest control from the federal troops and establish a "dictatorship."

The Indiana State Building Trades Council also made a disavowal of the radical activities in behalf of the strike, and Edward Mulholland, president of the Gary Screw and Belt workers' union, was expelled from the union because of alleged radical utterances. He also resigned from the steel strikers' committee.

NO MATERIAL CHANGE IN CHICAGO DISTRICT.

Chicago, October 15.—Aside from the situation at Gary, Ind., where disclosures of arrests of radicals and revelations of the discovery of alleged anti-government plots by federal authorities yesterday attracted nation-wide attention, the industrial conditions in the Chicago steel district today showed no material change in the past 24 hours.

From many of the plants throughout the district came reports of increased production with many striking employees returning to work after an absence of more than three weeks. One report from Waukegan, Ill., was that police officials predicted the strike would not last a week longer.

Strike leaders issued the usual statements that the strike had not been affected by the men who had resumed employment.

An I. W. W. propaganda headquarters recently opened in south Chicago today bore a placard "Stay Away From South Chicago," and was empty of the literature it had housed. Two hundred men, including a number of discharged soldiers last night marched to the hall, drove out the secretary and pitched the books and pamphlets into the street, where gasoline was poured on them and then set on fire.

PLANTS RESUME AT YOUNGSTOWN.

Youngstown, Ohio, October 15.—For the first time since the steel strike began the Ohio works of the Carnegie Steel company was operating today.

Two of the company's blast furnaces started up, with indications of resumption in other departments during the day.

According to observers approximately 7,000 strikers, or about 20 per cent of the total in this city and east Youngstown, have returned to work. Neither company or union officials would estimate the number returned to work.

PLANNING TO BAR FOREIGN RADICALS

Measure to Extend Passport Restrictions on Passage in Congress. Radicals Flocking to the United States.

Washington, October 15.—Aimed to exclude foreign radicals and dangerous propagandists, the passport restriction bill was blocked in its passage late today by the house by a parliamentary tangle which forced adjournment. No opposition to the bill came up during the four hours' general debate, and passage of the measure is expected tomorrow.

Representative Rogers, republican, Massachusetts, acting chairman of the foreign affairs committee, in discussing the measure, said it was aimed at the "dangerous propagandist class of aliens."

Not Always Illiterate.

Declaring undesirables are not always of the illiterate class, Representative Cannon, republican, Illinois, added that "highly cultured men and women in some of the American colleges have strange ideas on social questions."

"Aliens come here with a spirit of bolshevism," Representative Cooper, republican, Ohio, said, "and practice and preach that doctrine to our foreign workmen in the industrial centers. The time is come when Americans must speak for America. We must call a halt to the spreading of the hellish doctrine of Lenine and Trotzky in this country."

Representative Welty, democrat, Ohio, urged that all aliens now in the country be required to register immediately and that undesirable ones be deported without delay. He declared that recent events at Gary and Pittsburg indicated that the government should know the character and whereabouts of all aliens in the United States.

To Keep Out Bolsheviki.

The house committee voted favorably on the passport restriction legislation after hearing testimony by Secretary Lansing and other state department officials who presented to the committee reports of American diplomatic and consular agents and military and naval attaches in Europe, all of whom joined in urging continuance of the control.

Ambassador Davis at London, in requesting continuance of the restrictions, said the "department already is aware that the bolshevik authorities in Russia are acquiring genuine American passports, intending to use them to send their agents to the United States and elsewhere." Consul Pool at Archangel, in his message, added "it is regarded as certain that a large number of aliens will try to enter the United States from this part of the world to spread bolshevik propaganda."

"Unless strict control is observed," declared the consul at Rotterdam, "bolshevik elements of enemy countries will swarm into the United states and endanger the country's welfare."

Similarly, the Amsterdam consul reported "danger exists from bolshevism," and The Hague military attache said "an immense exodus of population from Germany" would come to the United States by way of the Netherlands, adding "it is safe to assume that a large percentage of the people from Germany and central countries as well as from southern parts of Russia will be undesirable," and the naval attache appended the statement that passport control was necessary "to keep out the dregs of Europe."

Minister Stovall, at Berne, informed the state department that "the peril of German and bolshevik will not cease for at least a year," and added that passport control was "vitally necessary."

Warning that there is "real danger that the government will fail" if it continues its attitude of "supine inaction" toward the radical elements over the country was given in the senate by Senator Poindexter, republican, Washington.

Referring to propaganda circulated at Gary, Ind., urging steel workers to revolt and establish a dictatorship, Senator Poindexter said there was "ample proof of the revolutionary movement, not only at Gary, but throughout the country." Many of the strikes now in effect, he added, were called "in pursuance of the revolutionists' plans to strike down all government."

The Washington senator offered a resolution asking why the department of justice had not proceeded against the circulators of revolutionary propaganda. Senator Thomas, democrat, Colorado, questioned the need for the resolution. He said the steel strikers in his state had no grievance; that they were fighting for nationalization of the steel industry.

Senator Pomerene, democrat, Ohio, remarked that his information was that the strike leaders were holding out the inducement that the plants soon would be in the employees' hands as a means of getting the men to remain in the unions.

What Philosophy Impelled Mrs. Bradstreet's Career?

By ELEANOR BOYKIN.

In the women's apartments of the Fulton tower there sits today a young woman clad in a simply made black satin dress of good quality, into whose 22 years, if reports are true, there have been crowded adventures enough to dazzle even the imagination of a Balzac. Having sprung in five days to a state-wide prominence, her story is repeated everywhere, and everywhere one hears the question, "Is this woman the infallible vampire?" or "What is there about her, which accounts for her seeming fascination over men?"

Thrice married, and according to her own story the object of the most lavish attention from a man of high business and social standing, the career of Mrs. Agnes Katherine Queen Bradstreet, brief but concentrated, challenges speculation.

From a plain country girl to a dashing woman of fashion, befurred and bejeweled, in a year isn't a step that is taken every day, and there is something adventurous, something daring about the leap from one station to another that impels interest on the part of the vast plodding majority whose advance in both experience and prosperity comes slowly.

"Well, Who Wouldn't?"

Is it that the slender girl who went with the detectives to the police station wearing $35,000 worth of diamonds, deliberately set about to satiate her feminine love for adornment by contemplated scheming for possession of these things from those who were able to give them to her, or is that with her readiness to accept new adventures, she happened to meet and charm the man who was willing to gratify her every wish, a position which she was unable to refuse?

"Well, who wouldn't?" Mrs. Bradstreet responded on the evening of her arrest when asked if she had not accepted diamonds and elegant automobiles from the man with whom her name is connected. One wonders if this is her philosophy, unreasoned though it may be that things beautiful belong naturally and unquestionably to women, who can do them the greatest justice.

Had wealth of display and luxury of living been the ambition of the young woman from the days when she slipped out of the Fanthersville home? Only Agnes herself could answer, but that their appeal were irresistible is proved by the reckless expenditure of the days when money flowed freely.

Devoted to Husband.

Of her three husbands there is no indication that any of them were able to give her these things or that she treasured their affection the less for it. She has evidenced in every way her devotion to the man who now shares her lot in prison, a man who, she says, "didn't do anything" by way of business before he went into the army or since he came out of it.

To the question asked constantly by those who have followed the developments and revelations of her life within the past few days, "Is she so good-looking, so attractive as her history would seem to show?" the answer is, "While she has a face prettier than the average, an appearance which is prepossessing enough, and a manner which is attractive when she is at her best, she is not exceptional in any of these features."

Appeared Reserved.

A man who saw her frequently when she used to ride to Camp Gordon to see her soldier husband, said of her Wednesday. "She impressed me as being the kind of light young woman who enjoyed being in love with the good-looking sergeant. She said the usual social things and appeared reserved enough."

Hardly sounds like the professional vampire, does it? So that, if this is her role, she knows how to throw the disguise into the discard when it is not needed.

Some one asked Mrs. Bradstreet, "How does it feel to be dressed in the richest furs and costliest diamonds?"

Her answer was, "I can tell you how it feels to have them taken off of you."

Will she be happy without them again? Which is the dominant element of her make-up, love of luxury? This opens up an interesting question in psychology, which none of those who have watched her behind the bars for five days can answer.

ROADS OBJECT TO REPLACING TRAINS

Claim Is Made That Return of Pre-War Passenger Service Would Be Unprofitable.

Indianapolis, Ind., October 15.—Many railroads in the United States are reluctant to replace passenger service cancelled during the war on the ground that it is unprofitable, delegates attending the meeting of the national association of railways and utilities commissioners were told here today by A. J. Maxwell, of North Carolina, in presenting the report of the committee on railroad service, accommodations and claims.

The report urged that commissions take recognition of the recommendations of health authorities in preventing a recurrence of the influenza epidemic by enforcing sanitary regulations as to ventilation, heat and use of disinfectants at stations.

Another matter of import was the action of the conference on the report of a committee appointed at a special meeting Tuesday night which, if adopted, will place the convention on record as opposed to any action by congress which would take from the state commissions regulatory powers over telephone companies.

Walter A. Shaw, Illinois, president; J. A. Perry, Georgia, first vice president; Carl D. Jackson Wisconsin, second vice president; James B. Walker, New York, secretary, re-elected, and L. S. Boyd, Washington, D. C., assistant secretary, also re-elected.

Unless legislation looking to the return of railroads to private ownership takes definite shape during December, the country will be disastrously handicapped next year in having its business moved, according to Walker D. Hines, director general of railroads, who spoke tonight at a dinner of the commissioners.

Mr. Hines called attention to the urgent need for additional facilities for handling the increased amount of railroad business and said that in view of the announcement by the president that he intended to hand the roads back to their owners December 31, early action by congress as vitally important in order that the private owners may see where they stand and begin in time to plan for additional facilities for moving their business.

Mr. Hines declared that he believed "the present habit to condemn labor unsparingly" was unjust and that he believed the "extreme positions taken by labor have been reactions from unjust and extreem positions taken by employers in the past.

"I think it unfortunate for us to drift into an attitude of settled antagonism to labor," he continued, "because labor is a very important part of the community, and in the long run we must find a proper modus vivendi whereby we can secure the proper co-operation with labor, and I believe that by patience and fair-mindedness as well as firmness, that that can be accomplished."

Sealed Bids Asked For Purchase Of Eleven-Story Office Building Liquidation Sale

Flatiron Building.

Atlanta, Ga.

The undersigned, William A. Wright, as Insurance Commissioner of Georgia, in charge of The Empire Life Insurance Company's affairs in liquidation, will receive sealed bids at his office in the Capitol, Atlanta, up to noon standard time, November 15, 1919, for the following property:

The office building known as the Flatiron Building and the lot on which it is situated; said lot being a triangle fronting 148.8 feet on Peachtree Street and 185.8 feet on Broad Street and 60.8 feet on Poplar Street.

The building is eleven stories, steel constructed. The gross rental therefrom for the month of September, 1919, was $4,073.04. There is a mortgage on said property for two hundred and sixty thousand dollars ($260,000.00), principal, which becomes due in March, 1923, and which bears interest payable annually at the rate of 6 per cent per annum. This mortgage may be paid at any time before maturity.

This property is in the heart of the business section of Atlanta which is growing at a most unusual rate. The passenger ticket office of the Railroad Administration is located in this building.

Bids may be made payable all in cash, the purchaser assuming the above mentioned mortgage indebtedness which may be carried to maturity or paid off at any time at the option of the purchaser; or on terms the purchaser to assume the mortgage and to pay one-third of the balance of the purchase price in cash and one-third thereof on or before one year from date of the closing of the transaction, and one-third on or before two years of said date, deferred payments to bear interest at 6 per cent per annum payable semi-annually.

The right is reserved to reject any and all bids. Upon acceptance of a bid the matter will be referred to the Honorable, the Superior Court of Fulton County, Georgia, and acceptance thereof will not become final until the said bid is approved by the said Court.

Address all bids to the undersigned as Insurance Commissioner, Capitol, Atlanta, Georgia. Mark on the outside of the envelope "Bid for Flatiron Building."

Bids will be opened immediately after the expiration of the time herein fixed for receiving bids.

This October 11, 1919.

WM. A. WRIGHT,
As Insurance Commissioner.

HELD UP AUTOIST, LOOTED STORES IN GANG ESCAPE

Rome, Ga., October 15.—(Special.) Two more of the seevn convicts who escaped yesterday from the Chattooga chaingang were recaptured today, according to reports from Summerville. They are Cal Saylor, sent from Floyd, for ten years for assault with intent to murder, and Robin Drake. This leaves three men still at large, including Joe Webb, life-termer, from Floyd, sentenced to death, but recently commuted by the governor.

Webb and his companions held up a passing automobile, seized it and drove to Lafayette. There they burglarized the store of Russell Brothers, securing food, and that of R. L. Bommar, where they left their convict stripes and secured clothing. They are suposed to have gone to Chattanooga or into Tennessee. Webb is said to have stated that he would not be taken alive.

TAX OFFICIALS GIVEN BARBECUE IN MADISON

Madison, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—The tx collectors, assessors, receivers and county commissioners of six counties surrounding Morgan met here today with H. J. Fullbright, state tax assessor. The tax question was discussed fully and an enjoyable barbecue was given the visitors. Captain Felix L. Ruark, famous barbecue cook, managed the cue today.

ITALY WANTS FIUME AS A BUFFER STATE

Washington, October 15.—Ambassador Cellere, in the course of a conversation with Secretary Lansing, has communicated to him the basis for the settlement of the Fiume question which the Italian minister for foreign affairs, Tittoni, has taken to Paris. The plan as previously outlined looks to the creation of a buffer state at Fiume and the extension of Italian control over the adjoining strip of coast line northward from Fiume to Trieste, so that the new state shall abut on Italy instead of Jugo-Slavia on that side, the purpose being to prevent it from being entirely surrounded by Jugo-Slavic influence.

No indication has been given as to the acceptability of this proposition by Secretary Lansing, but he is expected to communicate his views on the subject directly by cable to Assistant Secretary Polk, the head of the American delegation in Paris, to guide the delegation in its deliberations with the supreme council. The plan of a buffer state is understood to have originated with President Wilson, so that the likelihood of agreement on this method of solution is believed to depend entirely upon the acceptability of the conditions which the Italian government has attached to the plan.

Two Killed by Gas.

Opelika, Ala., October 15.—James Dudley, a prominent farmer of Lee county, and a negro well-digger, were asphyxiated from poisonous gas fumes in a forty-foot well on the Dudley farm today. The negro was engaged in cleaning out the well and as the fumes attacked him he called for help. Mr. Dudley going down to his assistance, and meeting death with him.

HELP WANTED—Female

YOUNG WOMAN

Do you know that our wages have increased about 40 per cent in the past year?

We teach you a real profession. No tuition or other charges. We even pay you a high salary while you are learning. You can use this profession anywhere. Considerate, cheerful instructors make the classroom work and switchboard practice easy to learn.

The wages are $9 per week while learning; $11 per week after completing training course, with substantial, regular and frequent increases. Time and one-half for overtime. Many opportunities for extra money. You work only six days each week.

You work in light, clean, cheerful, well-ventilated operating rooms. Plenty of sunshine and fresh air. Electric fans to keep you cool. You work seated in a comfortable chair especially designed for you.

The rest rooms are cozy and homelike. We allow you time to enjoy them and pay you for the time. Comfortable chairs and couches, well selected hangings and pictures, a Victrola or piano (some offices have both), free telephones for your use, books, papers, magazines, and other conveniences are provided for you. Dancing and singing. An ideal place for you to have a good time and to form congenial friendships.

We serve, in an attractive manner, well prepared, wholesome, nourishing food at lunch and supper periods at cost. The menu is varied each day. Our serving lunch to you at cost means that you are ahead at least several dollars each week.

Many chances for promotion to supervisory, clerical and executive positions. There is always room at the top and also all along the line to the top.

You will have as associates the best class of young women from good homes. You will form many desirable and lasting friendships.

Two weeks' vacation with full pay each year to those with us two years. Those here less than two years get vacations with pay in proportion to their period of service.

We pay you when you are absent on account of sickness or accident. We will be glad to tell you the details of this plan, and also of our pension and death benefit provisions.

You will find our company ready to assist deserving employees in case they ever need a friend to help them meet some emergency condition.

We invite you to call and let us tell you more about the advantages you gain by entering our employment.

Young women, 16 years of age or over, apply now to Miss Prince, 25 Auburn avenue.

DISCIPLES INDORSE INTER-CHURCH PLAN

Cincinnati, Ohio, October 15.—The Rev. Archibald McLean, president, was re-elected an officer of the Foreign Consultation Mission society for the thirty-fifth consecutive year at the international convention of Disciples of Christ, here today. Dr. William E. Macklin, 37 years a medical missionary in China, told the delegates Japan introduced forty millions dollars' worth of opium into China last year and denied the statement of Bishop John McKim, made before t › Episcopal conference in Detroit yesterday, favoring the Shantung cluase of the peace treaty, to the effect that Japan always keeps her promises.

The convention indorsed the inter-church world movement for the second time today, and the indorsement of another department tomorrow will firmly establish the Disciples as a part of this movement. Themerger of the foreign ment. The merger of the foreign society into a united society was delegates voting against the merger. This also must be voted upon again before binding the denomination. Opposition to these two features caused the organization of a "restoration congress," which held its sessions separate fro. the convention two days.

"Delegates to the "congress" attended today's convention, but the opposition did not materialize sufficient strength to defeat the proposals. The opponents are centering their forces for the meeting of the American Christian Missionary society tomorrow, and will seek to keep this work out of the merger. The Rev. T. Z. Sweeney, minister to Constantinople under the Harrison administration, is leader of the opposition, and is supported by The Cincinnati Consultation Standard, a church paper.

RUSS CROWN JEWELS STOLEN IN LONDON

(The Constitution—London Times—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1919.)

London, October 15.—Crown jewels of Russia in possession of Prince Youssoupoff, in whose palace in Russia the notorious monk Rasputin was killed, have been stolen from his flat in the West End, of London. The theory is that the theft was the work of bolshevists who traced the crown jewels to England, burgled the flat of the temporary possessor and intend to send them back to Russia to swell the soviet's depleted coffers. The jewels are valued at $285,000.

DEBAUCHING KOREA CHARGED TO JAPAN

Princeton, N. J., October 15.—Charges that Japan had introduced licensed vice and the opium traffic into Korea and has sought to prevent Korea from publishing the facts throughout the world, were made by Dr. Syngman Rhee, president of the "Republic of Korea," in an address tonight befo e Princeton university students. It was the first of a series of addresses which Dr. Rhee will deliver on a tour of several large cities.

"Japan has sought to prevent our publishing the facts to the world," Dr. Rhee said. "She suppressed all the newspapers, censored all the mail, seized telephone and telegraph lines, obtained control of the cables and does not allow the Koreans to leave the country, fearing that they might tell the facts. Nevertheless, the facts have leaked out here and there, and the world is beginning to realize and to know that n awful crime has been committed.

"Aside from the material and political evils of Japanese rule in Korea, moral and religious aspect is simply abhorrent to the Korean people. Licensed vice and opium traffic are introduced in Korea, and are fostered and encouraged by the imperial government of Japan. Thousands of acres of poppies are planted, and the product can be sold only to the government. All the products from this illicit traffic and licensed vice go into the coffers of the mikado, while the government expenses are paid by the direct taxes."

DEDICATED STATUES OF UNION GENERALS

Vicksburg, Miss., October 15.—Governor Frank C. Lowden, of Illinois dedicated equestrian statues of Generals Grant and McClelland, a life-size statue of General Logan and bronze busts on General's McArthur and Smith at the Vicksburg national military park here today and presented them to the government.

They were monuments to commemorate the part these generals played in the capture of Vicksburg after a siege.

M'ALPIN IS SUED

By Hermandez, Claiming Alienation of Wife's Affections.

Savannah, Ga., October 15.—(Special.)—The big sensation of the year in Savannah broke today when a suit brought by E. R. Hernandez, clerk in a local department store, was filed in the city court against Judge Henry McAlpin, ordinary of the county of Chatham for many years and prominent in this section and the entire state. The suit is for $20,000 damage for the alleged alienation of the affections of Hernandez's wife by the Chatham official.

The petition sets forth that Judge McAlpin is almost sixty years of age; that he had been for the past ten years a widower; that he is a grandfather; that the plaintiff's wife visited the office of the ordinary some time ago on business connected with his court, and that the judge began paying attentions; that he frequently sent her presents of farm produce from his country place, and that later he took her on rides to his place in the country.

The petitioner cites that the attentions paid his wife ultimately caused a separation between him and his wife. The filing of the suit has createdunusual interest.

RUMANIANS ROUGH ON THE HUNGARIANS

Vienna, October 15.—(By the Associated Press.) Apparently the Rumanians are paying slight attention to the warnings, requests and mandates of the inter-allied military mission, which represents the only outside authority in Budapest. They have prevented food supplies from reaching Budapest and suburban regions with a population of nearly 600,000.

International Red Cross representatives report that the treatment by the Rumanians of prisoners of war at Arad, in southeastern Hungary, is in violation of the conditions of warfare. They are lodged, it is stated, in insanitary quarters; no medical care is given them and neither food nor clothing is furnished them by their captors. From the same sources it is reported that in all portions of Hungary occupied by the Rumanians the oppression of the native population is so great as to make life unbearable for them. Women and children, it is stated, have been flogged and imprisoned without trial and the widest latitude is given to the term "requisitions," which extends to personal property of all kinds.

Carranza Hopes U.S. Intervention Will Not Come

Ambassador Bonillas Brings Word That Mexican President Believes Oil Questions Will Be Satisfactorily Settled.

Washington, October 15.—Ambassador Bonillas, who has just returned from Mexico, where he conferred with President Carranza regarding the relations between the United States and Mexico, said today that the Mexican president is most optimistic as to the future and expressed the confident hope that the United States would not intervene in Mexico because of the troubles that country is now having as a result of 10 years of revolution.

President Carranza was said by the ambassador to be confident also that by the time the rest of the world had regained its composure Mexico also will be peaceful and on the road to prosperity.

It is the belief of President Carranza, Ambassador Bonillas said, that the troublesome oil question would be settled so that justice would be done the oil companies and the Mexicon nation and that there would be no ground for complaint.

The ambassador said that he returned from Mexico bearing no complaints or protests of any kind. It had been reported unofficially that he would protest against American aviators flying over Mexican territory.

All England Praying For Wilson's Recovery, Says Cable Dispatch

London, October 15.—Throughout the length and breadth of Great Britain prayers are being offered in all places of worship, particularly Scottish Presbyterian churches for the recovery of President Wilson. The Rev. J. Cartmel Robinson, vicar of St Michael's, says:

"How much the future peace of the world depends on him, God alone knows, but while Christian civilization is travailing with a great idea and the league of nations is not yet born, he has stood for it through good and evil report as a presumptive godfather."

ADDRESS BUSINESS COMMUNICATIONS TO HENRY W. SAVAGE, INC., NOT TO INDIVIDUALS

Atlanta, Ga., October 4, 1919.

Atlanta, Ga.

Gentlemen:—

Will you be so kind as to send a Pathe Phonograph to be used and played on the stage during the engagement of Mitzi in "Head Over Heels" at the Atlanta Theatre October 16-17-18?

The Pathe Phonograph was chosen by Mr. Henry W. Savage for this important musical production on account of its clearness and purity of tone and the excellence of its sound projecting and long wearing qualities.

Very truly yours,
B S Gachelden

From the stage of the ATLANTA THEATER this week, with MITZI in "HEAD OVER HEELS," you will hear the wonderful, life-like tone of the Pathé
When it comes to a question of which talking machine to use in assisting MITZI to "put over" "HEAD OVER HEELS" to glorious success, the PATHEPHONE was his natural choice.

What Makes the Pathephone the World's Greatest Talking Machine?

What is the effect of the Pathe Sapphire Ball

It is perfectly polished to fit the record groove, to have greater contact with the sound waves to bring out every tone and overtone. To eliminate all annoying surface noise; to prevent waste and destruction of records.
A WORD ABOUT PRICES: Here you will find a Jeweled Pathe at any price you wish to pay—$45.00 for a simple instrument; others more elaborate in practically all sizes and finishes up to $250.00.
Convenient Terms of Payment Will Be Arranged
